A Cold View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

In the last View I wrote about the new members of our AMC Executive Board. This time I would like to highlight the hard work and dedication of our returning members. To introduce them, I have chosen to use sports analogies. This is my own feeble attempt at convincing myself that fair weather is right around the corner. I'm actually writing this shortly after stepping inside from shoveling my driveway in the bitterly cold winter air. Brrrr. Any person that can correctly identify the sports gets 5 bonus points.

Conservation – Starting at Quarterback is the always intuitive, Joanne Jarzowski. Last year, Joanne stepped up to the ball and completed a pass with a grant for a new projector. What's next? We'll have to see!

Communications - Next, playing Point Guard, is Cheryl Lathrop, our grammar policewoman. Expanding on her predecessor's work, Cheryl has transformed SEM's communications. Want to know more about the Chapter? Check the website or Facebook us. Yes, that's a verb, right Cheryl?

Membership - Of course, no team is complete without our Center Forward, Len Ulbricht. When I joined the board in 2008, it took two people to fill Len's position. What else needs to be said? Len is doing the job of two people – and doing it very well! Only about 10% of our members are active in the organization. Len is working hard to improve this by involving new members and armchair members alike.

Trails - Batting clean-up is the one returning member that would cause a stir at any airport checkpoint. No, that isn't Death holding that scythe, it is Kevin Mulligan! From MA to NH, Kevin has brushed his way to organizing events and clearing our trails.

Ski - As a midfielder, Barbara Hathaway, has made a huge impact on SEM's Ski Program. Under her leadership the Ski Committee was brought back from the edge of oblivion. Whether skiing downhill or cross-country, Barbara has her goggles and poles at her side.

Biking - With our expert Bowler, Joe Tavilla, we can expect to go long distances. He is returning to make sure the wheels turn consistently. Joe has initiated a popular Easy Rider program to introduce newer bike riders to the joys of the road.

We could not do without Past-Chapter Chair Wayne Anderson, as Manager. We rely on his insight and knowledge of the past to help us work as a cohesive team. It is through his guidance that I hope, even though we may all be playing different games, the ideal of playing on one team will prevail to make our Chapter stronger.

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED!

Volunteers needed to bring paper cups to meetings. (Oh, and to do many other things too!)
SEM has many opportunities to make a difference in the AMC's ideals of recreation, education, and conservation.
Contact Jim Plouffe, YOUR Chapter Chair, to find out how you can make a difference!

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: amcsem.org, Forms.

The Southeast Breeze, the newsletter of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter (SEM) of the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC), is published 4 times a year. SEM members are encouraged to submit letters, articles, and photos; materials for publication (space permitting) cannot be returned unless accompanied by SASE. Mail to: Cheryl Lathrop, 17 Robert St., Walpole, MA 02081. Digital submissions are preferred: communicationschair@amcsem.org. Articles will be edited for length, typographical errors, and clarity. Editor: Cheryl Lathrop, Asst. Editor: Ann McSweeney, Proofreader: Kate Patroliia.

WAYNE ANDERSON, Past Chapter Chair, SEM (2009-2010)

(All retiring Chapter Chairs were recognized for their service at the AMC Annual Meeting.)

Joining the AMC in 2002 and working his way up the leadership ladder in just a short period of time, Wayne Anderson has exhibited an enthusiasm that has benefited both the Southeast Massachusetts Chapter and the AMC as a whole. Becoming the Vice Chair of the Hiking Committee in 2006 and proceeding up to Hiking Chair in 2008, and then Chapter Chair in 2009, Wayne has shown his commitment to recreation, education, and conservation, the three most important values that the AMC holds.

Wayne's accomplishments include:

- The establishment, under his leadership, of the SEM CYP committee, first as an Ad Hoc Committee and subsequently, as a permanent committee within the Chapter By-Laws
- Established and helped maintain the widely acclaimed SEM annual trip to Cold River Camp.
- Has been resourceful in trying to bring together several of the committees in various group activities (biking/paddling/hiking) for our Chapter-wide events, Chapter Hut Weekend and Spring Bash, while encouraging individual committees to bring in new leaders for beginning recreation activities. One success story is the newly developed Easy Riding Series in the SEM Biking Committee.
- Has always been very encouraging and patient with new hikers. Listens and instructs new attendees with an understanding temperament.
- Very generous with his time, opening up his house for meetings and his business to have workshops, such as winter hiking workshops and other various leadership education.

In his personal life, Wayne has adopted his own trail in the White Mountains, leads his granddaughter on hikes, and volunteers his time to do trail maintenance in the Blue Hills Reservation of Massachusetts. While trying to figure out how Wayne fits all this into a normal day, the SEM Chapter is deeply indebted to him for his dedication and determination to make this Chapter even better than it already is.

By Jim Plouffe, current Chapter Chair (2011)

UP FOR ANOTHER RED LINING PROJECT? In case you get tired of Red-Lining the Blue Hills—there are 1,420 mi of trails to cover in the White Mountains! Hike every trail in the AMC NH White Mountain Guide Book! Patches and certificates awarded to all finishers. See the GRID WEBSITE: www.48x12.com

Vice Communications Chair – Attend executive board meetings to watch and learn; and help the Chair publish the Breeze and oversee the chapter website for 2011. Then take over as Communications Chair in 2012 and oversee a wonderful staff of webmasters, editors, and proofreaders! Contact: communicationschair@amcsem.org.

NEW HIKE LEADER PROFILE: BILL VICKSTROM

Q: When did you join the AMC? Sometime in the 1990s. Growing up, my parents were members of the Worcester Section so I did a few activities with that chapter when I was younger.

Q: Why do you hike? I like to be outside and experience nature, good scenery, enjoy great company, get exercise and also to explore new places that can only be best reached on foot. Having a desk job, I appreciate every chance to get out.

Q: What is your hiking and outdoor experience? I have been an enthusiastic hiker since my early years. My father was an avid hiker and I remember climbing Mt. Wachusett when I was five and also doing many hikes with him.

Q: Why did you want to become an AMC hike leader? I have always led hikes with small groups and the AMC offered the chance to share some of my experiences on a larger scale. After participating in the Red Line Blue Hills series for several years, I decided it was time to step up and take AMC's Leadership Training Program.

Q: Do you have a favorite hike or favorite hiking story? I have a lifetime of memorable hikes but the ones that stand out above all others were trips in Grand Canyon, Zion and Bryce Canyon National parks and also in Sedona, AZ.

Q: What is the one hiking adventure you dream of? I would like to hike in more of the national parks, with Yosemite Half Dome being at the top of my list.

ALL 48 NOW COMPLETE !

On January 15, 2011, Dexter Robinson completed, in winter, the summing of all 48 of New Hampshire’s 4000 footers. The final hike was to Mt. Passaconaway in the southern White Mountains. He celebrated this event with friends, most of whom are SEM winter hikers. Dexter’s most difficult winter hikes included Mt. Adams, requiring 4 attempts, and Mt. Isolation, a 2-day overnight backpack. He notes that the winter list is a challenge given the limited 3 month window of opportunity, variable weather, ground conditions, and required equipment.

WINTER FUN

White Lining. January 2011, first “White Lining” hike in the Blue Hills. White Lining is Red Lining (RLBH) in the winter!

Gunstock downhill ski trip. Lake Winnepesaukee is in the background. Skiers: Brian Kelly, Hagit Moverman, and Susan Krumholz.

Share Skills With Youth Become a Volunteer Leader with the Chapter Youth Program (CYP) of AMC SEM. The spring training workshop is scheduled soon! Our group works with facilities to plan and lead children in outdoor activities. If you're interested in the gratifying experience of getting kids out on the trails and discovering nature, please contact the SEM CYP Chair for workshop details. cypcoordinator@amcsem.org

WASTE NOT WANT NOT

By Susan Salmon

Did you know?

- ❖ The amount of wood and paper we throw away every year is enough to heat 50,000,000 homes for 20 years.
- ❖ The U.S. comprises 5% of the world's population yet we generate 40% of the world's waste.
- ❖ A ton of glass produced from raw materials creates 384 lbs of mining waste and 27.8lbs of air pollution.
- ❖ Using 50% recycled glass cuts the mining waste by 75% and reduces the air pollution by 14-20%.
- ❖ Americans throw away enough aluminum every three months to rebuild our entire commercial air fleet.
- ❖ Aluminum can recycling saves 95% of the energy needed to make aluminum from bauxite ore.
- ❖ Recycling plastic saves twice as much energy as burning it in an incinerator.
- ❖ Styrofoam (polystyrene) is not recyclable; it cannot be made into new Styrofoam. A cup in a landfill today will still be there 500 years from now.
- ❖ Energy saved from recycling helps the environment by reducing energy related pollution and greenhouse gas emissions.

You can make a difference!

- ❖ Reduce your waste by avoiding the use of single use bottles, coffee cups, and bags.
- ❖ Bring reusable bags when shopping.
- ❖ Don't leave the water running while brushing your teeth or washing dishes.
- ❖ Replace the most often used light bulbs in your home with compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFLs). If every household did this, electricity used for lighting would be cut by half!
- ❖ Use it up, wear it out, make it do, or do without.
- ❖ Recycle.

We will miss: Carrie Priscilla Dobson

Carrie Priscilla Dobson of Harwich, previously of North Falmouth, died November 20, 2010, after a long battle with carcinoid cancer. She had been a Cape Cod resident since 1968. Carrie was a volunteer for Cape Cod Museum of Natural History, Wild Care, Inc., Cape Playhouse, Fresh Air Children's Program, Brewster in Bloom, Harwich Council on Aging Travel Desk, a board member of Cape Cod Opera, a past board member of Opera New England of Cape Cod, a past board member of Cape Cod Women's Organization, a longtime member of Polly's Place Cancer Support Group, and a past canoe/kayak chair for AMC SEM. Carrie swam daily and was an avid kayaker. Donations may be made to the Carcinoid Cancer Foundation, Inc.

NEWS FROM JOY STREET

Save the date: Spring Fling at Mohican Outdoor Center April 29-May 1 -- AMC's third annual Spring Fling clubwide event at the Mohican Outdoor Center will be a fun-filled weekend featuring hikes on the scenic trails in the Delaware Water Gap, biking on the park's roads and rail-trails, a visit to the Lakota Wolf Preserve, paddling on Catfish Pond (canoes, kayaks and all gear provided!), and making S'mores around the campfire. A variety of guided activities for you to choose from will be provided throughout the weekend, and all meals are included. AMC members and non-members (families, too!) are invited. Bring your favorite musical instrument and join Mohican's own band Saturday night in playing the classics and a few originals. This will be a chance for all twelve chapters to come together just to relax and have fun - no meetings, no business agenda, just a chance to get acquainted with fellow outdoor enthusiasts from all over the Northeast. Register early by calling AMC Reservations (603-466-2727), as last year's event sold out quickly. Visit www.outdoors.org/lodging/mohican for more information on Mohican.

Gorman Chairback Lodge and Cabins now open: use your chapter group discount -- AMC's newest destination in the Maine Woods, Gorman Chairback Lodge and Cabins, is now open. With a new "green," LEED-registered lodge, refurbished shoreline cabins, and a growing network of trails, Gorman Chairback is a great spot for hiking, fishing, paddling, skiing, and snowshoeing. Gorman Chairback is located near Moosehead Lake, surrounded by 66,000 acres of conservation land. Use your member discount, or if you are a chapter leader, take advantage of our special group discounts and services to plan a trip soon. To learn more, visit www.outdoors.org/mainelodges.

AMC launches new lower rates for children and teens -- As part of its commitment to get more kids and families outdoors, AMC has lowered its everyday rates for children ages 3-12 and introduced a new rate for teens, who previously paid the full adult rate. Child rates at Cardigan and Joe Dodge Lodge now start at $29/night for lodging, meals, and programs, a 25% savings over 2010. Highland Center and Maine Lodge rates are now $34/night, and Hut rates are $49/night. AMC will also be rolling out a new natural playscape and program options at the Highland Center this summer. For details, visit www.outdoors.org/kidsguide.

Calling all Teen Adventurers: AMC's 2011 Teen Wilderness Adventures catalog is now available -- These 4-27 day programs allow teens to build outdoor skills while gaining confidence in the backcountry and meeting new friends. This year, we've expanded our offerings for older teens and added new offerings such as a 27-day Maine Wilderness Adventure and an Intermediate Whitewater Kayaking Adventure. To learn more, visit www.outdoors.org/teenwilderness or visit Teen Wilderness Adventures on Facebook at www.facebook.com/teenwildernessadventures.

AMC Mountain Leadership School: call for volunteer instructors -- Mountain Leadership School is seeking qualified individuals to expand its volunteer instructor pool. MLS is the AMC's premier outdoor leadership training program, having trained leaders for outdoors organizations for over 50 years. The MLS program consists of 5 days of experiential learning, including a summer backpack in New Hampshire's White Mountains. Each student leads the group for one shift and co-leads the group for another shift.

The MLS program relies on the efforts of our volunteer staff to provide high-quality education to those aspiring to become outdoor leaders. Instructing is personally rewarding and is a uniquely powerful way to share your outdoors leadership knowledge and experience with enthusiastic, talented, and interesting students. Instructing MLS requires excellent outdoor, leadership, and communication skills and demands energy, maturity, and commitment.

The MLS Instructor's role is to teach in both classroom and backcountry settings using a variety of methods. The instructors provide structure and tactfully share honest feedback with the student leaders. Instructors oversee the program in the field by being constantly aware of the group's situation, progress within the program schedule, and student-leader performance.

For further information about this rewarding and challenging experience, please email mlsinstructor@gmail.com.

New Spring titles from AMC Books

[To newsletter editors: For review copies or cover images, email Melissa Tobin at mtobin@outdoors.org]

AMC Books are available through bookstores and outdoor retailers, or directly from AMC at www.outdoors.org/amcstore or by calling 800-262-4455. When members order directly from AMC, they receive a 20% discount and know that all proceeds go to support AMC's mission.

*"Passport to AMC's High Huts" By Ty Wivell -- Visitors to the Appalachian Mountain Club's famed huts in the White Mountains will find this compact, easy-to-carry book both a valuable guide to each of the eight huts in the AMC system and a treasured souvenir of their trip. Guests can have their passport stamped to commemorate their visit to each hut. Available in April.

*"Best Day Hikes in the Whites," 2nd Edition By Robert Buchsbaum -- This fully updated four-season guide from the publishers of the best-selling White Mountain Guide leads you to 60 of the finest views, most dramatic waterfalls, and best nature-rich trails the region has to offer. You'll explore the peaks bordering Franconia, Crawford, and Pinkham Notch; discover the many scenic trails along the Kancamagus Highway; visit several of AMC's high mountain huts; and tour the picturesque Sandwich Range. Available in April.

*"Best Day Hikes near Washington, D.C." By Stephen Mauro and Beth Homicz -- Discover 50 of the best day hikes in the Washington, D.C., area with this essential four-season guide, a new addition to AMC's Best Day Hikes series. Perfect for beginners, enthusiasts, families, tourists, or area natives, this easy-to-use book includes some of the finest trails of Washington, D.C., Maryland, and Virginia. Available in April.

*"Best Day Hikes in the Catskills," 2nd Edition By Peter Kicks -- With more than 600 miles of trails within just a few hours of New York City, the Catskills and Hudson Valley are a hiker's paradise, boasting varied and scenic terrain from Westchester County to Albany. This fully updated guide leads beginner and experienced hikers along 60 of the region's most spectacular trails. Available in April.

*"Best Day Hikes near Boston," 2nd Edition By Michael Tougias and John S. Burk -- From the barrier beach on Plum Island to the Middlesex Fells and Blue Hills, from the South Shore to Cape Cod, this guide offers a variety of trails for all ability levels and interests. This fully revised new edition adds ten more hikes for beginner and intermediate hikers. Available in April.

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

I need your help.

I have one very small, easy task that needs to be completed and you are the perfect person to do it.

However, I have two problems: I don't know who you are and I don't know what the task is.

This is a really covert way of telling everyone that we need volunteers. I am a volunteer as is every one of the SEM Executive Board Members, each of the committee leaders, and many of the people who run the AMC.

We are not new to volunteering and I am positive that you aren't either. But the difference is this: I am not looking for you to use up all your free time as a SEM volunteer. I am simply looking for someone to bring paper cups to our meetings or make a list of things needed for our Chapter Hut Weekend. I am looking for someone to make a couple of phone calls. And I am looking for someone to take pictures at our Open House.

The list of small, easy tasks that we need help with is large, but the time I am asking you to give to do one of these tasks isn't. Would I be happy if, after you do one of the small tasks, you tackle another? Sure! I'd be ecstatic. But I'm not asking you to do that.

Why? Because if 20 people each did one easy simple task, then a whole lot would be accomplished without anyone noticing (except me, because I notice the small things people do). That means that a large event can go off without a hitch due to the small, easy task that you volunteered to do.

Every organization is looking for your help. Every organization is looking for you to donate money and volunteer a month of Sundays to their cause. The only thing we are looking for is for a bunch of people to do some very small tasks. Then, we will be a big success.

To volunteer for one of these small tasks or to find out other ways you could help us grow, contact me at Chair@amcsem.org. I look forward to meeting you. And to discussing how a small task that you can easily do can have a big impact on your chapter.

FEEDBACK WANTED

The chapter is considering changing from the paper Breeze newsletter to an electronic Breeze. Why? To be more green and to save on printing and mailing costs so we can use this money for additional programs. What's your opinion? Email the Communications Chair at: feedback@amcsem.org. Or snailmail Cheryl Lathrop, 17 Robert St., Walpole, MA 02081

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: amcsem.org, Forms.

On March 29, Wayne Anderson (left) received an award for his contributions to the Appalachian Mountain Club during his service as SEM Chapter Chair from 2009-2010. The award was presented by AMC staffer Roger Scholl during an SEM leadership training workshop that Wayne organized at Borderland State Park.

Have you found us on Facebook yet? It's a great spot where members post outdoorsy info that you won't find anywhere else. For example, you'll find a hiking blog with subjects ranging from emergency water purification to the importance of sleeping in dry undies. Eagle cams, too. Watch baby eagles grow before your eyes. Lots of good stuff. Check it out. Facebook.com and search for AMC SEM Chapter. It's easy. Fun, too!

Super Turnout at SEM Open House

Our March 19, SEM Open House filled the Bourne Community Center's dining hall to the brim for an evening of socializing, sharing outdoor experiences, and feasting on a hearty pot luck meal. This was the second year in a row the Open House was held at the community center.

Our 38 registrants included not only recent new members but a few 'prospectives' whom we hope will join the chapter. There were also several long time members that enjoy AMC up north but had not previously engaged in our chapter's events, and even a returning member from last year's Open House. Our guests mixed with a dozen or so Board members and trip leaders who volunteered their time to offer encouragement, share experiences, and suggest ideas for getting started in the variety of outdoor trips we offer.

Our guests were treated to briefings on SEM's hiking, biking, and skiing trips as well as conservation and social events. A slide show of photographs taken at many of our events gave a visual backdrop to the briefings. Though the Knife Edge shots on Mt. Katahdin were intimidating to some, Thomas, the 14 year old in attendance, thought they were cool. Fortunately, the Knife Edge is optional!

Food was plentiful. It ranged from a zesty bean dip and salmon hors d'oeuvre to spiral ham and chili with assorted side dishes, salads, and mucho desserts. No one needed to leave famished.

Go the Distance at ALDHA Weekend

Interested in covering some serious ground? The Appalachian Long Distance Hiking Association will hold its annual gathering in North Adams, MA Oct. 7-9. For info about the group or the event, <http://www.aldha.org/index.htm/>.

Help us grow!

Are you a people person who likes to help others? Do you have some free time? SEM needs a Membership Committee Vice Chair. Help new and prospective members learn about SEM and how to participate in our chapter. Assist Chair in promoting SEM activities and take over as 2012 Membership Chair. For info, email Len at membershipchair@amcsem.org.

Leadership training shows class.

There was an excellent turnout for the annual leadership training workshop held March 26 at Borderland State Park. This training is a stepping stone for those SEM members seeking to qualify as volunteer AMC trip leaders. In spite of the cold weather, both the class members and instructors were able to manage smiles for the camera.

For info on the next workshop, please contact Len Ulbricht at membershipchair@amcse.org or 508-359-2250.

Wilderness First Aid Training 2011.

On the weekend of April 2-3, SEM held Wilderness First Aid, and CPR, training at the AMC Noble View Outdoor Center (amcberkshire.org/noble), in Western Mass. AMC's Noble View Outdoor Center sits high on a hilltop, with breathtaking views of the Pioneer Valley. Below, several participants soak up the beauty of nature.

SEM winter hiking 2011.

by Mike Woessner

On November 7, 2010, 26 people attended the SEM Winter Series Workshop. Presenters covered topics: winter hiking techniques, clothing, equipment, hydration, nutrition, and footwear. This half-day seminar was later followed by a series of three day hikes and then a two-night stay at the AMC Zealand Falls hut.

On December 4th, hikers got their first taste of winter hiking in the Blue Hills in Milton, MA. They hiked for about six miles stopping often to discuss concerns such as equipment, clothing, heat management, and nutrition. Although there was no snow, hikers got a feel for the amount of gear, water, and food that they would have to carry.

The next hike was scheduled for January 8th. As was to become the norm for this year's series, a snowstorm delayed the location and start of the hike. After the predicted storm in Massachusetts, hikers arrived at the trailhead to find very little snow. This hike was a 4.5 mile loop with a ridge walk between peaks Morgan and Persival in the Sandwich range of the White Mountains. As an added bonus, it snowed lightly on the hike back to the trailhead.

February 6th was the last day hike of the series. Two hikes were offered: Mt. Jackson on the Presidential Range (4052') and Mt. Cardigan (3155') in Orange, NH. Both groups of hikers got a chance to use crampons and other winter gear as there was no lack of snow in The Whites.

Finally the group was ready for the two-night overnight at Zealand Hut and once again a snowstorm changed the plan. A few hikers who had stayed in the Crawford Notch area were able to hike in Friday, February 25 and stay 2 nights. The rest had to wait for yet another storm to pass so that they could make it to the trailhead for an early start on Saturday. But, the weather was clear and not too cold as the remaining 13 headed up Zealand Road to the hut. Once there, 5 hearty hikers ventured out after a brief rest to climb up to Zealand Cliff where they were rewarded with spectacular views of the Pemi Wilderness. Afterwards everyone enjoyed a hearty meal of pasta, sauce, and garlic bread.

How to reduce your carbon footprint

By Susan Salmon

June is here and everything is green again. What a pleasure it is to enjoy the warm sunny days! With all that green surrounding us, it's a good time to start thinking about reducing our carbon footprints.

The term carbon footprint describes the impact our activities have on the environment, specifically as they relate to climate change from greenhouse gases. Burning fossil fuels, such as carbon dioxide (CO₂) for electricity, heating, transportation, etc. produce greenhouse gases. They trap heat in the atmosphere and are one of the reasons global warming has become a serious problem. Greenhouse gases have been on the rise since the Industrial Revolution but the rate has been increasing in recent years. Burning fossil fuels and deforestation are significant factors in the creation of greenhouse gases.

Our primary carbon footprint measures the emissions we personally create in large part from burning fuel to heat our homes and drive our cars, for the electricity we use, and even the long distance shipping of goods.

We are all familiar with ways to reduce our primary footprint and many of us have taken steps to do so. Turning off lights, TVs, computers, and game consoles when not in use is one of the simplest steps to take. Turning the heat down one degree and the air conditioning up a degree are also easy steps. Installing energy-saving light bulbs and hanging laundry to dry are other ways to reduce your primary carbon footprint. Other steps to take include running the washer and dishwasher only when full. A programmable thermostat set to turn the heat down at night and up in the morning will also help. Not only do these steps reduce fuel consumption but the electric and fuel bills will be less, too. If your refrigerator or freezer is more than 15 years old, you should consider buying new ones that have an energy efficiency rating of "A".

Many of us live in neighborhoods that are too far from the local shops to get there by walking. Try organizing your day to run errands in one trip. Plan meals for the week, write a list, and make one weekly trip for groceries. These two steps reduce the fuel used driving around town and they are also a more efficient use of your time.

Our secondary footprint is the indirect consumption of energy from the life cycle of purchased products. The life cycle of a product begins with harvesting and transporting raw materials, the manufacture and transport of the finished merchandise, to the eventual breakdown and discarding of the product. The more we buy the more emissions are created on our behalf at this secondary level.

There are many easy ways to reduce our secondary footprint, as well. It begins by making conscious purchasing choices. You can begin by using refillable water bottles instead of buying bottled water. The same goes for buying coffee—bring your own reusable travel mug. Buy locally grown produce from the local farm stands or farmers' markets. Local grocery stores also offer locally grown produce so it's getting easier and easier to make that choice. Try to avoid over-packaged products and buy recycled products.

There are similar choices to consider when remodeling a home. For instance, granite for countertops mined in your local region will have less impact on the environment simply by the shorter distance to transport the material. Granite from New Hampshire will have a smaller carbon footprint than granite imported from Italy or elsewhere. Hardwood floors can be made from reclaimed wood or from sustainably harvested wood. Bamboo and cork flooring are other environmentally friendly options.

If you'd like to calculate your carbon footprint, check out the two calculators the EPA offers on their website; one is for personal and the other is for your household's impact. Here are the links:

http://www.epa.gov/climatechange/emissions/ind_calculator2.html

Global warming may seem like an overwhelming problem to solve but each individual's choices can collectively make a difference. Like the saying says, "Think Globally, Act Locally." If people committed to caring for their little corner of the world imagine what a difference that would make globally. To quote another saying, "Be the change you'd like to see." Let's get started!

ANOTHER RLBH FINISHER!

Walt Granda is the first of the Thursday night Red Line the Blue Hills (RLBH) hikers to complete "green-lining" the Blue Hills. This means that Walt has hiked all 140 miles—every inch of every trail—of the Blue Hills three times! The first time he red-lined his map; the second time he blue-lined his map; and the third time he green-lined his map. What color is next?! He finished 3/18/11. Congrats to Walt!

CONSERVATION CORNER

by Joanne Jarzowski, Conservation Chair

SEM had a wonderful representation of members supporting the special “Earth Day” related events in April, including the 11th Annual Canal Clean-Up, DCR’s Park Serve Day, and Mass Audubon’s Volunteers to Work for Wildlife. Thanks to all our members and board for helping our friends and these treasured parks/areas we all enjoy.

SEM will be celebrating the second annual “Green June” with special conservation events throughout the month, including walks, talks, a whale watch, bikes, family outings, and paddles. Please visit the website (amcsem.org) or email the chair (conservationchair@amcsem.org) for details about those events.

The conservation committee is looking for volunteers; please email the chair if you’d like to join or if you’d like more information.

Subject: Gertrude Boyden Refuge

Greetings Friends,

As the current Chairman of the Taunton Conservation Commission, I wanted to express my gratitude for the assistance of members of your organization. On two separate occasions, some of your members have helped the TCC and the Friends of Boyden install several hundred feet of post and rail fencing at the Boyden Refuge. If you are not aware, the Boyden Refuge in Taunton is a public park and wildlife sanctuary of great beauty. This park plays host to many local events throughout the year and as a result of the hard work so freely given to us by AMC members, Barbara Hathaway, Kevin Mulligan, Chris Pellegrini and Bill Pellegrini we have been able to beautify it even further.

I am encouraged that organizations like yours exist. It may even be a good idea for you and your membership to consider the Boyden Refuge for any picnics or other events you may be planning in the future.

On behalf of the Taunton Conservation Commission, thank you and we look forward to working together again.

The Southeast Breeze

Quarterly newsletter of the Appalachian Mountain Club, Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter
Fall 2011 —September, October, November

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

For the past year, we have been talking about the proposed transition from the paper Breeze to the e-Breeze (electronic Breeze), and encouraging members to sign up for the e-Breeze. We also took a poll of the chapter membership to see how they felt about this proposed transition. We created an email address for responses and many of you took advantage of this opportunity to express your opinion. While there were some opposed to the transition, the overwhelming majority of responses were in favor of going electronic. We then provided a “snail mail” address so that any members without a computer could write a letter and use the US mail to express their opinion. We got no letters, and only one phone call.

So, as the SEM Executive Board is in favor of going electronic, and the majority of the membership is clearly in favor of going electronic, we have decided to make the transition. Hence, this will be your last paper Breeze! One advantage of going electronic is clearly that it is more green, saving paper and ink. Another advantage is financial. The printing and mailing costs for the paper Breeze are the single largest expenditure in the SEM budget. This money can now be devoted to creating additional programs and buying additional equipment for activities.

Unfortunately, when we make the transition, it won't be automatic—meaning you won't automatically receive an e-Breeze instead of a paper Breeze—UNLESS you are already on the e-Breeze list, in which case you don't have to do anything. To sign up, just go to the AMC Member Center and specify this preference. Instructions are in the box below.

We do realize that this may inconvenience the chapter members that do not own a computer. We encourage you to ask a friend or relative to download the e-Breeze for you. Or to visit your local library where you will find public-access computers (your local librarians are more than willing to teach and help you).

Finally, thank you for your understanding. We know that this will be a change, but it is a change for the better as your chapter moves forward and uses technology to its fullest advantage to better communicate with you. We have had a website for many years and we have recently started using Facebook and Twitter. Every month we use the new AMC Chapter-wide Messaging and now we'll use the Breeze more effectively for communication—the 12-page black and white restriction, that we currently have, will be lifted so we'll be able to include more features, more articles, and more of the pictures you send in.

This is an exciting time for the chapter as we move forward and make use of all the technology available to best communicate with our chapter membership! Be sure to go to the Member Center and sign up for the e-Breeze before November 15, so you receive the Winter Breeze on December 1.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: amcsem.org, Forms.

The Southeast Breeze, the newsletter of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter (SEM) of the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC), is published 4 times a year. Editor: Cheryl Lathrop, Asst. Editors: Duncan Kendall, Ann McSweeney, Proofreader: Kate Patroliia.

Painting and Cycling France 2011

by Daniel Egan

We were the monks of St. Hillaire: five artists, three from the left coast, two from the right coast, and one American bicyclist: moi. We stayed nine nights in the renovated Vieux Monastère of St. Hillaire de Villefranche, France, a converted monastery dating back to the twelfth century; one night in LaRoche –the gateway port village to the Isle of Re; and several nights in Paris in rented flats on the right bank, minutes from the Louvre and Notre Dame. The occasion was the Ninth Annual Painters Retreat (June 9 to June 20) conducted by Dan Cooney, adjunct Professor of Art at Bridgewater State College.

In Cognac I biked through 10 miles of grape vines to find an upscale limestone-block, Beacon-Hill-type town with high-end stores in a pedestrian open air mall that had been created on two of the town's oldest streets. In St. John d'Angelay there were miles of wheat fields akin to the Canadian wheat belt.

At Marennes on the Atlantic Ocean, we pedaled by five miles of salt water marshlands with grazing bulls and cows; in Saintes, I biked the Roman ruins and in St. Savien found colorful row houses of limestone built on a canal with a medieval feudal castle perched atop the town. I biked the Charente River Valley, a medieval waterway of trade and in LaRoche I rolled through a harbor with thousands of docked sailboats. Then I biked the Canal Ourcq from Charles DeGaulle to downtown Paris. On my final three days in Paris I biked most of its 12 square miles. Weary pedestrians stole covetous glances at my road bike as I rolled through the courtyards of the Louvre, the Latin Quarter, Marais, Montmartre, Jardin de Tuileries, Jardin de Luxembourg, Place de la Concorde, the Sorbonne, the Pantheon, the Eiffel Tower, the Arc de Triomphe, the Champs Elysees, Notre Dame Cathedral, the Isle of St. Louis and l'Île de la Cité.

Icelandic Air transported my bike in a "houssier," a homemade reusable bag constructed of a blue tarp, masking tape and velcro fasteners. The bag served me well on the TGV high speed train which only allows bagged or boxed bikes. In a backpack, I carried my bare bones wardrobe of mostly lightweight synthetics.

The trip from downtown Paris to LaRoche three hundred miles to the southwest took only 3 hours. The train clipped along at 100 miles an hour through the bucolic, rolling French countryside- a patchwork of golden wheat and verdant green fields.

We witnessed a Paris-wide music festival the first day of summer as neighborhoods broke into beer-swilling block parties celebrating the arrival of their vacation season. A street away from my fourth-floor walk-up apartment, a ten piece brass ensemble pumped up the rowdy crowd to the wee hours.

The photos below may give you a taste of the landscape and a flavor for the artists' talents. However, to savor the French cuisine and the wine we enjoyed, you would have had to have been there. We invite you to the Paint France 2012.

Adventure Leadership Training

The AMC Adventure Travel Program is preparing for the 2011 Leadership Training on November 18-20, 2011. This workshop provides important training to people who have AMC activity leadership experience (no beginners) to transition from leading weekend chapter activities to more complex and longer trips, both domestically and overseas. Previous outdoor leadership training is highly desirable. Emphasis is on planning, cost estimating, trip management, people skills, and risk management. Includes procedures and guidelines for researching, proposing, and leading Adventure Travel trips. Exchange ideas, problems, and solutions with some of the AMC's most skilled leaders. For more information, email Colleen Yout (cyout@outdoors.org).

Winter Hiking Workshop Scheduled

Attention three-season hikers! A Winter Hiking Workshop will be held this year from 1–5pm at the Ramada Inn in Seekonk, MA and is a great way to learn how to extend your hiking into winter. Topics include snowshoes, boots, clothing, equipment, day hiking, and overnight backpacking. This is the kick-off event to our annual Winter Hiking Series! The hiking committee will be offering a series of hikes and an overnight backpack to acquaint the 3-season hiker with the pleasures of winter hiking. Enjoy the workshop, then stay for dinner and the SEM Annual Meeting. Please register with the hikingchair@amcsem.org. Space is limited so sign up early! [How'd you find out where it was located?]

Got a little free time to help us grow?

Volunteers Needed

Are you a people person who likes to help others? Are you concerned about environmental issues? Do you enjoy outdoor activities? Do you have some free time?

If this sounds like you, then you may be interested in some opportunities to help our chapter of the AMC grow and better accomplish its mission. Get in touch with us and we'll be happy to tell you more.

Bicycling Chair. The SEM Chapter is looking for a dedicated person to run our Bicycling committee. This position includes running planning meetings, attending monthly Executive Board Meetings, and other various Chair responsibilities. Please contact Jim Plouffe chair@amcsem.org 508.586-1394.

Chapter Vice Chair. The SEM Chapter is looking for a dedicated person to be our Chapter Vice Chair. This position will support the Chapter Chair and hopefully succeed the Chapter Chair after his term is up. Please contact Jim Plouffe chair@amcsem.org, 508-586-1394.

Chapter Treasurer. The SEM Chapter is looking for a dedicated person to be our Treasurer. This position includes managing the operating accounts of the chapter, attending monthly Board Meetings, and other responsibilities. Please contact Jim Plouffe chair@amcsem.org 508.586-1394.

Education Chair. The SEM Chapter is looking for a dedicated person to run our Education committee. This position includes running educational programs, attending monthly Executive Board Meetings, and other various responsibilities. Please contact Jim Plouffe chair@amcsem.org 508.586-1394.

Membership Chair. SEM Chapter is looking for a dedicated person to run our Membership Committee. This position includes evaluating membership data, attending monthly Executive Board Meetings, and other various responsibilities. Please contact Jim Plouffe chair@amcsem.org 508.586-1394.

Hike Leaders. Cape Hikes is looking for cheerful, energetic individuals to become hike leaders. The amount of participation is entirely up to you. Our hikes are two to four hours in length and encompass Provincetown to Falmouth. The requirements to become a leader are co-leading two or more hikes and attending a one-day training session. Our present leaders are very willing to assist you in co-leading any one of our present hikes. You have enjoyed being a hike participant in the past, so why not consider becoming a leader and get more involved in a great organization - AMC. Please contact capehikingchair@amcsem.org.

Leave No Trace

by Susan Salmon

Most outdoors people have heard of “Leave No Trace” but do you really know what it means or where it came from? The Leave No Trace (LNT) principles were developed in cooperation with the U.S. Forest Service, National Park Service, Bureau of Land Management, and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service over concerns the impact of the increasing number of people were having on wilderness or semi-wilderness areas. All that human activity would destroy the very characteristics that make the areas attractive and irreparably harm native species. The seven principles are:

1. Plan Ahead and Prepare: Know the regulations and concerns for the area you'll visit.
2. Travel and Camp on Durable Surfaces: Stick to trails and remember: good trails and campsites are found, not made.
3. Dispose of Waste Properly: Pack it in, pack it out.
4. Leave What You Find: Leave rocks, plants, and other natural objects as you find them.
5. Minimize Campfire Impacts: Where fires are permitted, use established fire rings.
6. Respect Wildlife: Observe wildlife from a distance and never feed them.
7. Be Considerate of Other Visitors: Respect other visitors and protect the quality of their experience.

While each individual may have an insignificant impact, imagine what the cumulative impact would be if hundreds or thousands of individuals dropped orange peels or apple cores, picked flowers, or trampled off the trail. Although peels and cores are biodegradable, they shouldn't be left behind; if you leave them out in the open, they'll be an eyesore, and if you bury them, something will probably dig them up. And you definitely don't want to risk seeds germinating and introducing a new species to the area.

Stick to established trails as much as possible, where your footprints will do the least harm. If the trail is narrow, walk single-file instead of side by side. If you come to a muddy section in a trail, walk through it rather than stepping to the side and walking around. If your boots can't handle a little mud, you wore the wrong shoes!

Relieving oneself in the wilderness also has a significant impact. It is unsightly and unsanitary to come across an area that has been used by many people. To minimize your impact, urinate at least a few dozen feet from any trails, and well away from water sources used by wildlife or fellow campers. Try to avoid urinating directly on plants; preferably do it in a spot where it will either quickly dry on the rocks or be soaked into the soil.

Feces should be buried, at least 200 feet from water sources. Bring a garden trowel with you, so you can dig a "cat hole" to bury it in, at least six inches deep and wide enough that you won't fill it up. Fill the hole back up and "disguise" it when you're done. Human waste is especially distracting to wildlife and is also a potential source of disease. Use unscented toilet paper as sparingly as you can, and either pack it out in sealable baggies or bury it along with the feces.

Following the Leave No Trace principles goes a long way in preserving our natural resources. It's also a courtesy to the people who'll be visiting the same place the next day or week, giving them a chance to experience it the same way you did.

Save the date! The Fall Gathering, hosted by the Boston chapter, will be held October 14–16 in Nature's Classroom at the Sargent Center, Hancock, NH. More details to follow at <http://www.amcsem.org/fallGathering.html>

Quarterly newsletter of the Appalachian Mountain Club, Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter
Winter 2011/2012 — December, January, February

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

It's been one year; one year since I accepted the position as Chapter Chair for the Chapter. It is the ultimate of volunteer positions, in this type of club. While some volunteers give up a Saturday here or there and some volunteers lead a hike or a bike or a paddle, once in a while, this position, as Chapter Chair, has me running regular meetings, planning club wide events, coordinating weekend events, attending other meetings, annual dinners, retreats, and many other things that take up time. The work as a Chapter Chair goes beyond these "time taking" events and includes the time it takes to prepare agendas, write articles, and collect paperwork and other less noticeable but important tasks that take place behind the scenes. I tell you this, not to pat myself on the back, because I don't really need the pat on the back. I enjoy doing this type of work and find it rewarding just to see that I can make a difference in my microcosm.

I have told you this because last night I sat in a room with ~~my~~ Executive Board and conducted a meeting that will hopefully bring this Chapter forward in the year 2012. At this meeting, I was looking around and realized that for every minute I spend planning, executing and attending my meetings and events, the people in front of me, acting in their volunteer capacity, spent an equal amount of time doing their best to try and achieve the same goals and intentions that I strive to accomplish.

In the first sentence of the previous paragraph, I put quotation marks around the word ~~my~~ because I want to point out that while a Chapter Chair is the chief executive of the Chapter, the board is actually run by the other volunteers who make up the Executive Board. Their work in creating events and programs, attending meetings, publishing newsletters, planning hikes, bikes and paddles, running pot-luck dinners and similar events, actually makes this Chapter work, and work efficiently at that. So, I would argue, it isn't ~~my~~ Executive Board, but rather, I am ~~their~~ Chair. Without them, this chapter wouldn't be successful and hence I wouldn't be.

This has been a long and drawn out way to say Thank You to the SEM Executive Board that I worked with for the past year and an advance Thank You to the new SEM Executive Board that assembled last night. Thank You.

Our Executive Board Meetings are open to anyone who wishes to attend. Our next meeting will be held at the Bourne Community Center on March 14, 2012 and you are welcome to attend. We usually meet at 6:00 PM for a bite to eat and officially start the meeting at 6:30 PM. Contact me at Chair@amcsem.org and I'll add you to our e-mail list for board notifications.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

SEM CHAPTER HUT WEEKEND

By Susan Salmon

The annual SEM September Chapter Hut Weekend (CHW) at Cold River Camp was a great success again this year. We had the biggest turnout yet with 65 people attending the 4-day event. Lots of activities were planned for all levels of ability and interests. There was even a demonstration on how to bake using a reflector oven in front of a fire. The cornbread was delicious!

Cold River Camp (CRC) is a volunteer-managed, family-oriented, full-service facility of the Appalachian Mountain Club. CRC is located within the quiet and peaceful Evans Notch Valley on Rte. 113 in Chatham, NH. First built as a church camp, the original buildings were purchased by the AMC in 1919 with additional cabins added later, and campers still share the quiet and simple times of the camp's beginnings. While many choose to hike within Evans Notch, others venture further into the nearby Presidential and Mahoosuc ranges. For canoeists and kayakers, the nearby Androscoggin and Saco Rivers offer daylong adventures and the quiet rural roads invite joggers and bikers. Guests looking for other activities will find many antique shops in nearby towns, as well as the outlet malls and a golf course in neighboring North Conway.

The 25 cabins of various sizes accommodate from 1-6 guests. Each cabin has a kerosene lamp, bureau, closet, linens (summer season only) and most have fireplaces. There is a recreation hall for evening programs or a game of ping pong. You'll find a library for quiet reading and relaxation, where a woodstove provides warmth on chilly evenings, and a library table that offers space for writing or the use of your computer. There are three bathhouses, which are handicapped accessible, offering hot showers and toilets, as well as a drying room. Conant Lodge, the main gathering spot of the camp, is where two delicious meals are served daily. Early morning coffee is always available and each camper makes up his or her own lunch from a bountiful lunch buffet in the morning. All are welcomed on brisk mornings or cool evenings to a fire in the large, stone fireplace. A teahouse, located along a scenic trail on the camp grounds, provides a delightful spot to read, paint, or enjoy a cup of tea.

The camp gates opened Thursday at noon with people arriving throughout the day and evening. It was a day to relax, settle in, and enjoy the first of the daily social hours and hearty meals. A hike and a kayak trip took place Friday morning. A group of seven kayaked Kezar Pond in Fryeberg, ME. Although the day was overcast, they enjoyed the still water paddle and found a sandy beach to stop for lunch. The sun broke through during lunch and they finished the trip in sunshine. Along the way, they saw a bald eagle perched in a tree and some trees in brilliant fall foliage. Fourteen people went on the Mount Meader hike. It was a 6.7 mile hike to the summit at 2782'. The first section of the hike was fairly level offering great views of the pond and mountains overlooking Basin Pond. After passing Hermit Falls, the trail alternated between easy sections and some steeper areas until the summit was reached.

Most people arrived Friday throughout the day and everyone enjoyed the evening festivities. The social hour started things off with complimentary wine, beer, and soft drinks, as well as, various appetizers. After dinner there was a camp fire to gather round and an outdoor showing of the movie "A Bug's Life" to watch. Others gathered in the lodge for friendly conversation.

We were up early Saturday morning to make our lunches and eat a big breakfast. We were soon ready to embark on the day's activities. One group hiked Caribou Mountain, a 6.9 mile hike to the summit at 2840'. Although the trail was wet and muddy from the rain the night before, there were great views of Kees Falls and the valley below. Another group hiked up South Baldface, about an 8 mile hike to the summit at 3570'. Although it was overcast and foggy, there was plenty of colorful mushrooms and foliage to take in. The emerald pool was also a scenic side trip off the main trail. The group wasn't able to summit because of the wet, slippery conditions on the ledges but everyone enjoyed the hike and returned safely.

The kayak trip took place on the Saco River from the Route 113 bridge to Canal Bridge in Fryeberg, ME. The seven mile paddle started under misty skies and the ten paddlers were off in a very slow current. There was a portage around Swan Falls after which the current picked up. Soon after the falls, they found a sandy beach to stop for lunch. The sun peeped in and out the rest of the paddle for a pleasant finish.

The Saturday night outdoor movie was "Southbound", a movie about a young woman's experience hiking the Appalachian Trail.

After another hearty breakfast Sunday morning, we cleaned up, packed up, and headed home. A vote was taken and once again, everyone chose to come back to Cold River Camp. Hope we see you there next year!

THREE FINISH THE FORTY-EIGHT !

Kevin Mulligan, Leslie Carson, and Ken Jones (left) completed hiking their 48th 4000-footer of "The 48" on Saturday, October 8, 2011. Owl's Head was their final peak to summit. Congrats to them all! What a feat!

The term Four-Thousand Footers (or "4Ks") refers to a group of forty-eight mountains in New Hampshire at least 4,000 feet (1,219 meters) above sea level. To qualify a peak must also meet a more technical criterion of topographic prominence important in the mountaineering sport of peak-bagging. Most often, the term "four-thousand footers" refers to the White Mountains Four-Thousand-Footers List established (and revised from time to time) by the Appalachian Mountain Club.

THOUGHTS FROM THE THREE "48" FINISHERS...

KEVIN'S QUEST FOR THE 48: I joined the AMC 3 years ago in order to meet some new friends and get back into shape. Hiking was something I never did before, but it looked interesting and I wanted to give it a try. I met Ken and Leslie on my very first hike, and I will never forget that weekend as we spent two nights camping in frigid conditions on Mt. Greylock. I made it through stage 1 hypothermia, completely exhausted myself getting to the top, and learned everything about "what not to do" Despite those learning experiences, I was blessed with deep friendships and I was hooked. I immediately started hiking in the Blue Hills and met my partner in crime, Sue Salmon. We climbed many of those mountains together, and the rest is history. For me, it was the process. If we made it to the top, that was icing on the cake. Being with friends and experiencing every one of the 48 peaks for their own unique beauty is what it is all about. As luck would have it, I was fortunate enough to share the last peak with those same people that I first started out with on Greylock that cold November day 3 years prior. It does not get any better than that. Thank you all and I look forward to new adventures. Keep climbing!

LESLIE'S QUEST FOR THE 48: At age 50 I joined AMC thinking that I would like to do some hiking, since none of my friends and family would hike with me. My first hike was the Appalachian trail in western Mass. I LOVED it and met some great people. They encouraged me to join other hikes, some of which were 4000 footers in the White Mtns. Once I hiked a few, people started talking about "the 48 4K footers". At first, I had no idea of what they were talking about, but I started adding a few dates of my hikes to the list in the back of the White Mountain Guide. Then in earnest, I started keeping track of what I was doing and decided I would give myself until the age of 60 to finish them. I usually hiked twice a month year round and when I became a leader, I decided to lead hikes to the mountains I hadn't climbed so I could add them to the list. This past winter (2011) I realized I had only a few more to go, so scheduled the hikes to finish. Hurricane Irene almost interfered with me completing the 48 but fortunately, several of us were able to re-schedule for Columbus Day weekend and finally finish together. What a great accomplishment (ahead of time)! Now on to the New England 67 and beyond!

KEN'S QUEST FOR THE 48: I started my 4000 footer trek with Lafayette and Lincoln back in 1994 with no real ambition on completing them. Friends just told me it was just the best hike ever. They were right and I was hooked. The problem with the NH 48 is that there are so many great summits but I guess that's not a problem at all. The problem is the last dozen or so are not up on a ridge, there are no spectacular views, and a few are just drudgery. I never felt the urge to climb them. As I would find out however, these last summits all had their own unique characters that I will always remember. As Father Time marched on and the big 60 came and went, I was encourage by Leslie and Kevin to get cracking. With Owls Head penciled in this September as our #48, there was no turning back. Irene pushed us into October giving me a little more time to finish, and the leaves were turning giving us all a little more incentive to head north. Owls Head was another unique opportunity, with great friends, challenging river crossings, a slide like I've never seen and some wonderful hiking by moonlight. A long day but an experience and view of Franconia Ridge that I will remember always. Thanks for the push!

SEM's NEW COMMITTEE: "Family Events"

The Family Events Committee brings AMC families together by offering outdoor adventures suitable for adults and children of all ages. By participating in our events, families can learn about and enjoy regional natural resources, as well as meet other families who have the same interests.

Our annual activities have included themed hikes, apple picking, and cookouts. Our famous Cookies and Eggnog hike in Borderland State Park is a favorite. This is a relatively new program for the SEM Chapter but we are planning to expand our list of activities.

The Family Events Committee of SEM AMC is led by dedicated volunteers who keep us connected through the planning of trips and posting of information through our email list. Join us on one of our upcoming adventures. There are other families ready to share the outdoors with you!

SEM Annual Meeting & Dinner

On Saturday, November 5, SEM held its Annual Meeting and Dinner, at Salerno's Function Hall in Onset, MA. We first held our business meeting where we elected the 2012 Executive Board. Then we had a delicious buffet dinner and birthday cake. And our guest speaker was Hylton Haynes of the New England Forestry Foundation who spoke on forestry in New England versus other parts of the world.

This year, it was also SEM's 35th birthday celebration! Read about the history of our chapter's creation at:

Distinguished Service Award (DSA)

At the 2011 SEM Annual Meeting, Cheryl Lathrop received the SEM chapter's Distinguished Service Award (DSA). Cheryl is currently in her 4th year as Communications Chair and Member of the Executive Board. She (and her staff) manages our chapter website, Breeze newsletter, email blasts, brochures, social networking, short notice list, calendar, and annual report. Most notably during the last couple of years, Cheryl brought the chapter into the 21st century by eliminating all paper communications, and going totally electronic. She also introduced the chapter to social networking with the creation of a Facebook page and a Twitter account. In addition, she managed the conversion of the old website to a new modern website that conforms to AMC templates. Cheryl is also a hike leader and active 4-season hiker. Please congratulate Cheryl Lathrop as the 2011 recipient of this chapter award.

Take a Long Hike

Hello fellow hikers. I'm Ray Anderson, and I've been asked to write a column for The Breeze. I've been a member of AMC for many years, but because I haven't been off hiking somewhere, this has been my first year as an active chapter member. I plan to write about chapter events and anything to do with hiking. If you have questions, or any input on what I do here, I'd love to hear from you. Just email me at rknuteson@aol.com

What follows is a recap of a very pleasant AMC night this October.

Want to do something different? Want something exhilarating you can do with your family? Then consider hiking under a full moon. This is what I did on a recent Appalachian Mountain Club hike.

Regular chapter members and, in some cases, their spouses and children joined us. This time we met at Borderland State Park in No. Easton, Massachusetts. During the winter's full moons, we plan to hike/walk at other scenic spots. I may suggest Wompatuck State Park, in Hingham, or the Ponkapoag Pond trail at Blue Hills.

It was a beautiful night on Tuesday, October 11th, as we hiked around a large pond and through open meadows, with a full moon showing the way. We had headlamps in case the moon clouded over, but it remained clear, and we were able to see the gentle path before us.

Early on, we had seen a deer in the meadow. The beautiful animal fixed an eye on us, and we looked at the deer for a long minute, all under a full moon. I wished I could have taken a picture but it was too dark, and I didn't have the right equipment.

We had split into two separate groups with different leaders to make it easy for everyone to stay together. Walt Granda led one group, and Bob Vogel, the other. There was chatter in our group, and there was also time for reflection. We were a content and happy bunch.

Once, our leader, Bob, suggested we be absolutely quiet and still for several minutes. We did so and tried to listen to nature and drink up the sounds of night. Truthfully, we heard nothing as we all peered at the moon. I do believe we would have heard sounds of nature if we could have stilled a little longer.

It started to get cold, and we circled back to our starting point. Everyone enjoyed a pleasant evening and looked forward to the next full moon. Have any of you ever done something like this?

See you next time.

Another RLBH finisher!

We have another RLBH finisher! On October 15, Nancy Coote finished red-lining her map. This means that she has hiked every trail (140 miles) in the Blue Hills! Way to go Nancy! Congrats! That's a whole lotta hiking!

And yet another RLBH finisher!

We have yet another RLBH finisher! On September 17, Michael Swartz finished green-lining his map. This means that he has hiked every trail (140 miles) in the Blue Hills three times! The first time red-lining, the second time blue-lining, and the third time green-lining the trails on his map. Next up? Orange-lining!

In addition to color-lining his map, Michael also is working on white-lining his map—hiking all the trails in the Blue Hills in official winter (~Dec. 22~Mar.22).

Michael is one of the three co-leaders of this popular Thursday night hiking series.

WILDERNESS FIRST AID CLASS, November, 2011

RED LINE THE BLUE HILLS

2011 WRAP-UP

The popular Thursday night hiking series, Red Line the Blue Hills, had a great 6th year! This group tries to hike all trails in the Blue Hills—all 140 miles of them—and marks their map with a red marker (red-lining). The first time around is red; second is blue; third is green; and fourth is orange. (Yes, lots of other people show up just for fun, as it is a lively social group with its own website, summer picnic, and year-end finale dinner.)

The RLBH series also includes two standard all-day Saturday hikes: A Skyline Trail end-to-end hike (followed by a hike to the Blue Hills Brewery) and a Fowl Meadow hike (to mark off all of Fowl Meadow in the fall after the bugs die).

There were 2 “green” finishers this year – Walt Granda (March 18) and Michael Swartz (September 17). They are both now onto orange-lining.

There were 25 scheduled hikes; 1 rain cancel (this “hike” was moved to the Suffolk Grill); 1 potluck summer picnic at the Blue Hills pavilion; and 1 season end dinner at the Fat Cactus. There were a total of 94 different hikers, and 50 people hiked 3 or more hikes. The hike with the most mileage was the Summer Solstice Hike—6 miles. And 180 people are on the mailing list! (Luckily they don’t all show up at once.)

Vernal Pools

By Sue Salmon

Vernal Pools are temporary bodies of water often found in shallow depressions, which fill in the spring (vernal means spring). They are formed by the collection of precipitation, runoff, and rising groundwater. Since they are temporary, fish cannot become established making the pools good habitats for many species to reproduce. To be considered a vernal pool, these temporary pools must also support specific animal species, called Indicator Species. Indicator Species are animals that rely completely on vernal pools for part of their lifecycle. The wood frog, spadefoot toad, two types of fairy shrimp, and four species of mole salamander are all indicator species.

Heavy rains in April and May bring out wood frogs, salamanders, and other amphibians. They travel from their winter habitat in the nearby forest to vernal pools for breeding. If conditions are just right on an early spring night, you might see mole salamanders or wood frogs making the migration. The right conditions include temperatures in the 40s, thawed ground, light wind, rain, and darkness. Migration may occur over several days if the conditions remain favorable.

The vernal pool is relatively short lived and the developing offspring must race to develop beyond their need for the water before the pool dries up. Many become food before they make it out and others die in the overheated shallows of the disappearing pool. They become food for birds, snakes, and mammals, such as raccoons or shrews. Spotted turtles eat the egg masses of spotted salamanders, in addition to, insects and amphibian larvae. Those that make it to maturity and survive the return to the forest, come back to the vernal pool to continue the life cycle.

Seasons of a Vernal Pool

In early spring a vernal pool comes alive with amphibian migration, mating, egg laying and hatching. By late spring, the animals are growing fast. Tadpoles have legs, fairy shrimp mate and die and their eggs fall to the bottom of the pool. Beetles, bugs, midges, worms, and crustaceans are at peak numbers.

By summer, the water level declines, temperature increases, and oxygen decreases. Amphibians finish their metamorphosis and leave the pool. Diving beetles dart through the water and striders skate on the surface.

Worms and some midges still remain by early autumn in muddy puddles. On rainy nights, marbled salamanders come to breed. Females dig nests, lay eggs and remain until the pool starts to fill.

Under the ice in late winter, the pool is full of life. When the ice and snow melt and the pool fills, the cycle begins again.

Vernal pools are protected in Massachusetts by regulations, the primary one being the Wetlands Protection Act. If you think you might have a vernal pool on your property, contact your town's conservation agent to ask for assistance in getting the pool certified. Once certified, the state regulations and local bylaws can be applied to provide protection for the vernal pool ecosystem from such things like development, cutting down trees, or filling in the pool.

Appalachian Mountain Club Announces Publication of AMC Guide to Outdoor Digital Photography

By Jerry Monkman
Paperback • $19.95

The Appalachian Mountain Club is pleased to announce the release of the AMC Guide to Outdoor Digital Photography.

Written by professional photographer Jerry Monkman, this book is designed for outdoorspeople eager to expand their photography skills, or experienced photographers looking to hone technique shooting adventure and nature subjects. Monkman serves as coach and guide each step of the way, from packing gear and finding inspiration to taking great shots and editing photos in the “digital darkroom”.

AMC Guide to Outdoor Digital Photography features fundamental techniques and concepts that every outdoor photographer needs to know. Using easy-to-follow instructions, case studies, and expert advice, Monkman covers essential gear and gear safety, telling stories with photos, the special challenges of shooting in different conditions, perfecting composition and exposure, processing images using editing software, and the ever-important undertaking of keeping those digital photographs organized and safe.

This must-have guide will expand your creativity and your skill set as you head out on your next adventure with camera in hand.

Inside you’ll find:

- Accessible techniques for new and experienced photographers
- Comprehensive coverage of the photography process
- Tips and advice for shooting in all conditions, weather, and seasons
- Crisp, large, full-color photographs
- Digital darkroom techniques
- Case studies with detailed explanations
- Digital resources appendix

About the AMC

Founded in 1876, the Appalachian Mountain Club is the oldest conservation and recreation organization in the nation. With over 100,000 members, advocates, and supporters; 16,000 volunteers; and over 450 full-time and seasonal staff in the Northeast and beyond, the nonprofit AMC promotes the protection, enjoyment, and understanding of the mountains, forests, waters, and trails of the Appalachian region. The AMC supports natural resource conservation while encouraging responsible recreation, based on the philosophy that successful, long-term conservation depends upon first-hand enjoyment of the natural environment.

Updates on AMC's New President Search and Vision 2020

Andy Falender to Retire

As many of you are aware, AMC President Andy Falender will retire in January 2012 after nearly 23 years as first executive director and more recently president of the Appalachian Mountain Club. The search for a new AMC President is well under way. Bridgespan, our search consultant, has interviewed more than 100 people across the country. The Search Committee has reviewed over three dozen resumes and has interviewed over a dozen strong candidates. We are now in "second round" interviews with several people, and Bridgespan continues to bring strong, new candidates to our attention. We believe we are on track to have a new President in place around the start of the new year, but our primary focus is finding the best candidate possible for AMC. For details on the search for a new President, see www.outdoors.org/presidentsearch.

AMC invites you to celebrate the achievements of President Andy Falender at our Annual Meeting, Saturday evening, January 28, 2012 at the John F. Kennedy Library in Boston! To register for this event, visit www.outdoors.org/FarewellAndy.

Vision 2020

Following much hard work and the extensive input from AMC chapters, individual volunteers and members, staff, and AMC's Board of Advisors, AMC has launched Vision 2020, a plan encompassing four strategic initiatives to guide us in the coming decade:

- 1. Build a Vibrant and Diverse Community of 500,000 Constituents including more families and young professionals. We will develop local partnerships that broaden our diversity and reflect our region, and build communities online that reach new audiences.
- 2. Help 500,000 Kids Get Outdoors giving them transformative outdoor experiences available through AMC's Youth Opportunities Program, our destinations near urban areas and "close to home" family activities through our chapters and local partnerships. We will make our huts and lodges even more inviting to families. AMC will advocate for local, state, and national policy in support of getting young people outside.
- 3. Lead Regional Action on Trails, Land Protection, and Engaging Youth in Conservation by protecting and maintaining 2,500 miles of trails, protecting an additional 2 million acres from development, and growing our river and waterway expertise and involvement. We will build our capacity to offer professional trails assistance to other organizations and expand teen trail crew opportunities. We will offer opportunities for our constituents to reduce their recreation-driven carbon footprint.
- 4. Broaden the Impact of AMC's Maine Woods Initiative on the 100 Mile Wilderness by building on our experience and perspective as a land owner in Maine to make our Maine lodging and program operations financially self-sustaining, support local economic development, and protect 800,000 additional acres. Look for more recreational opportunities that promote the 100-Mile Wilderness region as a world-class destination for outdoor recreation.

PADDLES

For info on SEM canoe & kayak trips, check AMC Outdoors, visit amcsem.org, use the online trip listing system: trips.outdoors.org, (set Committee to "canoe/kayak", set Chapter to "Southeastern MA").

We're done for the winter. But, watch the trip listings for our spring re-start. We'll have a lot of nice trips planned for you!

THAT'S ALL FOLKS!

This was your first issue of the AMC SEM totally electronic Breeze. No more paper Breezes. We'll save $7,000/year by not printing and mailing paper Breezes—and that money can be applied to more efficient and modern chapter communications as well as chapter activities.

 Think green - If you print your Breeze, please recycle it when done.

The Southeast Breeze

Monthly newsletter of the Appalachian Mountain Club, Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter January, 2012

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

As you know, our chapter newsletter, The Southeast Breeze, is now totally electronic. And, if you look at the masthead of this Breeze, you'll notice that it doesn't indicate the usual season and 3-month time span. That's because the chapter has embarked on a pilot program to publish the Breeze monthly, rather than quarterly. You'll find all the same great articles and pictures that you're used to seeing. And you'll find the usual 3-month trip listings (so you can plan ahead).

We only have 650 people receiving the electronic Breeze out of ~3000 chapter memberships. That's about 1/6 of our membership. Due to SPAM laws/rules, neither the chapter nor Joy St. can change people's preference from the paper-Breeze (which is no more) to the electronic-Breeze. Each member must make the change themselves, by either logging into the AMC "Member Center" [<http://www.outdoors.org/membercenter>] or by calling Donna of AMC Member Services, at 800-372-1758 (9-5, M – F).

I encourage everyone to share this copy of your Breeze with your other AMC friends, and encourage them to use the url or phone number I've just mentioned to convert their newsletter preference from paper (which is no more) to electronic. That way they won't miss any more issues of The Breeze and it'll be delivered directly into their email inbox!

Our leaders have some great ski trips planned for you this winter—both cross country and downhill. And also great hikes and bikes. See the activity listings at the end of this newsletter. AND GET OUTSIDE!

DID YOU SEE OUR BRAND NEW WEBSITE! WWW.AMCSEM.ORG

The Breeze is now totally electronic! It's now the "e-Breeze" !

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: amcsem.org, Forms.

The Southeast Breeze, the newsletter of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter (SEM) of the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC), is published 12 times a year. Editor: Cheryl Lathrop, Asst. WILDERNESS FIRST AID (WFA)

AMC NOBEL VIEW CAMP, RUSSELL, MA

APRIL 28 & 29

WFA training (instruction by SOLO, see <http://www.soloschools.com/index.cfm?event=course.wfa>) is again offered this spring at Noble View camp (<http://www.outdoors.org/lodging/cabins-campgrounds/camps-noble.cfm>). This training is required for SEM's level 2-5 hikers with re-certification every two years. Optional CPR instruction also offered. Scholarships are available for committed SEM leaders and leaders-to-be to defray training costs. This is a popular program and fills up quickly. Register with Len Ulbricht at lenu44@gmail.com. Registration cutoff April 7. SEMers given preference if registered by January 31.

SEM'S SPRING SOCIAL WEEKEND

AMC NOBEL VIEW CAMP, RUSSELL, MA

APRIL 28 & 29

A cabin and several campsites (see <http://www.outdoors.org/lodging/cabins-campgrounds/camps-noble.cfm>) have been reserved for a SEM social weekend of hiking, biking and whatever. (This event is concurrent with, but independent of, WFA training.) Please join us for a fun weekend to kick off the 2012 warm weather season of outdoor recreation. Register with Len Ulbricht at lenu44@gmail.com by April 7.

–AMC's Noble View Outdoor Center sits high on a hilltop, with breathtaking views of the Pioneer valley, miles of hiking trails, and camping and cabin accommodations. Its 358.5 acres of rural solitude maintain the ambiance of the original 1800s New England farm. Surrounded by 117,000 acres of forest, rivers, and streams, Noble View offers a habitat for many threatened and endangered species, and is an ideal site for outdoor activities, nature study, and photography.”

Take a Long Hike

Hello fellow hikers. At the November winter hiking workshop, we learned the basics of hiking in winter. Here are some pointers from our AMC-SEM experts.

- 1) Dress in layers.
- 2) Fleece is best for warmth. And if fleece gets wet, it still insulates. Down is warm, but useless when wet.
- 3) Don't dress too warm while you are moving; save your warmest clothing for when you stop moving. Your sweat needs to be wicked away. If you are covered in a puffy down jacket while moving, you trap all that moisture.
- 4) Keep food handy, bite sized, and ready to eat. You will burn an enormous amount of energy and need to snack often. Cut bite-size portions ahead of time, and keep in baggies or in containers you can unscrew with gloves.
- 5) Store your water bottle upside-down. Water freezes at the top; when you turn the bottle right-side up, you won't have ice.
- 6) Fasten pull-ties on those little zipper handles. When you void, you can keep your gloves on. And when you snack, you can keep your gloves on as you unzip pockets. Use shoelace, trash bag ties, anything.
- 7) Add Tang or Gatorade to water to reduce the freezing point. You need to drink extra liquids. It seems counter-intuitive when it's cold, but you will sweat a lot. A flavoring added to water also adds taste.
- 8) Pack a small container of glasses/goggles anti-fog stuff.
- 9) Bring a spare hat; pack extra gloves and socks. The wind may sail your hat; you may not be able to retrieve it. You could drop a glove in a stream.
- 10) Wear gaiters. They will keep snow from getting into your boots. Your socks stay dry.
- 11) Keep spare batteries covered and in a pocket so that they are warm and ready, if needed.

The trick is to stay dry, and keeping warm is a function of keeping dry. We were shown all types of clothing as well as footwear. We looked at snow shoes and discussed traction systems like crampons and microspikes. We learned a lot, and now many of us will join each other in the chapter's Annual Winter Hiking Series. Happy Trails!

NEWS FROM OUR MEMBERS: Carolyn Crowell

—created the first archives and kept them up to date for several years. I finally gave up the job because I felt someone else should have the opportunity to be on the Board, because that's where you learn how the Club works. The first Chapter Hut night was a special event of the Club's 125 year anniversary celebration. We had so much fun it was decided to make it an annual event. I don't take part in Chapter activities now as I can't keep up any more. I'm 85; I joined the club in 1962. I still volunteer as Info Vol at Pinkham or Highland Center.”

MIDSTATE TRAIL HIKERS

NEWS FROM JOY ST.

The following is info from the AMC central office at Joy St. in Boston

AMCs 136th Annual Business Meeting & Farewell Celebration Gala for Andy Falender: AMCs 136th Annual Business Meeting will be held on Saturday, January 28, 2012, at the UMass Boston campus on Columbia Point, South Boston. The day's activities will include committee meetings (starting at 8am) and the 136th Business Meeting at 3pm. All members are welcome to attend but pre-registration is required as no walk-in spots are available. This year's event is different from years past as we will not be hosting workshops or an AMC showcase. For more information about the day program, go to www.outdoors.org/annualmeeting. In the evening, we will be celebrating Andy Falender who after 23 years as President of the club is retiring. The Farewell Celebration to Andy is on Saturday evening, January 28th, starting at 6pm. The event is being held at the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library and Museum, Columbia Point, South Boston. Registration is required (separate from the day program). To register and for more information on the evening program, go to www.outdoors.org/farewellandy

AMCs Adventure Travel Leadership Training: The AMC Adventure Travel Leadership Training Program was a tremendous success! It was held in Litchfield, Connecticut on November 18-20, 2011. The trainers were a wealth of information for the participants – having over 80 years combined experience leading Adventure Travel for the AMC. The participants also brought significant experience to the training, most having led many Chapter trips for the Club for a number of years. For more information on AMC's Adventure Travel program, please see www.outdoors.org/adventuretravel

AMCs Adventure Travel group is geared to all ages and abilities. Whether you like to hike, bike, or paddle, AMC-AT offers over 30 volunteer-led worldwide adventures year round. Check out this year's family trip to Grand Teton and Yellowstone National Park at <http://activities.outdoors.org/search/index.cfm/action/details/id/58463> or for a complete trip listing, go to www.outdoors.org/adventuretravel.

AMC Books has released its first eBooks, available now for Kindle, Apple, and Nook devices. New eBooks include Katahdin: An Historic Journey; AMC Guide to Winter Hiking and Camping; Best Backcountry Skiing in the Northeast; four books from the popular Best Day Hikes series, including guides to Boston, the Whites, Washington, DC, and the Catskills and Hudson Valley; and two paddling titles, Quiet Water New Hampshire and Vermont and Quiet Water New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania. Starting in spring 2012, AMC Books will release many of its new books simultaneously in print and eBook format.

HIKING / BACKPACKING

HIKE PLANNING MEETINGS: are held the first Wednesday of March, June, September, December. Contact hikingchair@amcsem.org for more information.

IMPORTANT: Hikers unsure of their ability should try only 1 level more difficult than previously completed. No pets without permission of trip Leader. Registration req'd for most trips. Hiking boots strongly recommended. For additional info or to register, contact the trip Registrar (R), Leader (L) or co-Leader (CL). Trip updates available at activities.outdoors.org. Sign up for the SEM Short Notice E-Mail Trip List at www.amcsem.org.

Rating codes (e.g. C4D): first letter indicates distance in mi , middle number indicates pace, second letter indicates terrain.

Miles	Pace (mph)	Terrain
AA = 13+	1 = very fast (2.5)	A = v. stren.
A = 9 - 13	2 = fast (2)	B = strenuous
B = 5 - 8	3 = moderate	C = average
C = <5	4 = leisurely	D = easy

IMPORTANT: No pets w/o prior permission of trip L. Under 18 yrs must be accompanied by parent or responsible adult, & obtain prior consent from L. Those accompanying a minor are responsible for minor's actions. Reg. req'd for most hikes, preferably at least 1 wk prior to trip so Ls can discuss prior hiking exp., conditioning, clothing, & equipment.

(FT) (NM) Sun., Jan. 1. Borderland New Years Day Hike. New Year's Day at Borderland. Hike starts PROMPTLY at 10:00 A.M. We will hike from 10:00 until approximately 1:00 covering up to 6, mostly level, miles. (With a few short steep little sections.) If you are coming, please be there on time, ... we will leave on time! (And please allow time to get through the gate!) Plan: (Weather, ground conditions permitting) We will hike from the Visitor Center to the far end of the park. There is a nice spot for a quick snack, weather permitting. (If the weather is bad bring food that can be munched while hiking.) We will then loop around and head back toward the visitor center while checking out the ponds. We can squeeze about 6 miles into this if we try :-). All designed to get us started on a good physically fit New Year :-). Equipment list: Unless there is fresh, deep, snow we won't need snow shoes. If there IS deep fresh snow bring your snowshoes, or SEM has some snowshoes to loan :-). If you need to borrow ASK ahead (You may need to pick them up.) Dress, in layers, for the weather and an extended time outdoors. Notes: For this hike: 1) All 'non-cotton' clothes are best, but if you don't have them some cotton will be acceptable. But bring a change of clothes in case you get damp. However, please NO JEANS or COTTON SWEAT PANTS! Remember, if you substitute you are taking the responsibility for being warm and dry! 2) Rain gear is required, it may be windy along the ponds. And it may shower/snow, you can never tell. At the far end we are over an hour from the cars. That's a long time to be cold and wet.. 3) Borderland now has a parking pass system. $2 per day or $35 per year. Bring correct change and allow a few minutes to get through the gate. :-). (4) Cell phones must be turned off. 5) Friendly leashed dogs, with friendly owners, permitted :-). Any questions PLEASE ask before the trip. We wouldn't want to turn you away at the trailhead, or have you come and be unprepared, thus being cold and uncomfortable and perhaps shortening the trip for everyone. If you are missing something let me know. Maybe we can work out something for you. See you there, Bob. L Bob Vogel ((508) 238-7732, hike_with_bob_v@comcast.net)

(FT) (NM) Thu., Jan. 5. Noon Hill / Shattuck Reservation (C3C). Hike three-four miles on Trustees property. See www.trustees.org for trail map. Bring lunch. 10:00am start. View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

Welcome to the second issue of our new electronic monthly e-Breeze!

Last month we had 650 people receiving the new monthly electronic-Breeze out of ~3000 chapter memberships. This month we have 1145 signed up! For anyone still not receiving their monthly e-Breeze yet, log into the AMC "Member Center" [www.outdoors.org/membercenter] or call Donna of AMC Member Services, at 800-372-1758 (9-5, M – F), to sign up. (Remember that the paper Breeze is no more and that you need to change your newsletter preference from paper to electronic.)

NOTE: We need a Bicycling Chair for the Executive Board. And we have some Vice Chair positions open; see page 2 of this newsletter for the open positions. And contact me if you'd be interested!

Look what we have for upcoming events:

- SEM Leadership Training, March 24 (Foxboro)
 - SEM New Member Open House, March 31, 5:30-9:00pm (Bourne)
 - SEM Wilderness First Aid, April 28 & 29 (Noble View Camp)
 - SEM Spring Social Weekend, April 28 & 29 (Noble View Camp)
- (See our website www.amcsem.org for all the details.)

Our leaders have some great ski trips planned for you this winter—both cross country and downhill. And also great hikes and bikes. See the activity listings at the end of this newsletter. AND, AS ALWAYS – GET OUTSIDE!

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: amcsem.org, Forms.

The Southeast Breeze, the newsletter of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter (SEM) of the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC), is published 12 times a year. Editor: Cheryl Lathrop, Asst. VOLUNTEERS NEEDED !

BIKE NEWS: WANTED...

Bicycling Chair. The SEM Chapter is looking for a dedicated person to run our Bicycling committee. This position includes running bike planning meetings, attending monthly Executive Board Meetings, and other various Bicycling Chair responsibilities.

Ride Leaders & Co-Leaders. Enthusiastic about cycling? Like showing others your favorite roads? If yes, then share your enthusiasm and routes with your fellow AMC members!

Contact: Jim Plouffe, 508-586-1394, chair@amcsem.org

WHY VOLUNTEER FOR THE AMC?

Gain work experience! Put your volunteer experience on your resume!

One approach used by many people is to add a section to their resumes called "Community Service" or "Volunteer Work." They list the highlights of their volunteering here, to show that they have interests outside of their employment history already described.

Also, consider integrating your volunteer work into the section of your resume called "Work Experience." Even if you were not paid a salary and did not consider the volunteering to be "employment," it certainly was productive work and should count as "experience." The key is to translate what you gained from the volunteer activity into the language of the paid work world. So, if you did tutoring, use the title "Tutor." If you coordinated a project, identify your work accurately as "Project Coordinator."

Got a little free time to help us grow? Are you a people person who likes to help others? Are you concerned about environmental issues? Do you enjoy outdoor activities? Do you have some free time? If this sounds like you, then you may be interested in some opportunities to help our chapter of the AMC grow and better accomplish its mission. Get in touch with us and we'll be happy to tell you more.

Southeastern Mass Chapter AMC 2,000 Mile Club

Jack Jacobsen founded the 2,000 Mile Club in 2003 to recognize our Southeastern Mass AMC member's accomplishments of cycling 2,000 miles or more in a calendar year. Mileage must be accurately logged and recorded and may be a combination of road cycling and mountain biking miles. The club was waning in the early years but was successfully revived in 2007 by Victor Oliver. 2011 marks the 8th year of the organization, as the first year of recording our mileage was 2004. Embroidered patches of recognition are awarded to first time members only. Mileage is compiled and recorded by our registrar Dan Egan. Send your mileage quarterly to him at danielfrancisegan@hotmail.com

2,000 Mile Club Patches

2011 first-time members, e-mail your name, first year of qualification, and mailing (USPS) address to Paul Currier currierpaul@comcast.net to receive your patches. Also, past first timers that have not received your patches please do the same.

For further information about the 2,000 Mile Club, please contact Dan at danielfrancisegan@hotmail.com, Jack at cyclejac51@yahoo.com or Paul at currierpaul@comcast.net.

Take a Long Hike

Female Hikers, Unite

Hello fellow hikers. This column is for all hikers, backpackers, and campers. Most of my blog subscribers are male and most comments I've received have been from men. Judging by the increased numbers of females on trails, I would have expected more readership and feedback from women. Every year I see more of the fair sex out on trails, and that's a positive development for the AMC hiking community.

Now and then, I see something referring to women hikers. Recently, it was Trail Dames at www.traildames.com. I don't know much about this group or how active they are, but their site looks interesting. They have eleven chapters, all in the east except for a chapter in Michigan. I suspect this is because of the increasing popularity of women, young and old, hiking the Appalachian Trail. Trail Dames held their own conference this past June in Virginia.

Another blogger mentioned the Women's Adventure Club of Centre County PA, which ran an Appalachian Hiking Series For Women this past summer. When I thru-hiked the A.T. some years ago, I remember how grateful I was to a young lady who had---all day---hailed my sack of soaked and dirty laundry I'd left at the shelter.

Of course, the big hiking news last year was Jennifer Pharr Davis (www.mensjournal.com/jennifer-pharr-davis-beats-appalachian-trail-record) who now holds the speed record for thru-hiking the Appalachian Trail. She trimmed 26 hours off the previous record set by a man! Click above and you'll see the stunning article from Men's Journal. That she hiked the entire length of the A.T. in 46 days, 11 hours, and 26 minutes is incomprehensible to me. She was chosen as one of National Geographic's Adventurers of the Year.

This picture is from a hike with friends to AMC's Mizpah Springs Hut. Most of the women I see on hikes are fit and tough. Welcome!

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

Welcome to the third issue of our new electronic monthly e-Breeze! For anyone still not receiving their monthly e-Breeze by email, please call Donna of AMC Member Services, at 800-372-1758 (9-5, M – F), to sign up.

If you've been to our chapter website lately, you noticed that I created new SEM TASK FORCES. Recently, I have asked our SEM Executive Board Members, to sign up for one of the new Task Forces I have created. The reasoning is two-fold. First, I believe that this chapter can get even better than it already is, but that we need to have focus and examine what is needed in more depth. Second, I felt that it would be a good idea to open up our Executive Board to the general membership and allow for easy input from members into our day-to-day operations. Therefore, I am asking each of you, our devoted chapter members, to join us on one of these Task Forces so that we can develop a better chapter for us all. Please peruse each of the task forces and their short description -- and if one or more of them peaks your interest, contact the Executive Board members listed (Click on "Officers" on our website, amcsem.org). I am asking each group to supply an update to the Executive Board during our next official board meeting on March 14th. Chapter members are welcome to attend this meeting as well, if you RSVP to me at chair@amcsem.org. For more information on my new task forces, go to our chapter website at amcsem.org and click on the task force link in the middle of the page. Look for the bright red NEW.

Look what we have for upcoming chapter events:

- SEM Leadership Training, March 24 (Foxboro)
 - SEM New Member Pot Luck & Open House, March 31, 5:30-9:00pm (Bourne)
 - SEM Wilderness First Aid, April 28 & 29 (Noble View Camp)
 - SEM Spring Social Weekend, April 28 & 29 (Noble View Camp)
- (See our website www.amcsem.org for all the details. Click on the upcoming events tab.)

Our leaders have some great trips planned for you this winter—See the activity listings at the end of this newsletter.

AND, AS ALWAYS – GET OUTSIDE!

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: amcsem.org, Forms.

The Southeast Breeze, the e-newsletter of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter (SEM) of the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC), is published 12 times a year. Editor: Cheryl Lathrop, Asst. A kudo from one of our members!

"I just received my first e-breeze and just had to thank you and your staff for putting together a great newsletter. The e-breeze now gives me the ability to save it on any number of my media devices for reading at a later time and place. It also gives me the added benefit of having all the listed trips and activities at hand on my PDA, phone, or mobile tablet. Thanks. " and take it with you wherever you go!

TRAINING OFFERED! (AND A LITTLE FUN)

LEADERSHIP TRAINING for TRIP LEADERS

MARCH 24, FOXBORO, MA

Leadership Training will be held on March 24, 2012 in Foxboro, MA. This course prepares trip leaders for managing groups they will be leading on AMC sanctioned trips. It is an all day course with a mix of classroom and outdoor role play exercises. Lunch and refreshment breaks are provided. This course is offered at no cost to chapter members. Register by March 17 with Len Ulbricht at educationchair@amcsem.org

WILDERNESS FIRST AID (WFA)

AMC NOBLE VIEW CAMP, RUSSELL, MA

APRIL 28 & 29

WFA training (instruction by SOLO, see <http://www.soloschools.com/index.cfm?event=course.wfa>) is again offered this spring at Noble View camp (<http://www.outdoors.org/lodging/cabins-campgrounds/camps-noble.cfm>). This training is required for SEM's level 2-5 hikers with re-certification every two years. Optional CPR instruction also offered. Scholarships are available for committed SEM leaders and leaders-to-be to defray training costs. This is a popular program and fills up quickly. Register with Len Ulbricht at educationchair@amcsem.org. Registration cutoff April 7. SEMers given preference if registered by January 31.

SEM'S SPRING SOCIAL WEEKEND

APRIL 28 & 29, AMC NOBLE VIEW CAMP,
RUSSELL, MA

Hiking, biking, and whatever! Join us for a fun weekend to kick off the 2012 warm weather season of outdoor recreation. Register with Len Ulbricht at educationchair@amcsem.org by April 7. See www.outdoors.org/lodging/cabins-campgrounds/camps-noble.cfm. (This event is concurrent with, but independent of, WFA training.)

CONSERVATION CORNER

Bringing it home – simple things YOU and I can do to better our homes, our communities, and the Earth

by Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair

Composting

Fabulous, soil-improving, water-retaining, natural fertilizer for lawns and gardens Less trash to haul to the dump or put out -- Less trash for your town to pay to get rid of Plants sprout right from your compost pile that you can transplant to your garden: tomatoes, potatoes, squashes, peppers, avocado and grapefruit trees have all sprouted in my compost pile

Composting is the process in which organic materials such as grass clippings, leaves and vegetable trimmings decompose over time to a rich, nutrient-full, water-absorbing material called humus. This humus can be spread on lawns, in flower and vegetable gardens, mixed with soil in planting boxes, or used as a mulch. The materials can be put into a “compost bin” or they can be left in a pile to decompose. The pile can be turned on a regular basis to make the compost faster or it can be left alone and produce the compost more slowly, without any human work. Materials that can be added to the compost pile include grass clippings, leaves, garden waste, vegetable trimmings, animal manures, seaweeds, nut shells, used coffee grounds and filters, tea bags, egg shells, shredded newspaper and fireplace ashes. Materials that shouldn’t be added to your compost pile include meat and bones, fats and oils, dairy products, pet manure, lawn clippings that have been treated with pesticides or herbicides.

The workers that produce humus from this organic matter are bacteria, fungi, molds, worms and insects. They are decomposers who feed on dead organic material, breaking it down and releasing nutrients in a form that plants can use to grow. These workers require oxygen and water to do their job which is why turning the pile hastens the production of the finished compost; turning exposes more of the surface area to oxygen and water allowing a greater number of decomposers to do the job. If we didn’t have these decomposers in our environment to constantly recycle dead material, the dead material would soon pile up and overtake all other life on Earth. Composting is a way to put these organisms to work for us individually in our own yards making soil-improving humus to keep our yards more beautiful and our gardens more productive using fewer chemicals and less energy, including our own human energy. For more information, check out these websites: <http://www.epa.gov/osw/conserve/rrr/composting/basic.htm> <http://www.mass.gov/dep/recycle/reduce/compos01.htm>. Take a Long Hike

Ray Anderson

Time to Lighten Up

Hello fellow hikers. Time to lighten up. Many of you are struggling to get in shape for a spring hike, and doing this through the temptations and stress of the post-holiday season doesn't make it easy. If you want to laugh, read A Walk in the Woods by Bill Bryson. Whenever people learn that I'm a hiker, invariably they ask, with a grin, "Have you read that book with the bear on the cover?"

Bill Bryson is a popular writer who lives near the Appalachian Trail in New Hampshire. After learning about the A.T., he decides one day to attempt a thru-hike. He contacts his old buddy Katz, and right away you get the feeling that there is more enthusiasm than common sense, more winging it than careful planning. This is not a novel; it's Bryson's account of their intended hike from Georgia to Maine.

The hilarity begins when the overweight and bumptious Katz shows up at the trailhead in Georgia with donuts and the backpack from Hell. What ensues is a telling of their adventures and mis-adventures as they hoof it north. All kinds of crazy things happen, but this is not slapstick comedy. They try to make a go of it and, in their individual ways, come to terms with the wilds.

For reasons you will read about, they decide to occasionally hitch rides rather than walk. But they do (if memory serves) accomplish about 750 miles of actual hiking. If you want to relax and feel happy, pick up this book. Bryson is a marvelous writer with the perfect tone to give you an entirely new perspective about walking in the woods.

Squirrely Engineers

By Susan Salmon

The squirrels in my back yard must have PhDs in engineering because no matter what tactics I try to keep them away from my bird feeders, they always figure a way around them. I might slow them down, but not for long. I even tried giving them their own food to eat but that didn't keep them away from the birdseed. They liked having options

Each feeder in my yard is designed a little differently. I bought the first one years ago when the weight sensitive design was just coming out. I finally had 'em! The feeder is a square box with the roof slanting down towards the feeding tray. The tray is weight sensitive and closes when anything larger than a cardinal is on it. This worked for quite a long time but the squirrels eventually figured out they can hang from the roof and reach down to grab a few seeds. The red squirrels, no heavier than cardinals, never bothered with the feeders until this season, now park themselves on the feeding tray and eat to their little hearts' content. This feeder hangs from a pole. I tried greasing the pole with thick, gooey boating grease. One squirrel jumped up on the pole and just as quickly jumped off, shaking his paws trying to get the grease off.

It was great entertainment for about two weeks. By then, the greasy pole was covered with a layer of dirt, leaf, and grass bits and became a lot less sticky to climb up. I re-greased the pole a couple of times but by then the little buggers had gotten used to the goo and ran up the pole anyway.

I've given up putting seed in this one.

The next feeder I got is one of those Droll Yankee feeders; you know, the ones that are supposed to be the best squirrel resistant feeders. Yes, I swallowed the advertising hook, line, and sinker. The one I have has a long, smooth tube with four perches at the bottom that give way if anything heavier than a cardinal tries to sit or lean on them. It hangs from a tree off of a plant hanger. The tube is too long for the squirrels to hang from the top and they would fall whenever they tried to reach over from the tree. After a while, one of the squirrels figured out that the perches only fall away so far and they can be leaned on long enough to stuff some seeds in their mouths. Foiled again! My next line of defense was to extend the hanger out beyond the squirrels' reach. This had them stumped for a while but the other morning, much to my consternation, there was a fat gray squirrel hanging from the perches by all four legs enjoying breakfast! I don't know how it got there so I'm still plotting my next strategy.

Last month, I bought another feeder that is supposed to be even better than the Droll Yankee feeders (and lot less expensive, too). I tried to resist the box's advertising siren song and analyze the design of the feeder to see if I could spot any weaknesses. I tried to think like a squirrel engineer and examined all the angles. It looked pretty good and even the sales person gave it her blessing. I was sure I had the secret weapon now! This one is also a long tube with openings at the bottom. There are perches at each opening but a two piece ring snaps together over all the perches creating one circular perch around the bottom of the tube. It, too, uses the weight deterrent method to keep the squirrels away. If they lean one little paw anywhere on the ring, it shifts down, closing all the openings with little metal doors. It also hangs from a plant hanger off the side of a tree.

Every morning I watched those pesky poachers get frustrated; I finally had them!

Until . . .

One morning last week, I was looking out the kitchen window and noticed a gray squirrel leisurely eating from the secret weapon. How could it be leaning on the perch and not close the openings? Did the spring loaded mechanism get gummed up? Did squirrel figure out how lightly to lean on the perch ring without tripping the trap? How did he do it? Even though it would mean I'd be late for work, I had to go out there to find out what was going on. I did my usual stomping across the deck and yelling like a crazy woman to scare them off (my neighbors have long since gotten used to my battle cry) and went to investigate. Well, that little bugger somehow managed to dismantle the ring and remove several of the perch pegs so then it could just reach over, hold on to the rim of the opening and stuff it's little face. Foiled by the engineer again! I found most of the pegs and both pieces of the ring in the leaf litter and put the perch back together again. It didn't take them long to take it apart again. So, I put the feeding ring back together once more then extended the hanger far enough away from the tree so that the resourceful rodents can't reach it. I'll be watching and waiting and keeping my field notes. With triumph and delight, I will share my findings when I finally find the right combination of feeder design and set up that truly is squirrel proof. Tactics under consideration include a super powered squirt gun that shoots water 50 feet or an electric zapping system that is set off by a push of a button from the inside the house.

RED LINE the BLUE HILLS

UPDATE

And – we have another “redliner”!
Alan Greenstein
2/28/12

Read on for how he finished...

Keogh & Greenstein Hiked Blue Hills Weekly All Winter

Joe Keogh and Alan Greenstein hiked on 14 occasions after the close of the 2011 Red Line the Blue Hills season in pursuit of Joe's Green Line and Alan's Red Line completion. Alan ended the quest on February 28 at the 5241 trail intersection in the Ponkapoag Pond area. Alan said "It was a beautiful day and I felt terrific. Joe's skilled navigating and the lack of snow made this possible. We never would have found the minor trails, if there had been snow cover these last few months." Alan began his quest in July, 2010 and participated for the entire 2011 season. When you add the 14 hikes after the end of RLBH 2011, the completion took a little more than 2 years. Alan added that "some of our post-season hikes were as long as five hours in duration and 9 miles in length. We expect to announce Joe's Green Line completion in the next Breeze." (NOTE: Alan, like other “redliners,” has walked on every inch of every trail in the Blue Hills!)

NORTH HILL MARSH HIKE May 24, 2012 Leader and Registrar: Sally Delisa Before 9:00 p.m. Home: 781-834-6851 Morning of hike (after 9:a.m.)--Cell: 781-864-7302 Distance: 4.6 miles Rating: C3/4C REGISTRATION: Registration is required. DESCRIPTION: Leader will be stopping for wildflowers and shrubs blooming along the trails. We will hike over some of Duxbury's upland trails and hills, past a large kettle hole and along an old cart path. Then, we'll drop down and hike past a cranberry bog and lastly around a large pond owned by Audubon. There will be a separation/snack break about half way. Following the hike, those wishing for more on their own may wish to cross the street and hike around Round Pond. The Bay Circuit Trail goes across that property and there is a bench overlooking the pond. Time: Sign-in at 9:45 for a prompt 10:00 a.m. departure. The hike will last about 2.5 hours with a separation (bathroom)/snack break. Weather/Cancellation Policy: Heavy rain, high winds or electrical storms will cancel. If in doubt, call Sally at her home number until 9:00 a.m. After 9:00 a.m., you may reach her on the cell phone. (Phone numbers at top of page) Cautions/Hazards: Deer Ticks are active all year on the South Shore. Please use proper precautions. There is some poison ivy along the trails. There may be some muddy areas. L Sally Delisa ((781) 834-6851 before 9pm, delisasally@yahoo.com), R Sally Delisa ((781) 834-6851 before 9 pm, delisasally@yahoo.com)

Spring is Upon Us with a Fresh Beginning

There is an enthusiasm on the Board these days as we enter into Spring Time. Your Board is filled with new faces and some seasoned ones as well. There will be some great offerings for Bicycling, Canoe/Kayaking, Cape Hikes, and Hiking, both local and away. Keep an eye out for Social Events, Leadership Training, and Solo Wilderness First Aid Training. There will be more offerings from our Family Events as well.

Our Youth Program has partnered with the Marshfield Girl Scouts. I look forward to seeing that relationship grow. In addition, we are very excited about the support we will be offering in the D.W. Field Park restoration project in Brockton. We are also interested in finding a way to be involved in our own Bay Circuit Trail. (www.baycircuit.org)

Our Chapter is evolving. Have you checked out the new look of the SEM web site? www.amcsem.org. You're reading this in the e-Breeze. Look for e-Blasts, and the Short Notice Email List (SNEL). You can also follow us on Twitter and friend us on Facebook. This is your Chapter. Come out and play and perhaps volunteer in something that is dear to your heart.

Our leaders have some great trips planned for you this Spring.
See the activity listings at the end of this newsletter.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

MEMBERSHIP OPEN HOUSE

for

New, Prospective, and Armchair Members

Pot Luck dinner

Saturday March 31, 2012

- Introduce new members and those considering joining AMC to SEM's outdoor activities and special events. Find out how to get started. Armchair members who would like to resume participation in activities are welcome.
- Socialize with members and volunteer leaders. You may meet a familiar face on your first trip.
- Get your feedback – what works, what doesn't. What are your interests and ideas?
- Invite a friend or neighbor to learn about AMC and our SEM chapter.
- Bring a pot luck dish to share.
- Centrally located for on-Cape and off-Cape residents. Plenty of parking.

The Bourne Community Center

239 Main Street, Buzzards Bay, MA 02532

Plan on arriving between 5:30-6:00 pm with your dish to share.

Registration required, space is limited.

Please register with Jim Casey at membershipchair@amcsem.org or 781-924-5228.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE

WILDERNESS FIRST AID (WFA)

APRIL 28 & 29, AMC NOBLE VIEW CAMP, RUSSELL, MA

WFA training (instruction by SOLO, see <http://www.soloschools.com/index.cfm?event=course.wfa>) is again offered this spring at Noble View camp (<http://www.outdoors.org/lodging/cabins-campgrounds/camps-noble.cfm>). This training is required for SEM's level 2-5 hikers with re-certification every two years. Optional CPR instruction also offered. Scholarships are available for committed SEM leaders and leaders-to-be to defray training costs. This is a popular program and fills up quickly. Register with Len Ulbricht at educationchair@amcsem.org. Registration cutoff April 7. SEMers given preference if registered by January 31. [FLYER]

SEM'S SPRING SOCIAL WEEKEND

APRIL 28 & 29, AMC NOBLE VIEW CAMP, RUSSELL, MA

Hiking, biking, and whatever! Join us for a fun weekend to kick off the 2012 warm weather season of outdoor recreation. Register with Len Ulbricht at educationchair@amcsem.org by April 7. See www.outdoors.org/lodging/cabins-campgrounds/camps-noble.cfm. (This event is concurrent with, but independent of, WFA training.) [FLYER]

INTRODUCTION TO MAP & COMPASS – MAY 19

SEM has engaged REI to offer a one day Map & Compass training session. Training will be offered at Rocky Woods in Medfield, rain or shine, unless thunderstorms threaten. Course fee is $60. Register with Len Ulbricht, Education Chair, at lenu44@gmail.com [FLYER]

During this field outing, we'll help you see three dimensions of the land in the two dimensions of a topographic map by teaching you how to read contour lines, landmarks and other map features. We'll also talk about magnetic north, true north, and magnetic variation (declination), and help you make sense of it all. From there, you'll learn how to take a bearing from the terrain and your map so that you can triangulate your position and plan a route. Maps and compasses will be provided.

Skills you'll learn: Learn how to read topographic lines and other basic features on a map. Learn how to orient a map to match the environment both with and without a compass. Learn basic compass features and how to utilize the map with a compass. Learn how to plot your current position on your map. Use a map & compass to navigate to new locations. Build confidence in your navigation skills.

CONSERVATION CORNER

Bringing it home – simple things YOU and I can do to better our homes, our communities, and the Earth

Cars and Fuel Economy

by Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair

Most of us love our vehicles and the freedom they give us to go where we want. Do you remember how it felt to have your license, your mother's car, and a full tank of gas? The freedom and independence felt limitless; everything was possible. But, with the numbers of cars on the road today, our dependence on imported oil, the increase of CO₂ into the atmosphere, our desire to reduce our energy consumption and increase our sustainability as a society, we can't continue to produce the current number and size of gas-powered cars. We will need to both reduce the amount of time we drive our cars and improve the environmental impact of the cars we do drive. For our future generations, we need to create communities where we can walk more, bike more, use public transport more, car share more and work from home more. Until then, we can try to be more efficient with the cars we drive today.

10 ways to improve your gas mileage

1. Align your car
2. Tune up your engine and use the proper oil
3. Properly inflate your tires
4. Slow down
5. Drive smoothly - avoid jerky stops and starts
6. Use cruise control and overdrive gears
7. Lighten up – remove unnecessary weight from your car including car racks
8. Reduce drag - transport large items in the trunk if possible, rather than on the roof
9. Don't idle
10. Replace a broken or missing gas cap

www.thedailygreen.com/environmental-news/latest/save-gas-47031702

Alternatives to gas-powered combustion engine cars

1. Electric cars – propelled by an electric motor powered by a rechargeable battery pack
2. Hybrid cars – have a smaller and more efficient gas engine and an electric motor that helps acceleration and low-speed driving
3. Diesel powered vehicles – 30% more efficient than gas powered engines and new technology has improved diesel performance and is cleaner than the diesel of the past
4. Alternative fuel vehicles – ethanol, natural gas, propane, biodiesel and hydrogen are all derived from products other than petroleum and some are renewable resources

SEM's NEW CHAPTER PROJECT: D.W. FIELD PARK

By Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair

On March 22, Jim Plouffe and I met with the board of the D.W. Field Park Association to discuss partnering with them on projects to improve the D.W. Field Park in Brockton. They welcomed us warmly and listened to Jim describe the AMC in general and the SEM chapter in particular. Our two overall goals for the project are to improve D.W. Field Park so that more people will use the park and to empower the people who care about the park with the tools to maintain it into the future.

We listed the needs we saw in the park. During this visit we only toured the southern part of the park. Those needs included cleaning up the trash and adding new trash and recycling receptacles, trail work on the trail around 30-Acre Pond (we assumed the trails in the northern section needed work as well), cutting new trails to completely connect the park by trail, GPS-ing the trails and producing a map for the park, marking the trails with markers, adding bike racks, adding a small boat access area to the pond where non-motorized boats are allowed, adding nature signage and signage about not feeding the birds (this was one of the major activities happening in the park on the day we came through), adding portable toilets to the south section of the park, creating a small field for soccer, Frisbee, kites, etc., replacing benches on the south side, restore the stone retaining walls around the dams, connect with the Fuller Craft Museum and bring some art into the park, develop a place for concerts, theater, lectures, connect with the Garden Club to plant a wildflower or perennial garden.

The members of the Association smiled as we looked up when we finished the list. It was almost the same as their own list of improvements for the park. Both groups realized that improvements in the park would require a long-term commitment but we wanted to get started quickly to show good faith on our part and to take advantage of the enthusiasm of the Association. Together the 2 groups came up with 3 starting priorities:

- 1) Starting in the southern section remove the trash around 30-Acre Pond
- 2) Clear and mark the trails throughout the park starting in the southern section and widen the trails if possible
- 3) Clear as much of the underbrush as possible next to 30-Acre Pond to open up views to the pond

April 21 is the kick-off event—Brockton Clean-Up Day, MA Park Serve Day, and the day before Earth Day; we thought it was fitting. The first part of the day will be the working part – cleaning up trash and possibly starting trail maintenance. In the afternoon, we'd like to have some fun and introduce the local people to AMC activities like hiking, biking, and paddling. The population around Brockton is diverse and we hope to increase SEM's diversity by finding new members there. We hope it will be both a productive and fun day. Check the online listings for specific events.

Here's where YOU come in: we need your help to make this project a reality.

Please consider joining us to help. If you can't commit to our first event but you are interested in helping, please send an email to Jim Plouffe, chair@amcsem.org or Maureen Kelly, conservationchair@amcsem.org with your thoughts and suggestions. This project is truly exciting; the chance to improve a local, urban park and bring more people into the "outdoors" that we all love.

HIKING COMMITTEE

RED LINE the BLUE HILLS NEWS

The RLBH hiking group has designed and ordered patches for all of its “finishers.” Finish your trails now so you can get one for your pack!

RLBH is a Thursday night hiking series that runs from April to October, 6-8:00pm. Each of these people below has finished hiking all 140 miles of trails in the Blue Hills – many several times. The first time around they mark their trail map with a RED pen. The second time around with a BLUE pen. The third time GREEN.

The fourth ORANGE. This year the RLBH hike leaders are: Joe Keogh, Maureen Kelly, and Michael Swartz. Contact the registrar to sign up:

On March 10, Joe Keogh finished Green Lining at junction 3151. It took him a year and a half and he now gets to retire his third map and start a new one with orange lines!

On March 18, Ellen Correia finished Red Lining her trails. Ellen attended the very first RLBH hike in 2006. She’s an original!

THE FIRST WHITE LINER! On March 18 Jodi Jensen was the first hiker to finish White Lining the Blue Hills. White lining is completing all 140 trails in “winter” – you can only hike from December 22 until March 22.

JOE KEOGH FINISHES GREEN!

Congratulations to all of these hikers!

APRIL 12 we start hiking again! Join us!

Take a Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers. Look at the picture of the trail. A good trail path, easy to follow, right? But say it's mid-day and overcast, and you're not paying attention. You stop to break and remove your backpack. You void on the right side of the trail, come back over the trail and snack on the other side. You grab your camera, cross back over again and take a picture. Back and forth you go, cropping pictures, poking around, and when you pack up to leave, you head off in the opposite direction from which you came.

Happens more than you might think. Especially when everything looks the same, as in this picture.

Tip: Pick the same side--always--and lay your poles, or something, on that side. I'm right-handed, so I always lay my poles on the right. When I pack up, I'm never confused about direction.

And the most important time to do this--when you tent at night. Have one pole tip pointing in the direction you want to head out in the morning. Twice, on thru-hikes, in the morning, I saw another thru-hiker poling to me, as I hiked toward him. We both knew one of us was heading wrong, because both times we knew each other and our mutual goal. One of those times I was wrong. Not anymore.

HIKING COMMITTEE

First “Intro To AMC Hiking” Hike is a Real Crowd Pleaser!

By Paul Miller, Hiking Vice Chair

As part of our ongoing efforts to encourage even more club members to come out and join us on the trails, the SEM Hiking Committee has scheduled a series of “Introduction to AMC Hiking” hikes. These fun and enjoyable local hikes are ideal for any reasonably active person to experience the fun, camaraderie, and great exercise of AMC hiking firsthand.

Walt Granda, Joanne Staniscia, and I led the first hike in this series Saturday morning, March 17th in Foxboro State Forest – a local gem that’s popular with hikers and mountain bikers alike (not to mention XC skiers and snowshoe-ers in the winter). Eighteen people -- including six “first timers” -- pre-registered and showed up on time at the trailhead (two other women arrived late, but, reportedly, had a nice hike on their own.).

During our approximately six-mile hike along the Acorn and Warner Trails, we hit many of the high points in the (F. Gilbert Hill) State Forest in Foxboro, including the scenic overlook to the west and semi-historic High Rock, with its plaque commemorating Mead Bradner, an AMC member who had been instrumental in creating the Warner Trail, which extends approximately 30 miles from Canton, MA all the way to Diamond Hill State Park in Cumberland, RI.

At our post-hike debriefing, all six first-time AMC hikers mentioned that they had enjoyed the hike and would be back for more. Thanks to everyone who came out for this fun hike. We hope to see you on the trail again soon!

Literally the high point of this enjoyable, but non-intimidating hike – the group poses at High Rock in Foxboro State Forest

BIKING COMMITTEE

MEET THE NEW BIKING CHAIR!

As you may have heard, the Cycling Committee has a new chair - ME! And I have some big goals for us in 2012. Before I get to that though, I would like to thank the executive board for their support as well as Dan Egan for accepting the position of vice-chair. I would also like to thank the past chair Joe Tavilla for leading us down the road(s) for the last 6 years. It's been more than a few months since we had a chair and even longer without a vice-chair, so this is all new to us and I don't know about Dan, but I'm sweating it!

As I look at the forecast, even though the calendar says winter, the weather sure is shouting spring! We all should be dusting off and lubing up the bikes if you haven't already and getting out there. April, May and June are fantastic months for riding when the weather cooperates and Dan and I will be working with the bike leaders to plan some great rides. What we need from the members are some ideas of what, where and when.

This year our goals are to: expand the types of rides, introduce some clinics, schedule more beginner rides, bring on more ride leaders, and expand the use of social media to keep you informed.

If you've been on a ride with us in the past, well, I hope to see you again this year. If you have been a closet cyclist, well, I hope to see you on one of our beginner or other rides that suites your style and pace.

Remember, we need to hear what you want, so please send your ideas and comments to bikingchair@amcsem.org.

BIKING COMMITTEE

AMC SEM has a very active biking program!

It's the Lifestyle

By Dan Egan, Biking Vice Chair

“The only way to keep your health is to eat what you don't want, drink what you don't like, and do what you'd rather not.” -- Mark Twain

In addition to exercise and nutrition many AMC bicyclists find that pet ownership reduces the stress of the work-a-day world. Aerobic exercise from bicycling facilitates the flow of blood to the brain so that you maintain a great mood and it simultaneously enhances your memory. Once you've established this regimen of exercise and good nutrition a typical AMC member has more energy for community involvement. A healthy life style is the key. And keep a sense of humor!

We offer a good bike ride, great people, and a hint or two on nutrition regimens, i.e., “Keep your finger out of that cookie jar”. Come on out and play. We're having a great time!

See our “Cyclists' Culinary Corner” below for some recommended eats!

Cyclists' Culinary Corner

Mother Jacobsen's Kale Soup

Submitted by: Jacob Jacobsen, AMC Cyclist Leader

Ingredients:

4 medium potatoes,
1 lb. of linguica or chourico
,3 carrots,
1 good sized onion,
1 lb. of chopped kale (fresh or frozen)
1 turnip,
1 can of red kidney beans minced garlic or garlic powder, onion powder,
parsley flakes,
black pepper,
crushed red pepper,
potato flakes,
3 chicken bouillon cubes

In a large stock pot (3 or more gallons) dissolve 3 chicken bouillon cubes in boiling water then shut off heat. Peel and dice your potatoes, onion and turnip and add to pot. Dice up your carrots and add to pot. Cut your linguica into chunks and add to pot. Add 1b. of chopped kale to pot. Add water (amount of water varies depending on how thick or thin you want your soup). Next, season it with the following spices: minced garlic, onion powder, garlic powder, black pepper, crushed red pepper, parsley flakes and paprika. Bring to a boil, then lower flame and cover your pot. Cook for about 40 minutes stirring off and on. Add some potato flakes to thicken the broth and give it a little more flavor. You can also add more water as you go along if you think the soup is too thick. After it's been cooked for 40 minutes, add a can of red kidney beans that have been thoroughly rinsed off and drained in a colander. Turn off heat, cover pot and let sit on stove for 1/2 hour before serving or before refrigerating. For some reason, kale soup always tastes better the next day so you may want to leave it in the fridge overnight before using. I like to serve it with buttered dinner rolls for dipping. This is a really delicious and nutritious meal that I hope you enjoy. P.S. In addition to the vegetables and linguica listed above, some people like to add additional vegetables like cabbage, asparagus, peas, green beans, diced tomatoes. My mom used to add some stew beef to it too.

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

I need your help.

I have one very small, easy task that needs to be completed and you are the perfect person to do it. However, I have two problems: I don't know who you are and I don't know what the task is. This is a really covert way of telling everyone that we need volunteers. I am a volunteer as is every one of the SEM Executive Board Members, each of the committee leaders, and many of the people who run the AMC.

We are not new to volunteering and I am positive that you aren't either. But the difference is this: I am not looking for you to use up all your free time as a SEM volunteer. I am simply looking for someone to bring paper cups to our meetings or make a list of things needed for our Chapter Hut Weekend. I am looking for someone to make a couple of phone calls. And I am looking for someone to take pictures at our Open House.

The list of small, easy tasks that we need help with is large, but the time I am asking you to give to do one of these tasks isn't. Would I be happy if, after you do one of the small tasks, you tackle another? Sure! I'd be ecstatic. But I'm not asking you to do that. Why? Because if 20 people each did one easy simple task, then a whole lot would be accomplished without anyone noticing (except me, because I notice the small things people do). That means that a large event can go off without a hitch due to the small, easy task that you volunteered to do.

Every organization is looking for your help. Every organization is looking for you to donate money and volunteer a month of Sundays to their cause. The only thing we are looking for is for a bunch of people to do some very small tasks. Then, we will be a big success. To volunteer for one of these small tasks or to find out other ways you could help us grow, contact me at Chair@amcsem.org. I look forward to meeting you. And to discussing how a small task that you can easily do can have a big impact on your chapter.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

SEM STATS

PADDLE STATS

We started the 2012 paddling season the fourth of April and to date have had a total of six trips. No scheduled trips have been canceled due to weather. Thirty-four people participated in these six trips. Two people were on Luther Wallis' D.W. Field pond paddle.

--George Wey, Paddle Chair

HIKING STATS

Last year (2011) 131 off-Cape hikes were scheduled—this consisted of 106 hikes in Massachusetts and 25 hikes in NH and Maine. Included in the above are backpack hikes, hut trips, snowshoe hikes, and the winter and summer series.

--Walt Granda, Hiking Chair

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

Annual Membership Open House a Success!

By Julieanne Capone

On Saturday March 31st the SEM Membership Committee held our annual Open House at the Bourne Community Center. The invitation was extended to both current and prospective AMC members to learn about all that the SEM Chapter has to offer. The night kicked-off with appetizers and mingling, a short introduction from the Membership Committee's Vice-Chair followed by a pot luck style buffet dinner. The respective Committee Chairpersons presented their areas of expertise. Guests had an opportunity to ask questions and determine their needs in terms of equipment and ability. Oops! Did I forget we had dessert? We were fortunate to have approximately thirty-five people in attendance, especially Carolyn Crowell who celebrates her 50th year as an AMC member.

Congratulations to our door prize winners! Thank you to all for contributing your time, culinary skills, efforts, and insight! The Membership Committee hopes to continue to host the Open House on a yearly basis, but we couldn't have done it without the support of our membership!

LL Bean Boot Mobile Event

Boston Common – April 14

It was quite a showing at the LL Bean Boot Mobile Event held on the Boston Common Saturday, April 14th celebrating LL Bean's 100th Anniversary. Mayor Thomas M. Menino kicked off the event with the LL Bean Boot Mobile in the background parked near the corner of Boylston and Tremont.

SEM's Membership Chair, Jim Casey and his lovely wife Cathy, at the AMC Info Table. "We had a constant flow of visitors to the table asking questions about the AMC" said Jim.

SEM's Membership Committee was pleased to participate in such a great event!"

Kim Foley MacKinnon, author of "Outdoors with Kids" sold & signed her new AMC book which features 100 outdoor destinations for family day trips and outings. Written by parents and tested by kids, it offers information about driving directions, parking info, fees, snacks, bathrooms, and much more.

EDUCATION COMMITTEE

The Education Committee offers a variety of classes and programs to support the goals of the Appalachian Mountain Club and promote the safe enjoyment of the outdoors. If you have further questions, or wish to express interest in a particular kind of class or training, contact our Education Chair, education@amcsem.org

INTRODUCTION TO MAP & COMPASS – MAY 19 (SPACE LIMITED – SIGN UP NOW!)

SEM has engaged REI to offer a one day Map & Compass training session. Training will be offered at Rocky Woods in Medfield, rain or shine, unless thunderstorms threaten. Course fee is $60. Register with Len Ulbricht, Education Chair, at lenu44@gmail.com [FLYER]

During this field outing, we'll help you see three dimensions of the land in the two dimensions of a topographic map by teaching you how to read contour lines, landmarks and other map features. We'll also talk about magnetic north, true north, and magnetic variation (declination), and help you make sense of it all. From there, you'll learn how to take a bearing from the terrain and your map so that you can triangulate your position and plan a route. Maps and compasses will be provided.

Skills you'll learn: Learn how to read topographic lines and other basic features on a map. Learn how to orient a map to match the environment both with and without a compass. Learn basic compass features and how to utilize the map with a compass. Learn how to plot your current position on your map. Use a map & compass to navigate to new locations. Build confidence in your navigation skills.

SEM's NEW CHAPTER PROJECT: D.W. FIELD PARK

By Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair

Our two overall goals for the project are to improve D.W. Field Park so that more people will use the park and to empower the people who care about the park with the tools to maintain it into the future. Here's where YOU come in: we need your help to make this project a reality. Please consider joining us to help. If you are interested in helping, please send an email to Jim Plouffe, chair@amcsem.org or Maureen Kelly, conservationchair@amcsem.org with your thoughts and suggestions. This project is truly exciting; the chance to improve a local, urban park and bring more people into the "outdoors" that we all love.

HIKING COMMITTEE

Take a Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers,

Hikers with dogs are common, but some parklands don't allow dogs on established trails. If you are thru-hiking the AT, for example, you are not supposed to bring your pet when you hike through Smoky Mountains National Park. It is wise to check beforehand and make proper arrangements.

Dogs on an extended hike with their master usually carry their own food and supplies. The dog in the picture on the left carries her own collapsible bowl, food, and a mat. The dog in the other picture, Danny, loves to run through brooks and streams, so he is equipped with a waterproof food bag.

On rocky terrain, claws and paws can get beat up pretty bad. To avoid this, on the rugged John Muir Trail, I saw dogs with "paw boots," little leather booties velcro'ed around their paws. You can buy them at hiking stores.

Dogs can be useful; they give warnings of other animals and possible problems. Most of all, they are great company for a lone hiker. Who else would listen to your sermonizing?

BIKING COMMITTEE

2000 MILE CLUB

The 2,000 Mile Club was founded by Jack Jacobsen in 2003 to recognize our Southeastern Mass AMC member's accomplishments of cycling 2,000 miles or more in a calendar year. After a minor niggle in the early years, the club was successfully revived in 2007 by our then interim chair, Victor Oliver. Since then we have grown steadily and increased our membership every year.

2012 marks the 9th year of the 2K Club, as the first year of recording our mileage was 2004. Mileage must be accurately logged and recorded and may be a combination of road cycling and mountain biking miles. Send your mileage quarterly to our registrar, Dan Egan at danielfrancisegan@hotmail.com.

Embroidered patches of recognition are awarded to first time members only. To receive your patch, e-mail your name, AMC Number, first year of qualification, and mailing (USPS) address to Paul Currier currierpaul@comcast.net.

PATRIOT'S DAY BIKE RIDE

MALIBU BEACH

UMASS BOSTON VIEW

Riders: Dan Egan, Karen DeAngelis, Pati Kent, Cindy Miller, Janet Bretzel, Bob Ruggerio, Ray Teebow, Bob Kennedy , Ingrid from Cambridge, Fred Chase.

In seventy five degree temperatures 10 riders set off down Morrissey Boulevard from Malibu Beach and circled UMass Boston and JFK Library before heading down Day Boulevard past the L Street Bath House to Castle Island where temperatures dropped by ten degrees because of the water effect on the Causeway. We continued on to Northern Avenue where we traversed the Legal Seafood & Jerry Remy's Boardwalk and the Harbor Plaza Walkway of the Federal Courthouse. We crossed the old trestle bridge, now only open to pedestrians and bikers, and headed toward Commercial Street with a quick visit to Long Wharf then on to the far end of the North End-site of the great Molasses Flood. We posed for pictures at Paul Revere's statue-"one if by drones; two if by computer hacking". No one seemed to be interested in a florentine cannoli so we skipped Michael's Pastries and the Modern Bakery headed back to City Hall; up to Washington Street and the Downtown Crossing and finally on to the Boston Commons. Dodging a continual throng of Patriots Day amblers we cruised down Newbury Street and observed the beautiful people shopping and dining at sidewalk cafes. At the corner of Exeter and Boylston at 12:25 we watched the first woman marathoner streak for the finish line 100 yards away. Five minutes later we were gliding down the Mass Ave footbridge to banks of the Charles River and peddled to the Hatch Shell where we ate in the shade of the trunk of a solitary elm tree at the base of George Patton's statue(in Boston?). Finally in high 80 degree temperatures we sprinted back thru Chinatown out Summer Street to L Street and down along Carson Beach and out to our waiting cars at Malibu Beach-finished at 2:00 P.M. - 24 urban miles; no flats; no accidents; and no incidents.

ENERGY BAR RECIPE

Submitted by: Gianluca
(Adapted from the National Peanut Board)

Directions:

In a large bowl mix these dry ingredients:

- 2 cups quick or traditional rolled oats
- 2 cups Rice Krispies cereal
- 1/2 cup peanuts and/or almonds
- 1/2 cup raisins and/or dates
- 1/2 cup dry cranberries
- 1/2 cup walnuts and/or sunflower seeds

In separate container microwave on high for ~80 seconds:

- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/2 cup peanut butter and/or almond butter
- 1/2 cup honey and/or maple syrup and/or corn syrup

Stir mixture and microwave for 40 additional seconds, 60 seconds if small microwave oven. Add 1 tsp of vanilla extract. If using unsalted ingredients, adding 1/4 tsp of salt will make it tastier

Stir hot syrupy mix, then add it to the dry ingredients, working into a uniform mixture.

Add only a few dark chocolate chips just before pouring the mix into a 10x7 lightly oiled pan and firmly compressing it using a spatula, large spoon or suitable utensil. Add the chocolate chips at the very end, else they will melt and dissolve as you mix the ingredients. If you add too many chocolate chips their flavor will suppress that of other ingredients.

Let firm up for a few hours before cutting into squares or bars. The mixture gets firmer overnight, especially if refrigerated.

FIRST AMC SEM "EASY RIDER"

By Wes Ewell

It doesn't get much better than this. Perfect weather, pleasant company, great views, and no hills. Six cyclists showed up in Fairhaven Sunday morning for the first AMC SEM Easy Rider ride of the season. Leader Jon Fortier planned a ten-mile ride that passed the starting post after five miles in case anybody got too tired. We were all feeling so good, however, that we added three side trips, bringing the total ride to 16.5 miles.

The ride covered the rail trail from the Fairhaven waterfront into Mattapoisett, with side trips to Fort Phoenix and along the hurricane barrier to the New Bedford harbor entrance gate; along Arsene Street through the South Shore Marshes Wildlife Management Area to the waterfront at Little bay; and down Brant Island Road and Brant Beach Avenue in Mattapoisett to a private beach and jetty. Co-leader Jack Jacobsen, who has lived all his life (so far) in Fairhaven, led a tour past the ornate brownstone town hall and library that were built for the town by oil baron Henry Huttleston Rogers.

Jack also mentioned that he makes a fish chowder served by a local restaurant called Simmy's, and suggested we all gather there for lunch after the ride. We were a little uneasy when Jack ordered a hamburger, but those of us who had the chowder agreed it was outstanding. Participants included Sandy Edwards, who came down from Walpole; Suzanne Laundry, Dick Roberts, and Wes Ewell, who came over from the Cape; and co-leaders Jon Fortier and Jack Jacobsen, from Carver and Fairhaven.

THE EASTON LOOP

By Karen Newberger

We had a quick ride over flat roads though Easton and the surrounding towns on an early Sunday morning past grazing horses at a local farm, the historic Ames mansion at Borderland State Park, and serene Lake Massapoag in Sharon. Some riders were starting their training for longer summer rides (two people were getting ready for Century Rides in June) and some were out just to enjoy the warm sunny day. We stopped for a short break at the lake for water and to smooze. It was a fun way to start the day.

(XCE) Sat., May. 19. Map & Compass Training. SEM Chapter has engaged REI to offer a one day Map & Compass training session on Saturday May 19, 2012. Training will be offered at Rocky Woods in Medfield, rain or shine, unless thunderstorms threaten. Course fee is $60
Class Description: During this field outing, we'll help you see three dimensions of the land in the two dimensions of a topographic map by teaching you how to read contour lines, landmarks and other map features. We'll also talk about magnetic north, true north, and magnetic variation (declination), and help you make sense of it all. From there, you'll learn how to take a bearing from the terrain and your map so that you can triangulate your position and plan a route. Maps and compasses will be provided. Skills you'll learn: Learn how to read topographic lines and other basic features on a map Learn how to orient a map to match the environment both with and without a compass. Learn basic compass features and how to utilize the map with a compass. Learn how to plot your current position on your map. Use a map & compass to navigate to new locations. Build confidence in your navigation skills. L Len Ulbricht ((508) 359-2250 before 9 pm, lenu44@gmail.com), R Len Ulbricht ((508) 359-2250 before 9 pm, lenu44@gmail.com)

WRITTEN BY YOU FOR YOU

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

Many months ago I wrote a View From the Chair about how we can use some good people to volunteer for some small tasks, such as bringing paper cups to meeting or taking pictures at an event. This is my attempt at getting more people involved in a way that doesn't scare anyone into believing that we will be overloading them with tasks.

However, at this point in my "Chairship" (I think I am coining that word), I am going to ask for some people to volunteer for some very hefty tasks. This November, most of our Executive Board will be leaving their post as their terms are up, mine included.

This leaves me with a huge problem. I have run the length of my terms as allowed by the Chapter Bylaws and leaving with me are my Vice-Chair, Cape Hikes Chair, Education Chair, Communications Chair, among others. Without an influx of many responsible, driven members to fill these positions, I worry that our Chapter will not survive as well as it has in the recent past, which, if I can toot the horns of my fellow Executive Board members, was extremely well.

There are two things that I need hefty volunteers for. The first is a Nomination Committee. This Committee, in short, will be responsible for finding and nominating a slate of officers for the 2013 Executive Board. The second is a slate of officers.

Are you interested in helping to pick the new board or possibly being on the Executive Board? If so, please e-mail me as soon as you can. I can answer questions as to the responsibilities and commitments that are required as an Executive Board Member.

Just a note, though... I am not going anywhere and will remain on the board as Past-Chapter Chair, a voting member of the Executive Board and the person to whom the next Chapter Chair can bounce ideas and thoughts off of and by whom that person can learn what the position involves.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: www.amcsem.org, Documents.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

It's June! How's that New Year's Resolution coming along?

By Julieanne Capone, Membership Committee

What was your New Year's Resolution for 2012? To exercise more? try something new? volunteer? be more social? watch less TV? bike X miles? climb X 4,000 footers? stop procrastinating??

Luckily it's not too late to conquer your goals, 2012 is approaching its halfway mark but who's really counting? No one said you had to have everything checked off by winter's end, right? Our SE Mass. AMC Chapter offerings are great ways to jump start that "list" of dreams and aspirations you've been meaning to achieve.

One big reason goals aren't met is because we don't hold ourselves accountable and quantify results. Fortunately, the SEM Chapter offers programs such as Red Line the Blue Hills where hikers can map their completion of each leg of the Blue Hills Trails, the Biking Committee has a 2,000 Mile Club where cyclists can record their gains, and the AMC has a 4,000 Footer Club for those aspiring to climb all 48 peaks! The SEM AMC Membership Committee is looking for members to be more active through volunteering to lead activities, maintaining trails, joining a committee, helping to publish 'The Breeze', or simply signing-up for an activity.

Don't know where to start? All activities offered through the SEM Chapter have a rating system based on distance/pace/terrain and trip leaders can always be contacted with questions. Be proactive and turn your dreams into reality!

Get involved today and let people think you started your "list" on January 1st!

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

Become the Membership Chair? Sure...Why not?

By Jim Casey, Membership Chair

While reading my first SEM Breeze Newsletter in Spring 2011, I noticed the following paragraph: “Volunteers needed to bring paper cups to meetings. (Oh and to do many other things too!) SEM has many opportunities to make a difference in the AMC’s ideals of recreation, education, and conservation. Contact the Chapter Chair, to find out how you can make a difference!”

I had just joined the AMC at the request of my wife (she was not happy with me camping by myself, she said I was getting too old to go out alone) I knew I wanted to get involved, but didn’t know how to go about it (plus I was a little shy). Anyway, after reading the above notice in the Breeze, I sent the chair an email and within the hour I received a call back from Jim Plouffe, the SEM Chapter Chair. It was great speaking with Jim. He made me feel very welcome and right at home. We talked for a bit about my interests and the chapter as a whole and then Jim told me he would have Len Ulbricht, the Membership Chair, contact me to explain how I could help in the club. The next thing I know, I’m attending an Executive Board Meeting as Len’s guest. I learned there were two positions opening up that fall; one was the Education Chair and the other the Membership Chair. Everyone at the meeting was nice, friendly and easy to talk to. They all had the same interests and seemed to really enjoy volunteering for the chapter. After viewing the meeting activities for a bit the question finally came up....”Jim would you be interested in filling one of the open positions?” It didn’t take me long to respond, “Sure, I’ll do the membership one” and with a round of handshakes and smiles, I was part of the Executive Board...oh wait, not officially, it would not be official until the vote at the Annual Meeting in November. But it didn’t matter...I was INVOLVED and ACTIVE. No turning back now!

OK, so why am I writing this? Well the SEM Chapter has approximately 3,425 members with only about 10-15% active in the chapter. Now some of those members are what we call “arm chair” members...they just like to contribute financially to support the organization’s conservation of natural resources and keep the club strong, but most are just people like me who don’t know how to get started, and some are, again, people like me who get nervous trying new things or meeting new people. Well, let me tell you right now...WE DON’T BITE & IT’S FUN!!!...lol

Let me tell you about my first year in the AMC SEM CHAPTER. Since I joined the club and stepped up to be Membership Chair, I have completed the Wilderness First Aid/CPR training, finished the Winter Hiking Series, held an Open House with my Membership Committee partners Vickie & Julieanne, represented the Chapter at the LL Bean Boot Mobile Event at Boston Common, and climbed several mountains, as well as a few winter overnights at Mount Greylock and the AMC Lonesome Lake Hut, attended the Chapter Hut Weekend at Cold River Camp, not to mention numerous other hikes and events. Most important I have enjoyed every second of it meeting YOU, the chapter members. I have recently been approved as a Class 2 hike leader, so now I get to hike with new members all the time. Not bad for my first year.

I know, I know, I’m a wind bag....ok, here’s my big finish.

My name is Jim Casey, I’m still a NEWBIE, but I’m YOUR NEWBIE. As Membership Chair, I am here to help you get started. So send me an email and say Hi at membershipchair@amcsem.org or call me 6:00-9:00 pm at 781-924-5228, if you have questions about volunteering, joining activities, joining the board, membership issues, the newsletter or anything else you can think of.... Or as I said above, just say Hi and let me know how your membership committee is doing.... (I’ll probably regret that last one, lol)

C U on the TRAILS!!

EDUCATION COMMITTEE

Map & Compass Training

By Len Ulbricht, Education Chair

May 19 brought bright and sunny conditions for REI M&C training at Rocky Woods in Medfield, MA. We had 8 SEMers coming from as far as Cape Cod to attend.

It was a fun day starting out with learning the fine points of a compass, declination impact on the compass needle (true north and magnetic north differ), and topo map coordinates and scale (AMC trail maps not the same as USGS topo maps). After following a 3 leg compass course loop to see if we could return to our starting point (not all of us did on the first try), it was on to the trails and reading the terrain. Ever wonder where you are on the trail? We did and after comparing the terrain to our topo trail map the 8 of us came up with 3 or 4 different opinions. How embarrassing. Thought we knew all about reading a topo map. Our instructor thence forth covered the fine points of terrain reading as we proceeded to our bushwhack start point. First, from the topo map plot your course. Then compensate for declination (do we add or subtract?) to find compass course to follow. Okay, put Fred in the shed and march. Into the woods we go, around the tree, over stumps, re-check your course, under blowdowns, circle the erratic. What do you know, we made it. Now do it again. Twice more and still no one became lost. Beat the 10% rule. On to triangulation. Take bearings on visible terrain features, compensate for declination (do we add or subtract?) and plot those bearings. Voila, we are here. Lastly, how to prepare for white out conditions, the dos and don'ts, to end the day of training. Thank you, REI.

Those of you who missed the course may consider the following recommendations from the REI instructor. If you are looking for some good books on map and compass navigation, consider Basic Illustrated Map and Compass, 3d ed., by Cliff Jacobson (Falcon Guide, 2008, $10), Be Expert with Map and Compass: The Complete Orienteering Handbook by Bjorn Kjellstrom and Carina Kjellstrom Elgin (John Wiley & Sons, 2010, $18.95), and Wilderness Navigation, 2d ed., by Bob and Mike Burns (The Mountaineers Books, 2004, $14.95). For basic a compass, consider baseplate compasses and avoid lensatic compasses; baseplate models work best for backcountry navigation. Suunto, Brunton, and Silva are the best manufacturers. Solid, entry-level compasses are the Suunto A-10 ($14.50), the Brunton 7DNL ($15), and the Silva Polaris ($14). The Brunton 9020G ($11) and 8010G ($17) are entry-level compasses that allow you to preset your declination by offsetting the entire central capsule.

WFA Training / Spring Social Weekend at Noble View Camp

by Len Ulbricht, Education Chair

Noble View Sunrise-Panorama

What a great turnout and smashing good weekend, April 28-29. We were filled to capacity and turned many away. (Sign up early next time!) Attendees came from SEM, Boston, Narragansett, and Mohawk Hudson. 15 took SOLO-taught WFA training (11 from SEM) and 8 enjoyed a social weekend taking in fabulous views and hiking trails for all abilities, bubbling brooks and waterfalls, spring wildflowers and flowering trees, brilliant sunshine and brisk winds, all capped off with hearty meals provided by our own Joyce and Luther Wallis. The weekend began with a Friday pot luck dinner initiated by Kathy Stanley (thank you again for stepping up). Kathy brought along her Dutch oven to make beef stew, Bryan Jones baked his camping recipe corn frittata concoction, and all brought assorted goodies from appetizers to desserts. What a great kickoff to the weekend. All 26 of us gathered for breakfast, lunch, appetizers, social hour or two and dinner in the Cold River Camp tradition. The breakfast scones, chicken chili lunch and spaghetti pie dinner with homemade bread were my favorites. As to the camp itself, the Noble View cabins are modernized and wood burning stove heated (a step up from Cold River). They are situated on an easterly facing bluff with an absolutely magnificent view out toward Springfield and well beyond. Open year round, Noble View is an easy 2-½ hours from SEM territory, even suitable for day outings.

D.W. FIELD PARK REVITALIZATION PROJECT

By Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair

UPDATE:

Meeting with the City of Brockton Parks Commission May 10, 2012

Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair and Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair met with the City of Brockton Parks Commission tonight. We wanted to introduce ourselves to the Commission, tell them about our proposed plans for DW Field Park, and ask their permission to perform the work we want to do.

Jim gave the Commission background information on the AMC and on the first work day we had at the Park on April 21, 2012. He then began to tell the Commission about the plans we have for revitalizing DW Field Park. The members of the Commission were welcoming and happy to hear about our plans except for the small boat ramp. NO boats! NO horses! This was the mantra one member repeated. It is in the original bequest; we cannot have boats or horses. Other than that the commission liked our ideas of trail maintenance and trash pickup, widening and opening up the visibility of some of the more remote trails, GPS-ing the trails and producing a map and replacing benches.

The issue of homeless camps in the southern end of the park was raised and we responded that the plan in opening up the visibility of the trails in that area by cutting some of the brush would discourage the homeless from setting up camp in areas around 30-Acre Pond. The more visible the area is, we also hope, the more people will use the park and this activity will help to make the area less desirable for the homeless camps.

Jim asked the Commission if he could work directly with Tim Carpenter, Parks Commissioner, to get approval for a specific project rather than going before the entire Commission. The Commission voted to give Mr. Carpenter that power and they wished us well with our project. It was a positive meeting that made a strong connection with the Parks Commission and a gave SEM a simple approval procedure for permission to do the projects we want to undertake.

D.W. Field Park Project- Continued

By Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair

Our second work day for the D.W. Field Park Project will be Sunday, June 10, 2012 from 8:00 - 12:00 AM. Our first day was a success with 18 volunteers pulling out trash and trimming branches on the trail that rings 30-Acre Pond. We will continue with the same activities on June 10 to finish cleaning and clearing this trail and we will mark areas where we want to open up the overgrown land surrounding the trail. Cutting down some of the brush between the trail and the road, and the trail and the pond, will give more visibility to walkers and increase safety.

Please consider joining us in our project. We have the support of the City of Brockton Parks Commission and the D.W. Field Park Association (a "friends" group). We are improving the condition of a beautiful urban park in Southeastern Massachusetts. The Nike Reuse-A-Shoe sneaker recycling box will be there and lunch will be provided. Contact Jim Plouffe at chair@amcsem.org or Maureen Kelly at conservationchair@amcsem.org. Thanks!

Our two overall goals for the project are to improve D.W. Field Park so that more people will use the park and to empower the people who care about the park with the tools to maintain it into the future. Here's where YOU come in: we need your help to make this project a reality. Please consider joining us to help. If you are interested in helping, please send an email to Jim Plouffe, chair@amcsem.org or Maureen Kelly, conservationchair@amcsem.org with your thoughts and suggestions. This project is truly exciting; the chance to improve a local, urban park and bring more people into the "outdoors" that we all love.

Invasive Plants

By Susan Salmon

I recently attended a three day training program called Keystone Cooperators where I learned a lot about forest ecology and management, wildlife management and land conservation. One of the topics we covered was invasive plants in Massachusetts.

Invasive plants are primarily introduced through landscape horticulture or plant cultivation for human use. It often takes many years before it becomes apparent that a non-native plant has become invasive. Invasive plants are adaptable, aggressive, and have a high reproductive capacity. Their heartiness, combined with a lack of natural enemies, often leads to uncontrolled populations that choke out native plants. Deer or other grazing animals usually prefer native plants, further enhancing the invasive plants ability to replace natives. The end result is a marked loss of native plants and a decrease in plant diversity. The loss of native plants disrupts the food chain by leaving grazing animals little to no food, further reducing the area's biodiversity.

Oriental Bittersweet, Burning Bush, and Norway Maple are just some of the plants we have introduced that have become invasive. Oriental Bittersweet is a woody vine that was introduced into the United States in the 1860s as an ornamental plant and is often associated with old home sites from which it has escaped into surrounding natural areas. It infests forest edges, woodlands, fields, hedgerows, coastal areas, and salt marsh edges, especially those suffering some form of land disturbance. While often found in more open, sunny sites, it also tolerates shade allowing the oriental bittersweet to invade forested areas.

Oriental Bittersweet Fruit

Oriental Bittersweet Leaves

Burning Bush comes from Northeastern Asia, Japan and Central China. It was introduced to the United States around 1860 as an ornamental plant used in landscaping. Although now on the Massachusetts Prohibited Plant list, it remains very popular. Burning Bush can be found along roadways, at commercial and industrial sites and in park and residential landscapes. It forms dense thickets, displacing many native woody and herbaceous plants in a variety of habitats including forests and coastal scrublands. Hundreds of seedlings are often found below the parent plant in what is termed a “seed shadow.”

Norway Maples are native to Europe, from Norway southward. In the United States, they either escaped from cultivation or are the offspring of trees used as ornamental specimens. The Norway Maple frequently invades urban and suburban forests. Its extreme shade tolerance, especially when young, allows it to penetrate beneath an intact forest canopy. Research has recently shown that forests, which have been invaded by Norway Maple, suffer losses in diversity of native forest wildflowers compared with forests in which the canopy is dominated by native species such as sugar maple. This is at least in part due to the dense shade cast by Norway maples, and the shallow roots, which compete with other vegetation. They also produce a large quantity of seeds that can germinate rapidly and crowd out native species.

A distinguishing characteristic of the Norway Maple leaf is that it is wider than it is long. The Sugar Maple leaf is generally longer than wide. Norway Maple leaves are the last to change color in the fall; they remain green until early November then turn bright yellow. Late fall is the best time to survey for Norway Maples as they are very conspicuous at that time.

If you are interested in helping to protect the native plants and animals in Massachusetts, you can join the UMass Outsmart Invasive Species Project. They have developed an excellent smart phone application you can download for free called Outsmart Invasive Species. It provides photos and descriptions of invasive plants (and insects) to aid in identification. If you see a suspicious plant (or insect), take a photo of it with your smart phone. The application notes your exact location using the phone’s GPS system, has a place where you can enter any notes or details of the siting, and allows you to take and upload a photograph of the invasive specimen. The app can be downloaded from iTunes or Google Play.

HIKING COMMITTEE

Take a Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

One AMC activity I'm enjoying is hiking on Thursdays at the Blue Hills Reservation in Milton, MA. We meet at a pre-designated trailhead and hike a different route from 6 to 8 PM every week. We start hiking in May and stop in October.

The hikers shown in the photo have all completed what is known as "Red Lining the Blue Hills." That means that each of them has put their boots on every inch of every trail in the Blue Hills. This is quite an accomplishment and, as you can see, the recent finishers are happy to show off their official patch.

Some of the hikers pictured have completed a "Red Line the Blue Hills" multiple times! If you hike and complete all the trails twice, you are a Blue liner. If you do it three times, you are a Green liner. Michael Swartz and Joe Keogh (Michael, smiling under the hat, stands next to Joe, who has a beard with blue sweatshirt) are Green Liners. Congratulations to them and to all the others. (Bob Vogel, the creator of the series 7 years ago, is back row center.)

For a complete listing of "Red, Blue, and Green Line" hikers, as well as a detailed map of all the Red Line trails, go to "hiking" under www.amcsem.org (then "hiking series", then RLBH).

HIKING COMMITTEE

THE CLOUDS CLEARED JUST AS WE HIT THE SUMMIT!

By Jim Casey, Hike Leader

It was 8:30am when our SEM group of 16 gathered at the trailhead to Mount Kearsarge North. Kearsarge North rises 3,268 feet and has commanding 360 degree views of the Presidentials, Mount Washington Valley, the interior of Maine and North Conway itself. We planned to hike the Mount Kearsarge North Trail, which has approximately 2,600 feet of elevation gain, runs 6.2 miles round trip and eases its way up the south side of the mountain, curling West near the summit, then jumping up a final switch back to the peak.

I said go left, not right!

That Saturday was a little overcast when we started and we were concerned we might not get a chance to enjoy the amazing views at the top. But step by step we made our way up the nicely groomed trail, enjoying the conversation and taking in the short views off the sides of the trail.

This was my final co-lead to become a SEM hike leader and I must admit, I could not have picked a better group to take up the mountain. Everyone stayed together, hiked safe, kept pace and just enjoyed themselves completely. I thought it couldn't get any better.

Then we hit the summit. Just as we climbed atop the ledge that crowns this beauty, the clouds and fog began to clear. I could hear the group's excitement as the dense white blanket moved past Mount Washington and gave us our first glimpse of the majestic beauty. It took a little time for all the clouds to clear, but then a turn in any direction provided unobstructed views of the area, from the Presidentials to Maine...it was incredible!

Thanks to everyone for making this a hike one to remember. I'm looking forward to leading more hikes down the road for the AMC and you!

Cyclists' Culinary Corner

Challah Recipe

by Emily Colantonio

Challah (1 large loaf):
1 3/4 cups warm water
2 tablespoons dry yeast
1/2 cup honey
1/4 cup butter, melted
1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
4 eggs beaten
7 to 8 cups unbleached white flour
Melted butter for brushing loaf

Glaze:
1 egg yolk
1 tablespoon water
Poppy seeds
(beat egg yolk and water and brush over loaf . Sprinkle poppy seeds)

Use a food processor or a bowl and wooden spoon. Pour warm water into a food processor with a steel blade and sprinkle yeast and process with one brief burst. Add honey, melted butter, salt, and beaten eggs and mix briefly. Add 2 cups flour and mix until combined. Continue to add flour 1 cup at a time. Dough should be sticky and should be firm enough to remove from bowl. Remove out onto a floured surface and knead until dough is smooth and elastic. The entire amount of flour (about 7 cups minimum) will probably be used, since the braiding will be more successful if dough is firm. Place dough in a oiled bowl and let rise in a warm spot until doubled – about 1 hour.

Punch dough down and turn onto a floured surface and knead until smooth and elastic. The following instructions are for 1 very large loaf. If you prefer 2 medium size loaves, just divide dough in half and proceed with each half described.

Take about two-thirds of the dough and divide into thirds with your fingers, moving from the center of each third out toward the ends - roll dough into three 18" inch lengths. Pinch the three lengths together firmly at one end and braid a tight braid. Place on Oiled baking sheet. Cut remaining third of dough into three equal parts. Roll out making shorter and thinner than first ropes. Braid and place on top of first braid. Brush with melted butter.

Cover lightly and let rise on a warm spot – double in bulk (about 45 minutes)

Add glaze and bake in a preheated oven at 350 for about 45 minutes (until loaf is rich brown)

Look for these AMC leaders conducting these popular recurring rides:

By Dan Egan, Biking Vice Chair

Larry Kornetski - leads the Dennis Beach Ride....a ride that touches both sides of the Cape and about ten beaches all in the Town of Dennis with a lunch stop at a quaint sandwich and fried food chanty overlooking a canal entrance to a local harbor.

Joe Tavilla- leads a series of rides called the "3-Cs" Ride-cycling, colleges, and chow. The rides are thru quaint south suburban town with their storied town greens, typically dwarfed by the steeples of white clapboard churches and the occasional fabled country stores. The rides include a lunch stop at a local college where lycra sporting retirees mingling with jean clad young academics over much improved cafeteria fixings. Some colleges of the past have been MA Maritime, Wheaton, Bridgewater State, Brandeis, Babson, and Wellesley.

Ed Foster- leads a yearly recurring ride out of Mashpee that streaks down to North Falmouth Beach and then onto Woods Hole before turning North and heading for the Canal. A lunch stop in Bourne on the picnic tables of Gray's Market sustains the riders down thru the seven miles of canal and then onto the last twenty miles of inland Cape back roads to return to Mashpee High School-this 60 mile ride is for the seasoned biker. His Martha's Vineyard ride is also a treat.

Paul Currier-leads full moon evening rides along the Cape Canal passing weathered stone churches, ocean battered bluffs, manicured cape cod subdivisions, and grey shingled beach cottages in the golden glow of the twilight sun. He catches the sinking golden orb in Buzzards Bay and then streaks back in the dark with the usual tailing southwest breeze as the moon rises from the mouth of the east side of the Canal and tops the Sagamore Bridge.

Jack Jacobsen - runs a Thursday night recurring ride circumventing Lakeville, and Freetown in the cool of the evening in the Spring and the Summer. The lake vistas, the crimson cranberry bogs and long desolate stretches of forested roadway are treats as is the fresh scented refrigerated forested air blowing through your helmet and whistling by your ears.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

By Jodi Jensen, Social Chair

On May 5, Kevin Ryan led an incredible morning social trip through Mt. Auburn Cemetery to see and hear beautiful migratory birds. We don't need to travel far to enjoy beauty and nature.

Watch the trip listings and short notice list for other fun SEM social events organized by the Social Committee!

In the past, we cruised down the Connecticut River looking for bald eagles. We've gone to the movies. And we had a great Boston city walk on St. Patrick's Day, followed by pizza.

WRITTEN BY YOU FOR YOU

View from the Chair

By Jim Plouffe, Chapter Chair

In the upcoming months, there are several events planned for the membership. These events have been planned for a wide range of members, from the casual armchair member, to the active outdoor member, to the young families that populate a lot of our membership. These events highlight the very ideals that we stress in our Chapter, from Conservation and revitalization efforts to pure recreation and camaraderie to the fostering of outdoor education to our very youngest members. We have worked hard to provide the best possible experience for our members while trying to make it “wallet-friendly.” In most cases, the attempts have been made to reduce the actual cost of these events so the burden is lifted from families with struggling means.

The first of our events is a perfect example— the first Annual Family Weekend at Noble View Outdoor Center in Russell, MA. August 17-19th, we’ve planned a 2-night family getaway at this wonderful location, just two hours outside of Boston. At only $55 a person for the entire weekend (up to a $200 max for families), we’ve developed an affordable yet exciting weekend for both children and adults alike. This is an ideal time to expose the youngest members to what we hold so close to our hearts. Next, we’ve planned a great trails event for our new project at D.W. Field Park in Brockton. With the help of the AMC professional staff, we’ve planned a day long program to teach about trail creation and maintenance. This project will be well served by this new addition to our ongoing efforts to revitalize this National Historic Register park.

Shortly after our trails event, we will be having our annual party, um, well, Chapter Hut Weekend. We basically take over Cold River Camp for the long weekend of September 20th through 23rd. While we will be having varying recreational events, it is also a perfect time to relax on the front porch or in a cozy cabin and just sip a drink or converse with your friends. This event sold out last year and is very close to doing so again, so reserve your spot. Now, rounding out our major events (not including all the hikes, bikes, paddles, and ski trips), we have the SEM Annual Dinner on November 3rd. This event is a little more formal of an event than our typical event, but always proves to be a great time. This year, we will be travelling back to Onset to Salerno’s, a great function hall in a wonderful location.

I hope you join me in one or all of these events as I finish up the last of my terms as Chapter Chair. It shall be fun.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

By Julianne Capone
Membership Committee

Are the kids already complaining of boredom? Has the illusion already disappeared that summer is supposed to be a constant pool party, backyard barbeque, or trip to Disney?

The Appalachian Mountain Club has many offerings for kids and families to break up the monotony of summer.

The Southeastern Chapter will be offering our first annual Family Weekend at Noble View Camp August 18-19th, it will definitely be a weekend full of activities for all ages! There is also a new website (kids.outdoors.org) specifically for families in the Boston and NYC area; the site is loaded with tips, discussions, and exciting events! There are always simpler activities that can foster curiosities in the outdoors such as pitching a tent in the backyard for a night of “camping“, collecting bugs in a jar, bird watching with a pair of binoculars, pressing flowers, flying a kite, or a contest to grow the tallest sunflower!

Think back to your childhood, it’s probably where your interest in the outdoors started! Put an end to the complaining, boredom, television, and video games today!

CONSERVATION COMMITTEE

D.W. Field Project Work Day - June 10, 2012

By Maureen Kelly, Conservation Chair

Volunteers: Alan Greenstein, Becky Strohe, Doug Griffiths, Marty Griffiths, Mike Curtin, John Plouffe, Jim Plouffe, Maureen Kelly

On Sunday morning, June 10, SEM chapter had its second work event at D.W. Field Park in Brockton. Eight people arrived by 8:00 am to put in a half day's work. The weather was beautiful and although we were fearful of the mosquitoes, the breeze kept them away for the most part. Even though the gates were shut, many local people were out that morning to use the park: dog walkers, runners, walkers and bikers.

We didn't have a fully solid plan of what we were going to do that day other than to continue with trail widening and clearing, and trash pickup. We knew that we wanted to open up some of the views of the water and reduce the thick undergrowth between the trail and the road. We drove to the first parking lot and sat on the benches to enjoy the view of the water, except we couldn't see the water. Well, I'm exaggerating a little but there was a lot of vegetation along the edge of the pond and you couldn't see the water very well. Jim Plouffe said, "well, here's our first task of the day, let's open up the view to the water here from these benches."

I am the kind of person that doesn't like to cut things down (killing as opposed to allowing to grow) but sometimes cutting things down improves an area and makes it more enjoyable. We got to work with saws, loppers and clippers and when we had finished, it looked great! We left a small birch tree and 2 matching clumps of alder shrubs that the bees were visiting and also a mound of poison ivy that no one was willing to pull out. It looked so good that we wanted to make it even better, as if it were our own backyards. We raked out the dead leaves, pulled up the tree sprouts, picked up the trash and wished we had a lawnmower to finish off the job.

I'm amazed at the amount of wildlife in this urban park. A large bullfrog supervised our work for a while and a flicker parent fed his/her babies who were nesting high in a dead tree. We could see the head poking out of the hole looking for more. A pair of swans protected 5 rather large, fluffy-down young between them and a bright male pumpkinseed sunfish was guarding his nest. White water-lilies dotted the edges of the pond and the center of the pond where it wasn't very deep. Blueberry bushes were everywhere.

The southern end of 30-Acre Pond where we were working has some areas that are used for unwanted activities: casual meet-ups, drug use and homeless camps. While the rest of us were working on the first clearing project, Alan Greenstein, looking slightly alien covered in safety gear, used his power cutter to take down shrubs and small trees in two of these areas of unwanted activity. Our thought was that if we opened up the area and gave it more visibility, the activity would move elsewhere. Mike Curtin was the clearer behind Alan and removed and stacked the cut brush in neat piles. The hand-tools group, Doug and Marty Griffiths, Becky Strohe, John Plouffe, Jim Plouffe and me came in and cut the smaller shrubs and plants, hauled trash and did the finish work. The area was opened up to views of the pond in 3 places and the visibility from the trail and road were improved.

After trail work –

Thank you to the volunteers that came on June 10 for our work project; we worked well together. Our next phase of the project at D.W. Field Park is to begin to GPS the trails to produce a trails map, continue with trail widening and maintenance and look at replacing the dilapidated benches along the pond. Please consider joining us in this endeavor to improve the conditions of an urban, Southeastern Massachusetts park. Email chair@amcsem.org or conservationchair@amcsem.org or call Jim at 508-562-0051 for more information or to help. Thank you.

Ironmen and Ironwomen Wanted

D.W. Field Park in Brockton is hosting its 8th annual Mini-Triathlon on Sunday, September 23, 2012. I would like to see if we could get some AMCSEM participants in this event. Put together your own team of 3 or sign up for your favorite event and I'll make up teams. I know we have people that do these activities on a regular basis and do them well. This will be a fun event and a way to publicize AMCSEM to the greater Brockton community. Proceeds support the Brockton Neighborhood Health Center, an important part of health care in the city.

Chapter Youth Program and Girl Scout Troop 268

By Sally Delisa, CYP Chair

Girl Scouts®

The Chapter Youth Program (CYP) found a good match with Girl Scout Troop 268 in Marshfield. Throughout the year we provided assistance for their Camping Interest Project. Walt Granda demonstrated a variety of packs along with information about essential clothing and pack contents. George Danis taught the girls how to use a compass and trail maps. Joyce Wallis, with assistance from her husband, Luther, demonstrated cooking with a reflector oven and making ice cream. Sally Delisa provided training in Leave No Trace, Hiking Safety, and Lost in the Woods.

For our grand finale, we led them on a hike in Nelson Memorial Forest. The girls ate a brown bag supper while overlooking the North River. CYP Leaders Eva Borsody-Das, Joyce Wallis, and Sally Delisa provided thirteen girls and their four adult chaperones with song, plant identification, and development of individual awareness while in the forest environment.

Girl Scouts were a good match for us at this year. It was amazing that none of the girls had walked in those beautiful woodlands in their home town!

HIKING COMMITTEE

Take a Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

Most hikers, at some point, will get blisters on their feet. The usual precautions are: break in new footwear, start slowly and build up to bigger mileage, wear a liner sock, or don't wear a liner sock, keep band-aids and bandages handy, etc. All well and good; do whatever works. But if you really want to head off blister problems, practice the tip below.

Tip: Air out your feet. Yep, that's the best advice I was ever given on avoiding blisters, and I learned it at a seminar in New Hampshire that prepared AT thru-hikers. The advice has served me well. In the photo, I'm at Kearsarge Pass in the Sierras on the Pacific Crest Trail. My boots and socks are airing out; my feet are absorbing air and sunlight. After break, I will put what was my left sock on my right foot and reverse the process during my next break. I will also wear my socks inside out after the first break and reverse this procedure several times a day.

This may seem like overkill, but I've never gotten a raw blister on my feet. Bacteria thrive in moist, stinky, air-deprived spots. And these are the spots that chafe and turn into blisters. The trick is to air out your feet, and keep your socks dry. I probably carry too many socks, but I change out of wet socks, hang the wet ones on my pack straps, and put on new socks. Like you, I hate blisters.

Thursday Morning Hikers Conservation Finale

By Sally Delisa, Hike Leader

The theme of our season's final Thursday Morning Hike was "Conservation".

Our wildflower list included more than a hundred prime pink lady's slippers, starflower, Canada mayflower, sheep's laurel, sarsaparilla, bellwort, buttercups, goats-beard, lance-leaved violets, toadflax, blue flag, cinquefoil and an aquatic bladderwort.

Several Baltimore orioles were heard high up in the tree canopy, but only one male was spotted. Other birds included an unidentified warbler, blue jays, robins, red tailed hawk and redwing blackbirds.

Five snakes included a three foot long black racer and a small garter snake. Two unidentified turtles topped our list. The hikers were treated to observing one in the process of laying eggs in the middle of a sandy patch on the trail!

Thursday Morning Hikes will resume in September.

WOODS HOLE RIDE: Six early-risers showed up for the 8:00 AM start in Falmouth Sunday morning. The weather was ideal and the traffic on the Shining Sea bike path was just beginning to pick up. We rode to Woods Hole, where a few of us indulged in the wonderful pastries at Pie in the Sky. We then took a quick spin through the village and around Eel Pond before heading out Church Street to Nobska Light. On Nobska Road we saw more bikes than cars. We then got back on the trail for the ride back to the starting point at Depot Road. Linda, Marie, and Nicole decided that the ten-mile ride was enough, although Linda had pedaled a few miles before the start. John, Wes, and Jon continued up the trail to West Falmouth Harbor and back for an 18 mile total ride through very scenic territory. Perfect weather, few hills, and great company made for a most pleasant morning. Participants: Jon Fortier (leader), Nicole Fortier, Linda Church, Marie Peeler, John Gould, and Wes Ewell.

CYCLING BOOKSHELF

CYCLING ANATOMY by Shannon Sovndal, M.D.

“The cyclist in motion is amazing. So many aspects of human physiology come into play when you ride a bicycle. Your cerebral cortex supplies the motivation and plan of attack when you climb onto your bike. You effortlessly maintain the stability and direction of your bicycle through the unconscious balance and coordination provided by your cerebellum. Your heart and lungs and vascular system supply much-needed oxygen to the mitochondria of your muscles. Through both aerobic and anaerobic energy conversion, your muscles contract and perform a huge amount of work. All this creates heat and your skin and respiration help keep the temperature well regulated. Your skeletal system supplies the structural foundation of the entire system. Nearly every physiologic system needs to function in coordination to allow you to complete your bike ride. If you stop and think it through, you realize that it’s truly remarkable.”

“See what it takes to maximize cycling power, speed, and endurance! Cycling Anatomy will show you how to improve your performance by increasing muscular strength and optimizing the efficiency of every movement. Cycling Anatomy features 74 of the most effective cycling exercises, each with clear, step-by-step descriptions and full-color anatomical illustrations highlighting the primary muscles in action. Cycling Anatomy goes beyond exercises by placing you on the bike and into the throes of competition. Illustrations of the active muscles involved in cornering, climbing, descending, and sprinting show you how the exercises are fundamentally linked to cycling performance. From steep inclines to slick terrains, Cycling Anatomy will ensure you’re prepared for any challenge that comes your way. You’ll also learn how to modify exercises to target specific areas, reduce muscle tension, and minimize common cycling injuries. You’ll also learn ways to pull it all together to develop a training based on your individual needs and goals. Whether you’re training for an upcoming century ride or just want to top that killer hill with strength to spare, Cycling Anatomy will make sure you get the most out of every ride.”

Cyclists' Culinary Corner

Coconut Mixed Berry Crumble

Submitted by Dan Egan

4 cups mixed berries, thawed if frozen
2/3 cup light brown sugar, unpacked
1/2 cup whole wheat flour
1/4 cup quick-cooking oats
2 Tbsp light margarine (like "ICBINB" light)
2 Tbsp butter
1/4 cup shredded coconut

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Toss berries in an 8x8 inch baking pan. Sprinkle the top of the berries with the shredded coconut. Melt the butter and margarine in a small bowl in the microwave (it's fine if it doesn't melt completely). In another small bowl combine sugar, flour and oats. Then add the melted butter and mix until crumbly. Drop bits of the crumble over the berries. Bake until berries just start to bubble, about 35-40 minutes.

RIDING SEASON HAS ARRIVED!

The riding season and weather has finally arrived. Our leaders continue to schedule rides that fit every type of rider, from beginner/introductory rides to easy rider, intermediate and trail (easy off road) rides. If there's something you want to see, let us know. We have a few exciting rides in the planning stages including a day in Nantucket and a weekend tour in the fall. You may even see a ride/cookout coming up soon. Remember, as all AMC activities are, our rides are open to non-members. So tell your friends or better yet, bring them along. If you wish to receive ride announcements via email, please send me an email at bikingchair@amcsem.org.

Biking Safer than the Couch:

By Cassandra Spratling, Detroit Free Press

Physical, mental benefits
Bicycling benefits the mind as well as the body, health professionals say. "Biking builds stamina and upper and lower body strength," says Dr. Ronny Otero, head of emergency medicine at Henry Ford Hospital's Sterling Heights Medical Center. "Studies show that people who bike have better moods and are more efficient workers." "Biking burns a lot of calories without burning you up, and it's a good exercise for the brain," Agrees family medicine physician Dr. Lee Green, professor of medicine at the University of Michigan Health System. "A good workout on the bike can help you unwind." It offers variety as well. "It's a sport that can be done pretty much any way you like — from a leisure ride to a high-speed, long-distance race," he says. "Pretty much anyone can do it because it's easy on your joints." "What's more, bicycling is relatively safe, doctors say. "As a physician, I see more serious consequences from not biking," Green says. "I'd rather treat people for scrapes or a broken collarbone than heart attacks because they didn't bike. Biking is much safer than the sofa. It's sitting on the sofa that kills."

SUMMER SOLSTICE RIDE 2012

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

By Jodi Jensen, Social Chair

Join us on Saturday, July 21, to see the Bridge of Flowers and Glacial Potholes in Shelburne Falls, MA. This trolley bridge was built in 1908. The bridge, no longer in use after 1927, was transformed into the Bridge of Flowers by the Shelburne Falls Woman's Club in 1929.

This is a wonderful hidden gem. The town is also very charming. The movie, "Labor Day," starring Kate Winslet and Josh Brolin was being filmed there in June.

Time permitting, we will also visit High Ledges Wildlife Sanctuary, which has a 4 mile trail system. There will be carpooling options.

Contact Jodi Jensen, leader, at 781-249-8346 or email jodiajensen@gmail.com (preferred).

AMC's Mountain Watch Program is Looking for Volunteers

AMC's Research Department is looking for volunteers to help track flower and fruit timing of mountain plants. AMC depends on its volunteers because researchers can't collect all the information needed to answer science questions and since mountains have high variability as to the flowering and fruiting season.

Volunteers can be highly valuable help in scientific monitoring efforts because they can stay longer than students or staff, are a very dedicated group of individuals and their data quality can be on par with professionals.

Volunteers can sign-up for a one-time volunteer opportunity which is a great way for families to be involved in trail activities or for someone who is looking for a local community conservation engagement

Or volunteers can sign-up for the Basic Plant Monitoring opportunity. Volunteers in this category would watch the plant before, during, and after flowering or fruiting, and they would detail all stages between flower bud development to seed set. The volunteer can choose to Adopt-a-Peak/Trail Section and would perform repeat observations at the same location(s).

Another Successful Trip for AMC's Adventure Travel Program

This past May, 14 participants and 2 leaders hiked approximately 60 miles on the Beara Peninsular in southwest Ireland. The first two days found the trekkers walking through fog as thick as pea soap – typical Irish weather. The following days were under bright blue skies, as the picture above shows, which was the reason the trekkers came home with sun tans! A new online community for getting kids outdoors locally – kids.outdoors.org

AMC has launched a new registration-based online community for parents and youth volunteers interested in “how to” and “where to” advice on getting kids outdoors close to home in the Boston and New York City areas. Each community will offer expert advice and more than 100 outdoor activities, based on content from AMC's AMC Outdoors magazine, “Great Kids, Great Outdoors” blog, and two new books: Outdoors with Kids Boston and Outdoors with Kids New York City. Each community will also offer:

- Ability to search for recommended outdoor trips via Google Maps
- A local blog focused on outdoor advice and ideas for parents
- A local event calendar, including AMC chapter family activities
- Ability to share a trip idea, photos, comments, ratings
- Ability to share any trip or post via social media

How you can help

- The site is live now for your viewing pleasure: <http://kids.outdoors.org/>
 - If you have kids, or work with kids, share your own trip ideas or contribute to discussions
 - Use the Facebook recommend and Tweet buttons on the site to tell your friends
 - If you are tabling at a family event, we can provide you will cool KO stickers and other materials
 - If you find any issues, or want to suggest improvements, send them along to Kelly Powers at kpowers@outdoors.org
 - Don't forget to tell families about our new Outdoors with Kids Boston and NYC books, available at PNVC, Highland Center, and our online store.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: www.amcsem.org, Documents.

The Southeast Breeze, the e-newsletter of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter (SEM) of the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC), is published 12 times a year. Editor: Cheryl Lathrop, Asst. EDUCATION COMMITTEE

Wilderness First Aid (WFA) training
November 17 & 18, 2012
Borderland State Park
North Easton, MA

The WFA course runs 8:30-4 Saturday and Sunday. SOLO has been engaged to provide the instruction. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. Pricing includes lunch and break service both days.

Register with Len Ulbricht, Education Chair, at lenu44@gmail.com

Wilderness First Aid Course (WFA)

Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations.

Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify.

Babesiosis cases double on Cape

Lyme disease isn't the only tick-borne illness threatening Cape Codders. Cases of babesiosis and anaplasmosis doubled in Massachusetts between 2010 and 2011, and much like with Lyme disease the Cape and Islands are hot spots for the emerging diseases. Also known as Nantucket fever, babesiosis wasn't even identified until the 1970s... [READ MORE]

HIKING COMMITTEE

Take a Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

Hello fellow hikers. Have you ever wondered whether you should hike in boots or trail shoes? My old leather boots on the right in the picture are more than twice as heavy as my trail shoes on the left. I had read somewhere that if your backpack weighs over forty pounds, you are better off with boots for ankle support.

I also remember reading (and know from banged up knees) that extra weight on your feet tires you out and makes you vulnerable to trips and falls.

Here's the thing: Pack light and you can wear trail shoes, otherwise known as hiking shoes, instead of heavier boots. For me, wearing trail shoes rather than boots has made a big difference in how I feel at the end of the day. I haven't hiked in boots for almost seven years and have much more energy on the trail. If I keep my pack weight (includes food, but not water) under thirty pounds, I'm fine in well-built trail shoes.

Remember, we are not talking "sneakers." We're talking supportive trail shoes, which are sold at the major hiking and outdoor stores. Although boots keep getting lighter as Gore-Tex replaces leather, trail shoes have become more versatile and are built to last. And they are quick and convenient. For a comprehensive summary of trail shoes, see this article on low-cut hiking boots in Backpacker magazine.

A sweet problem: Princeton researchers find that high-fructose corn syrup prompts considerably more weight gain

Posted Mar 25, 2010 By Laurie Bellerio

A Princeton University research team has demonstrated that all sweeteners are not equal when it comes to weight gain:

Rats with access to high-fructose corn syrup gained significantly more weight than those with access to table sugar, even when their overall caloric intake was the same.

In addition to causing significant weight gain in lab animals, long-term consumption of high-fructose corn syrup also led to abnormal increases in body fat, especially in the abdomen, and a rise in circulating blood fats called triglycerides. The researchers say the work sheds light on the factors contributing to obesity trends in the United States.

YOU: The Owner's Manual

By MEHMET OZ, MD and MIKE ROIZEN, MD

Between your full-length mirror and high-school biology class, you probably think you know a lot about the human body. While it's true that we live in an age when we're as obsessed with our bodies as we are with celebrity hairstyles, the reality is that most of us know very little about what chugs, churns, and thumps throughout this miraculous, scientific, and artistic system of anatomy. Yes, you've owned your skin-covered shell for decades, but you probably know more about your cell-phone plan than you do about your own body. When it comes to your longevity and quality of life, understanding your internal systems gives you the power, authority, and ability to live a healthier, younger, and better life.

PADDLING COMMITTEE

Trip Report - Boston Harbor Outer Islands, Wed 11 Jul

Participants: Alex Russo, Jim Michard and George Wey, Leader

It was a perfect day for paddling to the Boston Harbor outer islands, very little boat traffic and a calm flat sea except for gentle swells beyond the outer Islands. We put-in at 10:30, went through the Gut on the Peddocks Island side, paddled over to Georges Island, crossed the Narrows between Georges and Lovells Island, and went along the Great Brewster Spit which is exposed at low water. When we reached the channel between Great Brewster and Calf Island we decided to forgo lunch on Calf Island and head out to Graves Light. We passed by Middle Brewster, Calf and Little Calf Islands, crossed the Hypocrite Channel, then pass Green Island and the exposed ledges of the Roaring Bulls and finally reached The Graves. There we encountered seals and a scuba diver looking for lobsters. The Lighthouse was completed in 1903 about the same time the government created the North Channel into Boston Harbor. After circling The Graves we headed back towards Outer Brewster to have lunch and found a place on its rugged shoreline to land next to remnants of a structure built during WW2 (see attached pictures). After lunch we proceeded past Middle Brewster then over to Boston Light, the oldest manned lighthouse in the United States located on Little Brewster Island. We paddled adjacent to the main ship channel towards Georges Island then across to Hull, through the Gut on the Hull side and back to the Put-in, arriving back at 3:00 for a trip total of 13.3 miles paddled. --George Wey

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: www.amcsem.org, Documents.

Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations.

Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify.

HIKING COMMITTEE

Take a Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

I go nuts in outdoor stores. Everything looks good, and I try to rationalize that items I don't need may come in handy.

Hiking Tip: Improvise and save $. Here are a couple of ways you can be frugal and get the job done.

Sleeping warm I found that I became colder in my bag by morning. I was convinced dampness seeped up through my tent floor and through my pad into my sleeping bag. Obvious solution---buy a warmer bag. Then I remembered several hikers who placed contractor insulation paper on their tent floor and put their sleeping pad over that. I can tell you it makes a difference, in the same way such insulation retards cold and moisture from getting into your house. Tyvek insulation paper does the same thing that DuPont and other insulation paper will. A local carpenter cut me the piece above, and it weighs next to nothing.

Mesh Dunk and Storage Bags To air out stinky clothes, to soak or chill something in a stream, to store garbage, etc., meshed ditty bags, sold in outdoor shops, are popular on the trail and in camps. But the citrus bags (holding oranges and grapefruit), which my wife brings home from the grocer work just fine. I save them and use a couple of new ones on every extended hike. They do the job, and I'll never run out.

You work hard for your dollars, so improvise and save a few. Happy trails!

Where would you like to go? AMC Adventure Travel can help you get there!

(Submitted by Robin Melavalin)

Join other outdoorsy folks on an AMC hike in Morocco, the Alps, New Zealand, Patagonia, Hawaii, Ireland, Death Valley or Yosemite. There are over 20 trips to choose from, with a wide variety of activities and skill levels, and more will be added this fall. Sign up now for travel in 2013 and get ready to start packing! Trips are listed at this link <http://activities.outdoors.org/search/index.cfm?type=2&sortby=date>.

Want to lead AMC Adventure Travel programs? We are always looking for more co-leaders and leaders. Design trips to suit your schedule, abilities and activity interests (hiking, biking, skiing, horseback riding, paddling, etc.) and go to the places you want to. Always dreamed of visiting Alaska? Hiking hut-to-hut in the Alps? Kayaking in Baja? Here's your chance! The leader and co-leader travel at low cost or free, depending on the number of participants. The annual training for AT leadership is in CT the weekend before Thanksgiving, with registration due Nov 1. You must be a leader in your local chapter before co-leading an AT trip, but if you are in the process of becoming a leader you may attend the training since it is only offered once a year. The training registration packet and more information about the requirements are available online at <http://activities.outdoors.org/search/index.cfm/action/details/id/63554>.

D.W. Field Park's 8th Annual Mini-Triathlon
Sunday, September 23, 2012 at 9:00am

The women are leading the way! One team of 3 SEM women will be participating in this event to promote our role in revitalizing D.W. Field Park and to support the Brockton Neighborhood Health Center. Karen Singleton will be riding the 14 mile bike leg, Audrey Wood will be paddling the 1.7 mile kayak leg and Maureen Kelly will be running the 4 mile road race leg. Participants will receive a free T-shirt, free post-race feast and free professional massage. We hope to interest more individuals or teams in joining us for the race. If you would like to be part of the race, contact Maureen at conservationchair@amcsem.org. If you don't want to participate, come and cheer us on! TRAILS COMMITTEE

Announcement from Brendan Taylor North Country Trails Volunteer Programs Supervisor Appalachian Mountain Club

Region Leader George Brown instructing some volunteers in trail maintenance

We are looking for a Region Leader for our Adopt-A-Trail Program in the White Mountains.

We have two Region Leader positions to fill, one in the Northern Presidential region of New Hampshire and the Northern Mahoosuc region in Maine. The responsibility of the Region Leader is to oversee all of the AMC maintained trails within their region and aid the volunteer adopters in their effort to complete basic maintenance. This includes going out on the trail with adopters on occasion to look at the trail conditions, teaching basic trail skills when needed, and collecting trail work reports from adopters. These work reports are compiled by the Region Leader and entered into a Region Leader report, which is passed along to the North Country Trails Volunteer Programs Supervisor who uses them to plan volunteer work party projects. Collecting these reports is a requirement of this position, as is attending 2 annual meetings of Region Leaders in the Spring and Fall, and hiking all of the trails in your region at least once every two years.

The job description is on the following page --

TRAILS COMMITTEE

Adopt-A-Trail Program

Region Leader Description of Duties

WHITE MOUNTAIN TRAILS

The job of the Region Leader is to insure that basic trail maintenance has been completed according to AMC standards. Each Region Leader supervises a group of Adopters in a designated Region of the White Mountains and will also have opportunities, throughout the year, to lead volunteer trail crews. All Region Leaders will automatically be included as At-Large members of the White Mountain Trails Sub-Committee.

The Region Leader should be an experienced Adopter and avid hiker. At least half of the assigned trails should be patrolled and reported on each year, so 100% coverage is obtained in two years. Region Leaders should be prepared for a two-year commitment, hopefully more, to maintain continuity with the Adopters and familiarity with the trails. Region Leaders will receive direction and assistance from the AMC North Country Trails Volunteer Programs Supervisor (NCTVPS). Region Leaders are required to complete both the Alpine and Basic Skills Sessions, or the Region Leader's Skills Session, every three years. Current Region Leaders are an excellent resource to new Region Leaders – feel free to contact them for advice.

Basic trail maintenance: drainage cleaning, brushing, blazing, cairn and screewall maintenance, blowdown removal, litter removal, camouflaging bootleg sites, etc. is the primary focus of Adopters. Region Leaders are responsible for patrolling every assigned trail, with the adopter if possible, accurately recording observations on the Trails Condition Report: AMC Trails Program Region Leader Report. Forward copies of the report to the NCTVPS.

The Region Leader will receive and maintain individual Adopter files. He/she should meet and get to know each Adopter as possible. The Region Leader is the primary recipient of Adopter work reports. Copies are mailed or e-mailed to the NCTVPS after the Region Leader checks for errors, answers inquiries, and responds to issues - all essential to good Adopter/Region Leader relations. Region Leader reports, particularly criticism of marginal or incomplete work, must be constructive and supportive. Any significant problems with Adopters will be reviewed with the NCTVPS before responding. Region Leaders send out letters or e-mails at least once a year (spring and/or fall) to their Adopters and keep in regular communication with them. A reminder at each report deadline is also very helpful.

Region Leaders keep track of who is submitting reports, and contact those who are not. This is essential to the health of the program, and the trails. To properly assess an Adopter's work, the Region Leader must know the original condition of the trail, as well as special trail characteristics: blazing color, type of use, trail environment, possible construction or relocation projects. Bringing long-ignored, basic maintenance up to standard often takes two to three years. Apart from Region Leaders, AMC trails are randomly monitored by the USFS, State Parks, AMC trails staff, and the general public. Any significant comments relating to Adopter work will be passed on to the Region Leaders.

This is a basic description of the responsibilities. If you are interested, we can follow up with a more detailed Region Leader Agreement.

The Big Blue Book on Bicycle Repair

Written by C. Calvin Jones

(book review)

I am a Walter Mitty type mechanic. So when I saw this book I thought that I might add it to my bookshelf. After all, I usually buy the repair manuals to the automobiles I drive and those manuals have saved me a ton of dough over the years that I have owned the cars. However, you might think twice about this bicycle repair manual. It's not very user friendly. It skips from off-road bicycles to road bicycles and is generally tedious when it comes time to fix a derailleur or change a chain. Heaven forbid you should try to change a cable. Too few illustrations combined with boring text makes it a nice paper weight but not much more. (If you read this drop me an e-mail-thanks) My suggestion would be to find a video on YouTube before you start your repair. Those are far more straightforward and comprehensible. Remember to carry those spare tubes. I've added a chain tool to my kit. My record walk because of a broken chain is four miles. I just pretended I was in the Blue Hills hiking- a broken chain is worse than a flat tire. You can ride a flat even though it's slow. It's a no go with a broken chain.

PADDLING COMMITTEE

Trip Report Assonet River to Battleship Cove August 1, 2012

Participants: Audrey Wood, Hope Haff, Haven Roosevelt (C/L), and Gif Allen (L)

After fighting off a Canada goose and her 3 goslings, Haven and I were able to bring our kayaks down to the boat ramp. Audrey and Hope arrived and loaded their boats. We were off at 10:30 on an outgoing tide. Leaving the Assonet River entrance behind us, it quickly became apparent that we were not going to make Battleship Cove seven miles ahead. Although the Braga Bridge seemed just a short distance away, a outgoing tide pushing us along, the wind was cranking up the Taunton River slowing our progress. So shortly before noon we headed over to a secluded beach on the shores of the Fall River Country Club.

After a short lunch break, we continued down river with a new destination of Steep Brook. Steep Brook is half way from the entrance of the Assonet River to Battleship Cove. Low tide at Steep Brook was at 1:15 PM. On our way Linda Sullivan joined us. At Steep Brook we headed back leaving Linda to, regrettably, continue on by herself. The wind was now behind us and the tide had turned in our favor. Progress back was quick and easy; however, we were concerned if there would be sufficient water to make it back to the put-in. For those of us familiar with the Hathaway Park ramp, we knew the extreme muddy conditions that exist there. I mean this place makes low tide at Plymouth Harbor nice. Fortunately, we timed the tide correctly. Arriving any earlier would have been disastrous.

All packed up and on our way by 3:15 PM. Total distance: 11.7 miles.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: www.amcsem.org, Documents.

Wilderness First Aid Course (WFA)

Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations.

Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify.

Take a Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

Hello fellow hikers. Today I'd like to talk about hiking with children.

Kids need to stay active. They also thrive in new and challenging situations. Why not take them on an overnight camping trip in the mountains? I have a grandson named, Jack. He's ten years old and a typical gadget-gamer of our modern age. It was time to introduce him to hiking.

Last year, we climbed Mt. Zealand and stayed in the AMC hut. The day we hiked was neither the time nor the place for games and gadgetry; we were out to enjoy nature and get some exercise. I had two quarters in my pocket, and made a wager with Jack: If he saw the first animal, he would get a quarter. "Be on the lookout," I'd said. I showed him the trail markers and gave him the job of following the blazes on the trees while I walked behind. A couple of times he wandered, not finding a blaze. "Then, look behind you," I'd said. And, sure enough, he would see a blaze, which confirmed our heading.

But he was more interested in quarters. "Grandpa, do birds count?" he asked, as he spotted what looked like a crow. "No," I said. A few minutes later, he pointed with a wry grin, "What about frogs?" "Well, I suppose," and I handed him a quarter. "But I mean a real animal. I've got one more quarter if you see something first that's furry and runs on legs."

At the hut, by the waterfall, we snacked. Several hikers and a family sat nearby. I was beginning to think that we might not see any animals, for I hadn't even spotted a squirrel. After lunch Jack asked if fish counted as he looked in a rocky pool of water. I just looked at him and matched his wry grin. But on the way over to the hut, I saw a blur of something dart to my right. "Grandpa, a chipmunk!" "Right!" I handed Jack his quarter.

The mountains and kids; it's a great combination.

Book Review

American Canopy-

Trees, Forests, and the Making of a Nation

Eric Rutkow

ISBN 978-1-4391-9354-9

I found American Canopy when browsing at the Bourne Public Library and was captivated by its striking cover illustration, Cathedral Forest, an Alfred Bierstadt painting. American Canopy is not your typical layman's book about trees or forests with a focus on the here and now – tree varieties and their recognition or evolution of forest groves. It's about 400 years of history of the American forest, a seemingly unbounded asset in the early 1600s that fell to man's widespread clear cutting practices, 40% having been cut and gone 300 years later, but through the subsequent forest management practices has today recovered to 75% of the original stands of timber. Along the way, American Canopy touches on fascinating tidbits of American history: the King's trees needed to insure Britain's preeminence of the seas, Liberty Tree impact on revolutionary planning, Weyhauser's cut and get out logging practices, the rise of forest management science under Theodore Roosevelt, FDR's own woodlot being the roots of the CCC, and a graduate student's cutting the oldest tree in the country, a 5000 year old bristlecone pine, to count the rings because his core boring tool broke. What was he thinking. But this book is not all history, as it also relates how forests worldwide play a role in global warming today. Destroy forests and carbon dioxide increases, but retain or expand forests and carbon dioxide is removed from the atmosphere. American Canopy instills a deeper appreciation for the forests we have and the woods we hike through.

Sharing Your Photos Through AMC's Social Media

When you're outdoors on an AMC chapter trip, do you bring along your camera? If so, share your adventures with us! We're always looking for great images of people recreating, wildlife, plants, and landscapes for our Facebook Page and Twitter feed. Send images (and captions/photo credit information) from your chapter's latest hike, paddle, volunteer trail day, bird watch, or other adventure to AMC's Social Media Associate, Josh Lake, jlake@outdoors.org. Please note that images shared may be used on any of AMC's social media pages and that you must have permission from all identifiable people in photographs before sharing the image with us. Thank you!

It's Time to Enter the 2012 AMC Photo Contest! Deadline is November 15!

AMC's 18th annual photo contest begins on September 4th. This year's Grand Prize winner will receive a spot in an upcoming photography workshop and an accompanying stay at an AMC destination. Winners of the "Kids, Families, and Adults Outdoors," "Scenics and Nature," "AMC in Action," and "People's Choice" categories will receive great outdoor gear prizes from Outdoor Research, Tubbs Snowshoes, and other manufacturers. For complete rules and entry instructions, visit www.outdoors.org/photocontest. Entries will be accepted until November 15th, with the winners appearing in a spring 2013 issue of AMC Outdoors.

TEAM WILLY—Will I Leave A Legacy, Yes!

Are you interested in investing in the future of AMC? Then we hope that you will consider joining Willy Ashbrook, Chair of Team Willy and member of AMC's Board of Directors, as well as, other club members in leaving your legacy with the AMC through your estate plans. Please know that a gift at any level will have a major impact on all AMC programs. To learn more, visit www.outdoors.org/plannedgiving or call Jim Hamilton at 617.391.6585.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: www.amcsem.org, Documents.

The Southeast Breeze, the e-newsletter of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter (SEM) of the Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC), is published 12 times a year. Editor: Cheryl Lathrop, Asst. ADIRONDACK CAMPING TRIP

September 13-16

By Mike Woessner

This past September Mike Woessner, Cindy Woessner, Sue Salmon, Kevin Mulligan, Lesley Carson, Ken Carson, Sui-Wen and George Yang of the Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter of the AMC spent a few days camping in the Adirondack State Park in northern New York State. The Adirondack Park is 6 million acres of both privately owned and public lands. Unlike New Hampshire which has a lakes region and the White Mountains, the Adirondacks are a mixture of both mountains and lakes. The tallest mountain being Mt. Marcy at just over 1 mile high and the longest lake, Lake Champlain, on the eastern border at 90 miles long stretching into Canada.

The group first visited the Adirondack Museum in Blue Mountain Lake. The museum's vast campus features displays in 22 modern exhibition galleries and historic buildings. There are lush grounds and sweeping views. The exhibitions tell the unique story of the Adirondacks and its people.

The next stop was dinner at the Adirondack Mountain Club's (ADK) Loj in Lake Placid. The Loj is located on Heart Lake and is indeed in the Heart of the Adirondacks. Trails from here offer access to the high peaks region from the north. While a ½ hour drive to the west puts you in Saranac Lake, prime canoeing country.

After spending the night in tents at the ADK camp ground the group climbed Mt. Algonquin, the second highest peak at 5,115 ft. weather and time prohibited summiting. However, the group had many fine views of surrounding peaks and Lake Placid Olympic village. The hikers returned to their base camp and enjoyed a hearty spaghetti and meatball dinner, then a roaring campfire before retiring for the night.

The plan for the following day was to canoe Saranac Lake into Lake Flower. However, temperatures in the low 50s and a strong wind changed plans to some shopping, site seeing and lunch in Lake Placid Village. Then the group drove up the Veterans Memorial Auto Road to the summit cone of Whiteface Mountain. From there they hiked the ¼ mile up to the summit at 4,857 ft. The group enjoyed many fine views of northern New York, Vermont, Lake Champlain and Canada. After a tour of the observation deck some of the group took the elevator down 276 ft. to a 424 ft. tunnel, all bored thru solid granite. That night's dinner was at one of Lake Placid's fine restaurants to celebrate a great trip and plans were made for future trips.

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers. September ended another season of Red Lining the Blue Hills (RLBH). We had our end-of-season celebration and awards dinner at the Fat Cactus restaurant in Braintree. Twenty-four hikers attended, and the pictures below tell the story. The man in glasses pointing to his patch is Jerry Yos. Jerry is 82 years old and was awarded his first-time patch for completing all the trails in the Blue Hills Reservation. Congratulations, Jerry! The man in the yellow shirt with the big smile is Alan Greenstein. Standing behind him, to the right, is Randy

Mills. Both hikers received recognition for attending the most hikes this season—20 out of 23 scheduled weekly hikes. Randy was a rookie this year; Alan has received patches before for his accomplishments. Congratulations to both. Our three leaders appear in the other picture. From left to right, we have Michael Swartz, Joe Keogh, and Maureen Kelly. Our thanks go to them for leading us on all the great Thursday night hikes this past season. And that's our SEM-AMC Breeze editor, Cheryl, with her Red Line the Blue Hills T-shirt!

We hope more new members will sign up next year for the RLBH hikes. April isn't that far away.

Adventure Travel Leader Training

Visit some of the most exciting places in the world as the leader of an AMC Adventure Travel Trip! AMC Adventure Travel Leadership Training is scheduled for Friday-Sunday, November 16-18, 2012. This workshop provides important training to people who have AMC activity leadership experience (no beginners please) to transition from leading weekend chapter activities to more complex and longer trips, domestically and overseas. AMC Adventure Travel Leadership Training emphasizes planning, cost estimating, trip management, people skills, and risk management. You'll also learn procedures and guidelines for researching, proposing, and leading Adventure Travel trips and have the chance to exchange ideas, problems, and solutions with some of the AMC's most skilled leaders. Cost is approximately $85, which includes 2 nights lodging, 2 breakfasts, 2 lunches and 1 dinner. For more information or if you have questions, contact Merri Fox (860-485-1697) or see

<http://www.outdoors.org/recreation/adventure-travel/leadership-training.cfm>

First Day Trips

AMC's leaders will offer First Day events on January 1, 2013 as part of a nationwide celebration of state parks. Plan a trip or plan to attend. Whether you are on foot, snow shoe or on the water, it's a great way to start the New Year. All trips are listed at <http://activities.outdoors.org>. If you will be in some other part of the country, you can still enjoy a First Day trip by visiting <http://www.americasstateparks.org/first-day-hikes>

Learn Outdoor Skills - Become an AMC Leader

New AMC Book

AMC Books has just released of Mountain Voices: Stories of Life and Adventure in the White Mountains and Beyond, compiled and edited by Rebecca Oreskes and Doug Mayer. In this collection of interviews that have appeared in Appalachia, fifteen profiles capture fascinating stories of travel, adventure, and lifelong passion for nature, along with the spirit of the people who choose to live in the craggy, remote North Country. Over nearly two decades, authors Doug Mayer and Rebecca Oreskes have interviewed extraordinary people whose lives are intricately linked to New Hampshire's White Mountains.

In their own words, Brad and Barbara Washburn enumerate their groundbreaking mountaineering exploits, and Rick Wilcox discusses search and rescue efforts. Woodsmen like Ben English tell of their work on hiking trails, and George Hamilton recounts his career in AMC's high huts. White Mountain icons such as boot maker Karl Limmer and Ellen Teague of the Mount Washington Cog Railway offer accounts of their esteemed careers in the mountains. Guy and Laura Waterman detail the development of their backwoods ethics philosophy. Historical photographs accompany each interview.

A perfect companion to the book is the new 2013 Mountain Photography Bradford Washburn Calendar, full of spectacular images from Alaska, the Swiss and French Alps, and New Hampshire's White Mountains.

You can order directly from the AMC at www.outdoors.org/amcstore or by calling 800-262-4455.

The 137th Annual Summit of the Appalachian Mountain Club will be held on Saturday, January 26, 2013, at the Four Points by Sheraton in Norwood, Massachusetts. We are pleased to announce that Audrey Peterman, President and Co-founder of Earthwise Productions, will be the keynote speaker.

Audrey, along with her husband, Frank, has been credited with making millions aware of the National Park System and its relevance to their lives. Audrey is a national-award winning environmentalist and is a role model for engaging citizens in conservation. She brings a unique understanding of what motivates people of color to connect with the outdoors.

Audrey participated in several White House initiatives including the launch of America's Great Outdoors and the White House Conference on Conservation. Additionally, Audrey is the recipient of the Environmental Hero Award from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, as well as the Marjory Stoneman Douglas Outstanding Citizen Conservationist Award from the National Parks Conservation Association.

Special Celebration: YOP 45! Join AMC in celebrating our Youth Opportunities Program's 45th year of helping at-risk and urban youth get outdoors!

To register or obtain more information log onto our Annual Summit website.

Added Bonus: Book ten (10) seats for the dinner program and we will reserve a table for you.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: <http://amcsem.org/documents.html>

View from the Chair

By Cheryl Lathrop

Hello!

I had the distinct privilege of being elected as Chapter Chair at the AMC SEM Annual Meeting on November 3, 2012. In fact, your entire 16-member 2013 executive board was elected that night. On page 2 of the e-Breeze, you'll see the new 2013 board. And on behalf of the chapter, I thank each and every volunteer for stepping up.

I'm especially excited to work with my fellow officers. Maureen Kelly is Vice Chapter Chair. I am a hike leader and the former Communications Chair; Maureen is a hike leader and the former Conservation Chair. Returning for another year are Karen Singleton, board secretary, and Patty Rottmeier, board treasurer. You'll be in good hands this year!

We extend a special thank you to our outgoing 2012 officers: Jim Plouffe as Chapter Chair and Luther Wallis as Vice Chapter Chair, for leading us so well in 2012. And a thank you to all 2012 committee chairs for a great year! Be sure to read our 2012 Annual Report, available on our website, amcsem.org (click on 'documents'); you'll find summaries for each of our committees for 2012.

Now some very exciting news from your Executive Board! Your board has gone electronic! We had our first board meeting with the new board on November 14. Everyone was remote. Folks dialed in for audio using freeconferencecall.com. They logged in for visual at join.me where they saw my computer screen running PowerPoint slides and being shared over the internet. We use a shared calendar to keep us on track at google.com. We use a blog at blogspot.com for our monthly committee reports. And we are sending out meeting/event invitations using evite.com. No more driving. No more paper. And all these tech services are free.

I look forward to an exciting year in 2013 of AMC SEM activities brought to you by your committee chairs! Get ready for some great hikes, cape hikes, bikes, paddles, trail work, training, conservation, CYP, and skiing—as well as family and social events.

I'LL SEE YOU ALL OUTSIDE!

Adaption of Twas the Night Before Christmas Poem

By Jim Plouffe

Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the brush
Not a creature was stirring, not even a thrush.
The stockings were hung by the great oak with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there.

The children were nestled all snug in their sheds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads.
And mamma in her fleece, and I in my gaiters',
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's hiatus.

When out on the snow pack there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from the -20 sleeping bag to see what was the matter.
Away to the vestibule I flew like I'd cry,
Tore open the screen and threw up the fly.

The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow
Gave the lustre of mid-day to objects at a gear show.
When, what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer.

With a little old driver, so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name!

"Now Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! On, Cupid!, On Donner and Blitzen!
To the top of the pine! to the top of the rock wall!
Now dash away! Dash away! Dash away all!"

As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky.
So up to the mountain-top the coursers they flew,

With the sleigh full of Toys, and St. Nicholas too.
And then, in a twinkling, I heard on the tent roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof.
As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Through the side window St. Nicholas came with a bound.

He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot.
A bundle of Toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler, just opening his pack.

His eyes-how they twinkled! his dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow.
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath.
He had a broad face and a little round belly,
That shook when he laughed, like a bowlful of jelly!

He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf,
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself!
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.

He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the Smart-wool, then turned with a jerk.
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up to the tree tops he rose!

He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
But I heard him exclaim, 'ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good-night!"

Two-Day "Woofa" Training Course Proves to be Time Well Spent

By Paul Miller
SEM Vice Hiking Chair

While participating in my first SEM Board Meeting several years ago, the then-Education Chair brought up the subject of the upcoming "woofa" training session. Sure, I didn't want to sound like an idiot, but my curiosity about this woofa stuff got the better of me, so I swallowed my pride and asked, "What's woofa?" It turns out that what sounded to me like "woofa," was actually "WFA," which everyone else around the table already knew stands for "Wilderness First Aid." While not generally a fan of three-letter acronyms, this intrigued me and I decided to take advantage of this WFA training at some point in the near future.

I finally got around to taking the WFA training this past weekend, November 17 and 18, at Borderland State Park in Easton. It turned out to be two days well spent, and not just because I need WFA certification to become a level 2 SEM hike leader (qualified to lead hikes in the Whites). I really did learn a lot! Most importantly, the training got me (and the 18 other participants) thinking about how we would respond to a wide range of backcountry medical issues and emergencies, from simple scrapes, sprains, contusions, and insect bites; to more serious fractures, frostbite, hypothermia, burns, soft tissue punctures, head and spinal injuries, cardiac incidents, and the sometimes subtle symptoms of shock that accompany most serious injuries.

Like many other reasonably experienced outdoors people, I've picked up quite a bit of practical first aid knowledge over the years; at least some of it in formal training. But what this course really hit home for me was the different approach WFA practitioners need to take.

In the WFA context, "wilderness" means at least a mile or an hour away from the trailhead, where the "golden hour" rule used by ambulance-based EMTs simply does not apply. That's because, in a wilderness environment, there's no way you could get an injured hiker, ice climber, XC skier, mountain biker, or paddler to the ER within the first hour following injury. As we learned in this course, hours or even days is more likely. This requires "WFAs" to exercise a lot more ingenuity than would otherwise be required, and in a few situations, provides us with a bit more latitude in how we could respond to a serious injury than would be allowed if the EMTs were a quick cell phone call away. We also learned how important it is during backcountry medical emergencies not to do anything that could further endanger the patient and to consider the safety of the WFA provider(s) as well as other group members.

While two days really isn't enough time to adequately cover all the topics included in this course, the combination of indoor classroom lectures, demonstrations, and discussions and outdoor practice exercises proved to be very effective at compressing the training and maximizing the learning experience.

During the outdoor exercises, we broke up into teams and responded to a number of different interesting backcountry medical emergency scenarios by improvising with the materials at hand in our backpacks, on our bodies, and in the environment. These exercises were very effective in getting us to think about how we would actually apply what we learned in the classroom in typically stressful backcountry medical emergencies. The photo shows the forearm splint that another teammate and I fashioned for SEM hike leader, Ken Jones, during one of these exercises. We improvised the splint from a fallen tree branch, a few fleece gloves for padding, and a whole bunch of cloth cravats. While not pretty to look at, the splint did a good job of immobilizing the injury and keeping the "patient" relatively comfortable while we walked him out of the woods in a simulated self-rescue. I hope that I'll never have to actually apply what I learned during this past weekend while leading or participating in an AMC hike. But, if necessary, it's reassuring to know that I and our other WFA-trained hike leaders are in a much better position to respond appropriately than would otherwise be the case. Len Ulbricht, SEMs Education Chair did a great job organizing this WFA session. Len made all the scheduling and logistical arrangements; interfaced with SOLO Wilderness Medicine (the well-respected organization that delivered the training); dealt with all the financial matters: and perhaps equally important, kept us 19 WFA trainees and our knowledgeable and animated SOLO instructor, Chris Nafziger, well fed and well caffeinated over the two days of the training.

Thank you Len and thank you Chris!

Take A Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

I go nuts in outdoor stores. Everything looks good, and I try to rationalize that items I don't need may come in handy.

Hiking Tip: Improve and save $ Here are a couple of ways you can be frugal and get the job done.

Sleeping warm I found that I became colder in my bag by morning. I was convinced dampness seeped up through my tent floor and through my pad into my sleeping bag. Obvious solution---buy a warmer bag. Then I remembered several hikers who placed contractor insulation paper on their tent floor and put their sleeping bag over that. I can tell you it makes a difference, in the same way such insulation retards cold and moisture from getting into your house. Tyvek insulation paper does the same thing that Dupont and other insulation paper will. A local carpenter cut me the piece above, and it weighs next to nothing.

Mesh Dunk and Storage Bags To air out stinky clothes, to soak or chill something in a stream, to store garbage, etc., meshed ditty bags, sold in outdoor shops, are popular on the trail and in camps. But the citrus bags (holding oranges and grapefruit), which my wife brings home from the grocery work just fine. I save them and use a couple of new ones on every extended hike. They do the job, and I'll never run out.

You work hard for your dollars, so improvise and save a few.

Happy trails!

► SKIING

ATTENTION XC and Downhill Skiers

The February 4-6 mid-week downhill ski trip has been expanded to include cross country skiing for two fun filled days of skiing Tuesday and Wednesday at Bretton Woods, Attitash, or Wildcat, and optional third day skiing at Waterville Valley on Monday drive up. The entire Shapleigh bunkhouse has been reserved for two days, and pricing includes two breakfasts and two dinners at the Highland Center. Come and enjoy great skiing, a press ski socializing and meals to please. Please note that a trip leader will not be managing the group and each skier should act accordingly and use their own judgement in selection of terrain suitable to their skill level, be it XC or downhill. Pricing has been structured so that as more beds are filled the per person cost decreases. Max cost is $162 per person for both days, with meals, based on 50% occupancy, discount ski tickets extra. A greater turnout lowers your cost, a tough to beat deal. $50 deposit reserves a spot, balance due January 5. See trip listing for details.

Is Kilimanjaro on your bucket list?

Join AMC's 12-day trip from June 20-July 2 to climb Mount Kilimanjaro

By Robin Melavalin

Join the AMC's 12-day trip from June 20-July 2 to climb Mount Kilimanjaro (19,341') with just a day-pack. A UNESCO World Heritage Site (<http://whc.unesco.org/en/list/403>), Kilimanjaro is called the Crown of Africa with its snow-capped peak rising above Tanzania's cultivated farmland where locals grow coffee, bananas, cassava and maize. Just south

"hike the largest mountain on the continent of Africa"

Woman with Maasai children of the equator, the highest freestanding mountain in the world rises majestically from the rolling savanna plain up through five microclimates with diverse ecosystems: rainforest, heather, moorland, desert and arctic. It is known for having beautiful forests. Our local guides will describe the flora and fauna of this unique mountain, its geologic and volcanic history, the effects of global warming and other human impacts, and the cultures of the people who call this land "home."

This is a strenuous trek with 10,000 feet of elevation gain over 8 days, hiking at a moderate pace, with between 3-11 hours of hiking per day. Each year about 15,000 people hike Kilimanjaro in hopes of reaching the summit, but only 40% are successful. While there are shorter routes to the summit, such as the "Coca Cola Route," they are stressful for the body. The success rate for summiting on our eight-day trek via the Lemosho Route is better than on shorter climbs, giving our bodies time to adjust to the increasing elevation. While some routes require night hiking to the summit with headlamps, we will do it during daylight to enjoy the views, if the weather cooperates, during the peak of the journey. Another reason the Lemosho route was selected is because it is less crowded than some of the others.

Tips

Dress warmly; bandaids across the tip of the nose stymies frostbite; no bare skin; down mittens help; ear protection is a necessity; use the chemical toe warmers; watch for black ice. Don't expect the same speed and distance of in-season rides.

We will have the support of local porters who will carry our camping gear, food, tents and luggage. Over-nights before and after the trek are at lodges near Arusha; shared tents will be used during the trek. We've heard the meals on the trek are impressive; they will be made by our own chef and served in a comfortable dining tent with tables and chairs. Want a gentle wake-up call? The crew brings hot coffee, tea, or cocoa to your tent in the mornings.

The price of $3800 + flights ($3400 if 15 participants) includes all lodging, guides and meals. Travel before or after the AMC dates for a safari or cultural experience can be arranged independently with the outfitter and are not part of the AMC trip.

Interested? Contact SEM H/B leader Robin Melavalin at Rmelavalin@rcn.com for an application.

NEWS FROM JOY STREET

Registration is Open for AMC's 137th Annual Summit!

The 137th Annual Summit of the Appalachian Mountain Club will be held on Saturday, January 26, 2013, at the Four Points by Sheraton in Norwood, Massachusetts. We are pleased to announce that Audrey Peterman, President and Co-founder of Earthwise Productions, will be the keynote speaker.

Audrey, along with her husband, Frank, has been credited with making millions aware of the National Park System and its relevance to their lives. Audrey is a national-award winning environmentalist and is a role model for engaging citizens in conservation. She brings a unique understanding of what motivates people of color to connect with the outdoors.

Audrey participated in several White House initiatives including the launch of America's Great Outdoors and the White House Conference on Conservation. Additionally, Audrey is the recipient of the Environmental Hero Award from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, as well as the Marjory Stoneman Douglas Outstanding Citizen Conservationist Award from the National Parks Conservation Association.

Special Celebration: YOP 45! Join AMC in celebrating our Youth Opportunities Program's 45th year of helping at-risk and urban youth get outdoors!

To register or obtain more information log onto our Annual Summit website.

Added Bonus: Book ten (10) seats for the dinner program and we will reserve a table for you.

For other inquiries, please contact Cindy Martell, Event Coordinator, at 617-391-6603 or cmartell@outdoors.org.

enumerate their groundbreaking mountaineering exploits, and Rick Wilcox discusses search and rescue efforts. Woodsmen like Ben English tell of their work on hiking trails, and George Hamilton recounts his career in AMC's high huts. White Mountain icons such as boot maker Karl Limmer and Ellen Teague of the Mount Washington Cog Railway offer accounts of their esteemed careers in the mountains. Guy and Laura Waterman detail the development of their backwoods ethics philosophy. Historical photographs accompany each interview. A perfect companion to the book is the new 2013 Mountain Photography Bradford Washburn Calendar, full of spectacular images from Alaska, the Swiss and French Alps, and New Hampshire's White Mountains.

2013 LEADERSHIP TRAINING

Leadership Training will be held on Saturday, April 6, 2013 at Borderland State Park, N. Easton, MA. This course prepares trip leaders for managing groups they will be leading on AMC sanctioned trips. The course covers leadership styles, trip planning considerations, screening criteria to insure similar group member skills, risk mitigation, and qualifications to become a leader. Non-trip leader candidates are also welcome. It is an all day course with a mix of classroom and outdoor exercises. Lunch and refreshment breaks are provided. This course is offered at no cost to chapter members.

AMC Challenges Approval of Transmission Line in Delaware

AMC Challenges Approval of Transmission Line in Delaware Water Gap and Asks Courts to Halt Construction
In partnership with other conservation and trails organizations, AMC recently filed an injunction in Federal court challenging the approval by the National Park Service of the Susquehanna to Roseland transmission line in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, slicing through the heart of the Delaware Water Gap, the Appalachian Trail and the Delaware River, which is federally recognized under the Wild & Scenic River Act. As part of this action, we also ask the courts to temporarily halt construction while our case is being considered.

View from the Chair

By Cheryl Lathrop

As we see 2012 fading away in the rear view mirror, we remember all the great outdoor activities we had—all brought to you by the untiring efforts of our chapter volunteer leaders. Never forget for a moment that all SEM events are completely run by volunteer leaders. And on behalf of the AMC SEM Executive Board I extend a personal thank you to each and every one of our volunteers.

Don't for a minute think of the AMC as a fair weather club! No way! These same tireless volunteers have great winter activities prepared for you in 2013. So, get off the sofa and come join us! Winter activities are great fun. You get out of the house, you get exercise... And nothing beats standing on top of a snowy mountain in The Whites with no summer crowds and no leaves on the trees – fabulous views! That in addition to the satisfaction of having clawed your way up there on your microspikes!

Or, for those of you not so ambitious, let the chair lift carry you up the mountain and simply slide down! Or power yourself around the mountain on one of our cross country ski trips. And The Cape is now free of traffic and open for hiking! Don't miss it! Beautiful beaches and trails – and no crowds. And don't put your bike away either. It's not always snowy and slippery. Just bundle up and get out there with our bike leaders on a good day.

We're a 4-season club. See you outside!

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY
AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, pol...
status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available.
Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: <http://amcsem.org/documents.html>

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers. Take a look at the backpacks in the pictures. Both packs are empty, but the red one, with external frame, is already twice as heavy as the green one. And, because it is much bigger, you will cram extra stuff into it. The red pack is almost identical to the one I used on the Appalachian Trail in '03, and it topped out around 47 pounds (including food, but not water). I don't think I ever got it under 40 pounds, and this contributed to a knee problem I had out there.

I learned the hard way to buy a light pack and to pack light. I used the smaller, no-frame pack on the Pacific Crest Trail five years later and topped it out at 31 pounds. I doubt my knees would survive the A.T. today carrying over 40 pounds plus water. Today you will find ultra-lite long-distance hikers who carry less than 20 pounds!

Ray Jardine was the early guru of light backpacking. I studied his 1999 book Beyond Backpacking and learned a lot. And I'm going to buy his new one, Trail Life: Ray Jardine's Lightweight Backpacking. Reducing pack weight is the number one issue for any serious hiker. If it isn't a necessity, don't haul it. Modify what you have. Rather than the old Boy Scout metal fork and spoon, buy a plastic spork. Think tarp rather than tent in milder weather. Get a tiny stove. Do you absolutely need a stove? What a difference a light pack makes!

Nature Nurtures Creativity After Four Days of Hiking

Dec. 12, 2012 — Backpackers scored 50 percent better on a creativity test after spending four days in nature disconnected from electronic devices, according to a study by psychologists from the University of Utah and University of Kansas.

“This is a way of showing that interacting with nature has real, measurable benefits to creative problem-solving that really hadn’t been formally demonstrated before,” says David Strayer, a co-author of the study and professor of psychology at the University of Utah.

“It provides a rationale for trying to understand what is a healthy way to interact in the world, and that burying yourself in front of a computer 24/7 may have costs that can be remediated by taking a hike in nature.”

The study by Strayer and University of Kansas psychologists Ruth Ann Atchley and Paul Atchley was scheduled for publication Dec. 12 in PLOS ONE, an online journal published by the Public Library of Science.

Psychology Professor David Strayer, University of Utah, shown here during a hiking trip in southern Utah’s Grand Gulch, helped conduct a new study showing that people score better on a creativity test after spending four days backpacking in the wilderness disconnected from electronic devices. (Credit: Elisabeth Kwak-Heferan.)

Don’t the results seem obvious? “Writers for centuries have talked about why interacting with nature is important, and lots of people go on vacations,” says Strayer. “But I don’t think we know very well what the benefits are from a scientific perspective.”

The study involved 56 people -- 30 men and 26 women -- with an average age of 28. They participated in four- to six-day wilderness hiking trips organized by the Outward Bound expedition school in Alaska, Colorado, Maine and Washington state. No electronic devices were allowed on the trips.

Of the 56 study subjects, 24 took a 10-item creativity test the morning before they began their backpacking trip, and 32 took the test on the morning of the trip’s fourth day.

The results: people who had been backpacking four days got an average of 6.08 of the 10 questions correct, compared with an average score of 4.14 for people who had not yet begun a backpacking trip.

“We show that four days of immersion in nature, and the corresponding disconnection from multimedia and technology, increases performance on a creativity, problem-solving task by a full 50 percent,” the researchers conclude.

However, they note that their study was not designed to “determine if the effects are due to an increased exposure to nature, a decreased exposure to technology or the combined influence of these two factors.”

While earlier research has indicated nature has beneficial effects, “it’s equally plausible that it is not multitasking to wits’ end that is associated with the benefits,” Strayer says.

The results were controlled for age differences between the groups that took the test before and during the backpacking trip, because “as you get older, you have greater verbal abilities,” Strayer says.

The ‘Gentle, Soft Fascination’ of Nature

The researchers cited earlier studies indicating that children today spend only 15 to 25 minutes daily in outdoor play and sports, that nature-based recreation has declined for 30 years, and that the average 8- to 18-year-old spends more than 7.5 hours a day using media such as TV, cell phones and computers.

They also cite earlier work on “attentional restoration theory,” which holds that modern technology and multitasking place demands on our “executive attention” -- the ability to switch among tasks, stay on task and inhibit distracting actions and thoughts -- and that nature is effective in replenishing such abilities.

“Our modern society is filled with sudden events (sirens, horns, ringing phones, alarms, television, etc.) that hijack attention,” the psychologists wrote. “By contrast, natural environments are associated with gentle, soft fascination, allowing the executive attentional system to replenish.”

Earlier work has showed that going on a hike can improve proofreading, the ability to see a certain optical illusion and the ability to repeat digits backwards after hearing a list of digits. But Strayer says none of those abilities provide a standard measure of executive attention or creativity.

Strayer says he and the Atchleys did a trial run for the study in May 2010 by trying a variety of creativity tests on themselves during a five-day backpacking trip in southern Utah’s Grand Gulch. Outward Bound trips for the study then were conducted during the summer of 2010.

The researchers decided on a decades-old test known as the Remote Associates Test, or RAT, that is a standard measuring tool for creative thinking and problem-solving. These abilities are believed to arise in the same prefrontal cortex area of the brain that is overtaxed by constant demands on our attention in our technological environment.

In this untimed test, participants get 10 sets of three words. For each set they must come up with a fourth word that is tied to the other three. For example, an answer to SAME/TENNIS/HEAD might be MATCH (because a match is the same, tennis match and match head).

Unlike other studies, where subjects were tested in labs after brief periods outdoors, “the current study is unique in that participants were exposed to nature over a sustained period and they were still in that natural setting during testing,” the researchers write.

View from the Chair

By Cheryl Lathrop

I've seen a lot of you outside this winter. But, how about the rest of you? Come on now—turn off the TV and get off the sofa. Put something on your feet—hiking boots, yaktrax, microspikes, snowshoes, cross country skis, downhill skis—and get out there!

A special thank you to all of our SEM leaders for leading winter activities and truly making us a 4-season club. Yes, it's cold out there, but it's also fun! And you leaders are what make it fun for the members. You keep our chapter vibrant and alive throughout what could be a long cold dreary winter.

Things are going well in the chapter. We have a full Executive Board—and I couldn't do my job without every one of the board members. It surely is a team effort to keep the chapter running. We have a few Vice Chair openings (see the front of the Breeze). It's a great learning experience and volunteer work always looks good on your resume! (My activities as SEM Communications Chair over the past few years helped me land more than one freelance job!)

I recently approved some new hike and paddle leaders. Congrats to them all for completing the leader requirements. Leading is a great way to give back for all the times you've been a follower. Plus, when you lead an activity, you get to pick the location! Our annual chapter Leadership Training session is coming up in April. So, if you've ever been curious about what it takes to be a leader, sign up and see. (It's free.)

Finally, if you enjoy the AMC, then bring your friends, neighbors, and relatives to our annual Open House in March. It's a great evening to find out all about AMC SEM. Plus—we'll feed you dinner!

SEE YOU OUTSIDE!

Benefits to Youth

Youth have the opportunity to:

- Have fun outdoors
- Connect with their local park
- Learn about nature
- Get some fresh air and exercise

Leaders have the opportunity to:

- Share their wonder of the natural world
- Give back to their community
- Make a difference in the life of a child

On the last day of 2012 Alan Greenstein completed Blue Lining all the trails in the Blue Hills Reservation, on the Wompatuck Trail at marker 3171. It took him 10 months to complete this hike and he was awarded his patch!!

SEM MEMBERSHIP OPEN HOUSE

Join us Saturday March 9, 2013

An opportunity to mix with trip leaders and other members to share interests and experiences and pick up ideas on activities that may be of interest to you. Members new to SEM these past 12 months are invited, as are friends, neighbors, co-workers who you think may be prospective members and of course long term arm chair members who wish to resume active participation.

Dinner will be complimentary; provided by AMC SEM.

Wilderness First Aid Course (WFA)

This course deals with medical emergencies that may occur in the back woods when you are more than one hour from medical care and 911 help may not be accessible. Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations. Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify.

On January 10, Joe Keogh finished his Orange Line of the Blue Hills on top of Tucker Hill at the end of the Athol trail. It took him a little less than 10 months to complete this round of trails.

WINTER HIKING

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers. At the November winter hiking workshop, we learned the basics of hiking in winter. Here are just some of the pointers from our own AMC-SEM experts.

1. Dress in layers.
2. Fleece is best for warmth. And if fleece gets wet, it still insulates. Down is warm, but useless when wet.
3. Don't dress too warm while you are moving; save your warmest clothing for when you stop moving. Your sweat needs to be wicked away. If you are covered in a puffy down jacket while moving, you trap all that moisture.
4. Keep food handy, bite sized, and ready to eat. You will burn an enormous amount of energy and need to snack often. Cut bite-size portions ahead of time, and keep in baggies or in containers you can unscrew with gloves.
5. Store your water bottle upside-down. Water freezes at the top; when you turn the bottle right-side up, you won't have ice.
6. Fasten pull-ties on those little zipper handles. When you void, you can keep your gloves on. And when you snack, you can keep your gloves on as you unzip pockets. Use shoelace, trash bag ties, anything.
7. Add Tang or Gatorade to water to reduce the freezing point. You need to drink extra liquids. It seems counter-intuitive when it's cold, but you will sweat a lot. A flavoring added to water also adds taste.
8. Pack a small container of glasses/goggles anti-fog stuff.
9. Bring a spare hat; pack extra gloves and socks. The wind may sail your hat; you may not be able to retrieve it. You could drop a glove in a stream.
10. Wear gaiters. They will keep snow from getting into your boots. Your socks stay dry.
11. Keep spare batteries covered and in a pocket so that they are warm and ready, if needed.

The trick is to stay dry, and keeping warm is a function of keeping dry. We were shown all types of clothing as well as footwear. We looked at snow shoes and discussed traction systems like crampons and microspikes. We learned a lot and now many of us will join each other in the chapter's Annual Winter Hiking Series. Happy Trails!

2013 LEADERSHIP TRAINING

Leadership Training will be held on Saturday, April 6, 2013 at Borderland State Park, N. Easton, MA. This course prepares trip leaders for managing groups they will be leading on AMC sanctioned trips. The course covers leadership styles, trip planning considerations, screening criteria to insure similar group member skills, risk mitigation, and qualifications to become a leader. Non-trip leader candidates are also welcome. It is an all day course with a mix of classroom and outdoor exercises. Lunch and refreshment breaks are provided. This course is offered at no cost to chapter members.

Winter Series Hike #2: Morgan-Percival

What a View!

by Paul Miller,
SEM Hiking Committee
Vice-Chair

hikingvicechair@amcsem.org

Twenty pre-registered hikers showed up at the Mt. Morgan trailhead in Holderness, NH on January 5th for the second hike in the SEM 2013 Winter Series, but only 17 returned to the trailhead at the end of the hike. This appeared to violate the "plus or minus 10 percent" rule that SEM hike leaders often kid about tongue in cheek. But in fact, all 20 hikers were accounted for. Three hikers, feeling the effects of the flu and other issues, were accompanied out mid-hike by leaders, but were otherwise safe and in good spirits. The leaders later rejoined the group to finish out the hike.

Once again for this hike - the always-popular 5.5-mile Mts. Morgan-Percival loop - we were blessed with near-ideal, early winter hiking conditions. The sky was mostly sunny. The temperature, ranging from the high 20s at the start to the low 30s at the end, was cool, but not bitter. There was some wind on the exposed summits, but not enough to become an issue. Lots of beautiful white snow blanketed the ground. And with the trail well broken in, but not icy, we could leave both our snowshoes and crampons in the cars and manage with Microspikes. These proved just fine for the conditions.

We usually do this hike in a clockwise direction; first summiting Mt. Morgan on the Mt. Morgan Trail and then following the Crawford-Ridgepole Trail to the summit of Mt. Percival, returning to the trailhead via the Mt. Percival Trail and a pretty connecting trail. However, for this trip, we did the loop in a counter-clockwise direction. To avoid having to descend via a potentially icy section on the Mt. Percival Trail, we first summited Percival and then Morgan. From both summits, we enjoyed wonderful views of both nearby Squam Lake and the more expansive Lake Winnepesaukee in the distance. There were also some nice mountain views into the Pemi Wilderness from the top of Percival. Seventeen happy hikers returned together to the trailhead with plenty of daylight left, making the drive back to Massachusetts a little less onerous. Another great hike in our Winter Series! For the third hike in the series on Feb. 2nd, we'll head up to Crawford Notch, NH to climb Mt. Pierce in the Southern Presidentials. This will bring most of us above 4,000 feet for the first time this year.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC's 137th Annual Summit 2013

AMC's 137th Annual Summit provided a variety of professional development workshops, a showcase, chapter and committee meetings, dinner, presentation by guest speaker Audrey Peterman, volunteer awards, book signing, and more. This was an important communication event for all the chapters. All SEM attendees thought it was a great experience.

"Thankfully, we still have time to wake up, and adjust. Everything I do is to try to help that awakening along."

Audrey Peterman has visited more than 160 of the 397 units in our National Park System. But she didn't even know the parks existed until she and her husband, Frank, discovered them on a cross-country road trip after their youngest child graduated from college. They founded Earthwise Productions, a consulting and publishing company, in 1994 and since then have focused on breaking down barriers so that all Americans, regardless of ethnic heritage, can better appreciate our natural treasures.

Universal access, public lands, and backcountry composting

Provided by AMC Outdoors/
<http://trailsblog.outdoors.org/>

Posted by Sally Manikian

Along a mild section of Appalachian Trail in the hills around Norwich and Hanover, there is a small shelter (previously maintained by the Dartmouth Outing Club, now the responsibility of the Green Mountain Club) with a big responsibility. The Happy Hill shelter on the Appalachian Trail in Vermont is home to the first of the new generation of backcountry composting outhouses: a universally accessible, two chambered moldering privy.

As backcountry facilities are being replaced, renovated, and updated on our public lands across New England, these facilities are now being designed to meet the requirements of universal access. Land managers and non profit partners balance the needs of accessibility (size of the building, width of the door, angle of the ramp) as well as the traditional design considerations of the science of composting and that intangible wilderness character. The Happy Hill outhouse, completed in 2012 by the Green Mountain Club, is the first attempt at striking that balance. (Here at AMC trails we have met the requirements of accessibility by building Garfield and Eliza's new shelters at the precise height off the ground, in order for a person to transfer off a wheelchair onto the shelter floor.)

"But why do you build an accessible building in the middle of the woods?" is often the question raised about accessibility in the backcountry.

There are many ways to answer this question. The first is political. As a civil right, (the rights of the disabled community have now been recognized as civil rights), we as the abled community should not judge what the disabled community can or cannot accomplish. For decades the disabled community has fought in a variety of arenas for equality: equality of work, pay, access to buildings. This a similar kind of fight that other communities have fought for, and have resulted in desegregation and women's right to vote. During those fights for equality, the majority side fully believed they 'knew' how to make decisions about the minority sides abilities and interests; as a majority of able-bodied people, we really can not be in the business of judging the capabilities of the disabled.

The second is a philosophical one. Why do we modify outhouses to include stairs to access the door? Most outhouses are on remote hiking trails that include hand over hand ledge climbs (Mahoosuc Notch to Speck Pond) or grueling long distances and rock hopping across streams (Guyot), and if a person can hike to those remote places, why do we need to modify the outhouse to have stairs? Certainly a person could step up into an outhouse if they can make it through Mahoosuc Notch. And if we give able-bodied individuals a set of steps, why can't we give disabled individuals a ramp or a transfer handrail?

These reasons, philosophical and political, challenge us as abled-bodied to think about the basic assumptions we use to guide our decisions about what is the 'right' way to do things. At any rate, these are the requirements that we work within, and in many ways are simply another set of considerations that we add to our decision making (cost, wilderness character, durability, sustainability). As a program manager responsible for 18 different outhouses across the White and Mahoosuc Mountains, as well as an individual who has strong connections to the differently abled community in New Hampshire, I believe in civil rights and the spectrum of access.

The Happy Hill outhouse is a feat of accessible engineering, thrifty budgeting (all materials were hand-carried in), and creative thinking from some of the premier composting minds of the Northeast. There were lessons learned in design (how to access the material underneath), to be incorporated in future outhouses.

Many Hands

Volunteers make AMC programs happen—and are repaid with friendships, skills, and outdoor fun

By Marc Chalufour and Heather Stephenson

AMC Outdoors, May/June 2011

The numbers are huge, and the scope vast. Some 16,000 volunteers contribute half a million hours of service to AMC every year. They maintain trails from Maine's Acadia National Park down to the Chesapeake Bay in Virginia. They lead trips ranging from explorations of local parks to excursions on Annapurna. They study alpine wildflowers and update web pages. Initially brought together by a shared interest in enjoying and protecting the outdoors, AMC's volunteers often find ways to put their own particular skills to work for the organization.

Here are the stories of three volunteers. They're from three different countries, represent three different chapters, and followed three different paths to AMC. But they also represent a common theme: They joined AMC as outdoor enthusiasts, then found their involvement developing into something deeper. Now they find their enjoyment not just in experiencing the outdoors, but also in helping others do so. All conversations have been edited and condensed.

Steve Ridgley 60, Amesbury, Mass.

Boston Chapter

- Member since 1983
- Youth Opportunities Program (YOP) leader since 1978
- Long-time YOP Canoeing Workshop Instructor
- Recipient of 2004 YOP Distinguished Service Award
- Recipient of 2008 Volunteer Leadership Award

How did you first become involved with AMC?

My dad was an AMC member back when you had to be sponsored. So we hiked together, way back in the early 1960s. When did you become involved with YOP?

I was working for a special needs school in Cambridge in 1978, and they were looking to do outdoors things. When I was looking for resources, AMC was a logical place to look. I went out on the trainings and began using YOP as a resource. Years later, they asked me to help resurrect the canoe program. I now work for the North Shore Academy in Beverly, so I'm still utilizing YOP as a vehicle for its primary mission, which is to provide the training and the equipment and the other supportive resources that allow youth agencies to incorporate the wonders of the outdoors into whatever they do.

What is it that you enjoy about volunteering for YOP?

If you like young people and you like the outdoors, you're already about two-thirds of the way to really enjoying what you're doing. The other third is when you see how powerfully positive a force the outdoors can be in a young person's life. Then it really becomes something that you want to continue to do.

What was your most rewarding moment as a volunteer?

There's just so many—so many times, so many kids, so many really wonderful experiences. I do remember this one: I was with some kids who were on their first backpacking trip, and we were up in the Presidentials, and the valleys were completely filled with clouds, with fog below. It was that wonderful look of a giant white sea, with just the high peaks of the Presidentials poking out above, as if they were floating like islands above it. And the kids were really psyched. They just couldn't believe they were out there and the sun was shining. And one of the kids looked down and said, "Boy, the people down below must be thinking it's a really bad day."

What are some of the biggest challenges you've had to face as a volunteer?

You have to spend so much time thinking about what this kid's going to be like in the outdoors, what're gonna be the challenges. Because it's not just that you take the kid

GETTING STARTED

There are countless ways to volunteer with AMC. Here are a few suggestions for getting started, depending on how much time you have to give.

A few hours per year

Attend a National Trails Day (June 4) or National Public Lands Day (September 24) event :: Work at an annual chapter event :: Participate in Mountain Watch

A few days per year

Adopt a Trail :: Be an info vol, volunteer naturalist, alpine steward, or evening presenter (and stay for free at AMC huts and lodges)

A few hours per month

Lead chapter trips :: Join a volunteer trail crew

A few hours per week

Be a Boston Visitor Center volunteer :: Serve as a committee member or chair in your chapter and you throw them in the outdoors and something magical happens. You have to be the agent of that, and you have to be a very careful, thoughtful, therapeutic agent. What has surprised you about your time as a volunteer?

I think if you maintain that sort of contact with kids, then you maintain contact with the sense of excitement, surprise, and innocence that makes everything novel and exciting. It's just so neat—the water, the snow, wanting to go sliding down the hill, or build a snow fort, or hitting the big peaks of the waves in a canoe. Sure, you could steer it off to the side, but what the heck. Just plow right through the middle of them and get splashed! And that sense of beauty and adventure—I think that struck me originally and has continued to be sustaining.

Maria Earley 61, Wakefield, R.I.

Narragansett Chapter

- Member since 1996
- Trails volunteer since 1997
- Hike leader since 1997
- Former Membership Chair (4 yr)

- Former Interim Trails Chair (1 yr)
- Trail Adopter in the White Mountains since 2000 and in South Kingston, R.I., since 2007
- Recipient of 2005 Narragansett Chapter Appie of the Year; 2006-2008 and 2010 Stewardship Society Marian Pychowska Award

What first interested you in the outdoors?

I was brought up in a little village in Portugal and we did a lot of stuff outdoors. We gathered wood, we worked on the farm. I enjoyed the outdoors. It's good for your soul and it's good for your body, physically, and emotionally.

Why is volunteering important to you?

I think it's important to do something that you enjoy. It's important to do something to contribute to the society as a whole. And it's important to either help other people, or to help a cause, or in the instance of doing trail work, to improve what's there for others to enjoy.

What keeps you motivated as a volunteer?

The camaraderie of the people. The feeling of a good day's work: You are tired but you are rewarded. When you hike on a trail where somebody has done good trail work, you treasure that. I take the opportunity when I can to say, "See this work over here? This was done by our trails committee."

Many people are familiar with AMC's trail work in the White Mountains, but you're a trail adopter in Rhode Island, is that right? That's correct. It's a series of trails in South Kingston called Tri-Pond. It's heavily used because it's right in the middle of the community and kids actually cross the trail to shortcut to school. And you have a nature center where they have classes and take people on short walks.

Were you familiar with the trails in South Kingston before you became involved in AMC?

Actually, I wasn't. And it's 5 miles from where I live. Once you're a member of the club, you hear about these places, join a hike, and then you get to learn. We try to have hikes all over the state, with people from different areas.

What are some of the challenges that you've faced as a volunteer?

The big challenge is not having enough volunteers. A lot of work is done by calling people. We have very few people that will call and say "I'll be there to help out," you know? You've got to seek out people. As a membership chair, how did you attract new people to AMC? I tried to promote the benefits of being a member: Enjoying other people pursuing the same interests, enjoying the outdoors, the benefits of the exercise, that you don't have to spend a bundle of money to have a nice time. And a lot of times people have already heard about AMC, but you want them to be exposed. That's why I have new member hikes, because if somebody inquired about becoming a member, I would say, "Come and join us."

- Alpine Steward since 2006
- Lead Volunteer for Alpine Stewardship since 2010
- Information Volunteer since 2002
- Information Volunteer Training Committee founding member, 2004-2007
- Fill-in Huts and Tent-Sites Caretaker since 1999
- Recipient of 2010 Volunteer Leadership Award; 2003-2010 Stewardship Society Warren Hart Award (for 224+ hours service)

How did you get involved volunteering with AMC?

Probably 18 years ago, I drove through the White Mountains and it looked like a really cool place to stop. I started camping there and learned about the AMC and joined. Then I responded to an ad to volunteer to fill in as a caretaker. I registered campers, dealt with the composting toilet, answered people's questions. That was my introduction to AMC.

What keeps you going as a volunteer?

It's always something new. It's based on your previous experience. You become the leader teaching other people what you got taught 10 years ago. You can also see something from the other side. I've filled in for the hut croos and you get to see it from the croo side.

Does AMC fill all your free time?

It pretty much takes up all my vacation time. But that's not a bad thing. I thoroughly look forward to it. This summer I'm headed up to Madison Hut; I want to see the renovations.

Describe one of the more challenging situations you've been in as a volunteer.

A college group was cooking on the helicopter pad outside Galehead when I was filling in as caretaker. They had a big pot of pasta boiling on a small burner and it splashed and burned one of the female students. I had to help the leader get what he needed but not be in his face, so he would accept my help. I did it in the background. I got him medical supplies. I found someone to walk down with him and the injured person.

The next day, the leader hiked back up and he thanked me. He said, "I didn't realize what you were doing yesterday. You basically made all the decisions for me and made me feel like I made them."

How did you learn to do that, to lead without telling people directly what they should do?

As an info vol, you see people come in at Pinkham Notch saying they want to do a certain hike. It's way too much mileage and there's not enough daylight. You have to delicately talk them down to something reasonable. In the beginning I was probably more abrupt. But you get better at it.

As a volunteer alpine steward, you once chose to stop your flower research because you had a hunch someone was in trouble. Is search and rescue part of your job?

It's all voluntary. In that case, there was something in the back of my head saying, "Remember that guy you passed? He was kind of bent over and looking green? Maybe you should go back and check on him." I ended up getting him to drink water, giving him snacks, and walking slowly with him and the woman he was with to the hut. The caretaker hiked out to his car to get him his medicine. If I hadn't turned around, it probably would have been an air rescue or he might have perished on Lafayette.

What are your favorite places outdoors?

That's tough. I've been to Baxter State Park twice, and I like the remote feeling. Of AMC places, Mizpah and Galehead huts. I've been to those most frequently and it feels like going home.

XC & Downhill Mid-week Ski Feb. 4-6, 2013

By Len Ulbricht
SEM Education Chair
educationchair@amcsem.org

Six hardy SEMers traveled to the Whites for three days skiing with a two night stay at the Shapleigh Bunkhouse and hearty meals at the Highland Center. XC skiers took in Bretton Woods and the Jackson XC Ski Center. Jackson is the larger of the two though both offer classic and skate XC skiing on groomed trails. Downhillers took in one day each at Waterville Valley (on the drive up), Attitash and Bretton Woods.

Conditions were great considering the washout rain one week earlier. Snow was well groomed with powder-like surface. Windy conditions on the first day were followed the next by clear bright sunshine offering brilliant views of the Presidentials. The last day was topped off by snow showers providing a light powder coverlet.

Apres ski time at Shapleigh began with Judith's famous crab cake dip and conversation sprang from favorite mystery authors to Internet gaming to college life and days of yore, on and on through dinner time. Evening skies brought out a Milky Way panorama with Orion and Jupiter glistening overhead. We didn't go away hungry, with yummy traditional and vegetarian offerings both nights. After dinner movies capped the evenings – ice climbing the Frankenstein Cliffs and an Everest climb by local North Conway mountaineers. Definitely a do again trip.

View from the Chair

By Cheryl Lathrop

Brrr... Finally we're getting some winter weather! Finally some snow! After you shovel it, I hope you play in it. Don't know how to play in the snow? We'll teach you! Just sign up for an AMC winter activity—and our trained and qualified leaders will take you out to hike, snowshoe, or ski in it. (Thank you winter activity leaders for taking us to play in the snow!)

Our annual March Open House is coming up soon. If you're new, come find out what the AMC is all about. If you're a long-time member, come and tell the newbies what it's all about. If you're a medium-time member, come just for fun. Bring your friends, neighbors, and relatives. Free food! A night out!

As I write this here in February, my "view from the chair" sees another one foot of snow heading our way. Oh boy! Grab your skis and snowshoes, and . . .

I'LL SEE YOU ALL OUTSIDE!

Got something to say? Got a good idea? Want to volunteer?

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at:

Family Events

The Family Events Committee brings AMC families together by offering outdoor adventures suitable for adults and children of all ages. By participating in our events, families can learn about and enjoy regional natural resources, as well as meet other families who have the same interests.

FAMILY HIKING SERIES

This hiking series is meant to introduce families to the joy of hiking. There will be 4 hikes in the series; hike one or hike them all. At each hike we will increase our distance and time.

Got kids?

Join us for our very first hike in our Family Hiking Series!

March 9, 2013

Hike #1 will be at Borderland State Park. We will climb some rocks, cross some streams and enjoy lunch by the pond. We will be hiking for approximately 1 hour before our lunch break and 1 hour after.

Bring your family, pack a lunch and enjoy a local treasure. Appropriate for children 3 and up. Children under 3 are welcome in child carriers.

Thursday Morning Hike Moosehill-Hope February 7th

By Ken Thomas

Thursday Morning Hiker

"I've got bad news and good news", so said our hike leader, Hans, here at Moosehill Audobon in Sharon, Massachusetts. "The bad news is I can only lead the hike for part of the way. I have been feeling sick for a while. The good news is we have a volunteer leader in Debbie that will continue the hike."

So after we circled up and introduced ourselves, we headed out.

Hans first showed us the "maple sugar shack." Here he shared with us the information he gives the maple sugar tours, all about the process of turning maple sap into that nectar, pure maple syrup. Fascinating and rather technical - 40 gallons of sap to one gallon of syrup, 219 degrees. Our next adventure brought us across the 100 yard long boardwalk over the frozen swamp. This is one end of the Billings Loop up the hill past some trees that are being "girdled" (systematically being killed to return the hill to a true field.) Here Hans showed us the Bluebird boxes he keeps track of for the Audobon society.

As we continued along the Billings Loop we passed

Weeto - Moswetuset
Local Native American Tribe

BREEZE - AMC Southeastern Massachusetts Chapter - 800-372-1758 amcinformation@outdoors.org Sign up

Giant Sugar Maple

George and Martha (don't ask I still haven't figured out which is which.) These are giant sugar maples it is thought were growing before we were a country! They already had three buckets each as maple sugar season has started early. A walk past the Billings barn and off trail we came across a "weeto"- Moswetuset (local native-American tribe) for "our home". The was constructed by the staff at Moosehill.

Back on trail we followed the Pasture Trail around the bottom of Moose Hill eventually coming out onto the upper pasture of Moosehill Farm, owned by the Trustees for Reservation. As we crossed this pasture we could see where they were preparing to start their coop farming project in the spring. An opening in the woods led us to the Woodland Trail.

This trail led us through a mixed hardwood setting, down a gully up through a deep white-pine forest. Here we came across two cellar holes from a while ago. Here we stood wondering about the history of this place, deep in the woods yet hearing Route 95 in the distance.

Highland Trail led off this trail to the left and brought us to some really neat forest settings which led down to a road under some high tension wires. No deer spotted here but they were around!

Eventually we met up with the Pepperbush Trail which brought us to the Vernal Pond Trail. The Vernal Pond Trail led us back to the Nature center of Moosehill-Audobon. Here we figured we covered 4+ miles of beautiful terrain. Lunch for some, early departure for others.

The bad news is our hike was over. The good news is it is there to explore again and again.

Can you tell it is one of my favorite places?

Thank you Hans and Debbie!

Hans Luwald at Moosehill Sugarshack

Reporting of Accidents

Aaron Gorban, AMC's Director of Outdoor Leadership Training, presented the 2012 summary of reported accidents to attendees of the Outdoor Leadership Development Committee (OLDC) during the AMC Summit on January 26 in Norwood. In his presentation Aaron emphasized that there are six criteria that warrant completing the Volunteer Accident Report Form, which is found on SEM's website under "Documents".

Aaron also pointed out that though 22 incidents were reported last year, based on his experience he feels there were others that were not reported. He is encouraging all trip leaders to be diligent in following up each accident/ incident with a Volunteer Accident Report. Please review Aaron's summary of 2012 reported incidents, which follows.
Len Ulbricht, SEM Education Chair

6 criteria that warrant completing the Volunteer Accident Report Form

The first three typically come to mind as reportable but the last three also need to be reported even when there is no injury.

An accident/incident that causes the participant

- to leave the trip with injury prior to it's conclusion
- to be evacuated by an AMC group or outside rescue team
- to seek medical treatment after the event

Also necessitating a report are incidents

- that cause a loss of property
- that involve behavior impacting safety or well being of the group
- of a near miss nature wherein the participant underwent a significant mechanism but without injury.

2012 AMC Volunteer-Led Activity Incident Data

OLDC Meeting, January 26, 2013

Incident Report Submission

The AMC runs an estimated 7000 volunteer-led activities each year. Volunteer leaders are asked to submit an Incident Report Form each time a participant has an accident/incident that causes the participant to leave the trip prior to its' conclusion, to be evacuated by the AMC group or an outside rescue team, or to seek medical attention after the event. An incident report form should also be submitted if there is loss of property due to the incident, a behavioral incident that impacts the safety or well-being of the group, or a near-miss incident in which a participant underwent a significant mechanism that did not result in an injury. In 2012, 22 incident report forms were submitted to the Leadership Training & Risk Management Department. It is our expectation that more than 22 reportable incidents occurred. In fact, since tracking this data, we've experienced under reporting of incidents annually. In addition, many of the submitted forms were filled out incompletely and lacking information in all requested fields. We request that each of the OLDC members review this information, share it with your chapter/committee leadership chairs & activity leaders, and reevaluate reporting procedures within your representative committees.

Out of the 22 reports received,

20 of the forms documented an injury and 2 of the forms documented an illness. Although the number of reports is too small to establish trends, we've identified a few interesting facts.

Location of Injury

As seen in 2011, many of the 2012 injuries affected the hand, wrist, lower arm, or shoulder of the participant: 48% of the reported injuries. Most of these were trips and falls wherein the patient landed on an outstretched hand, resulting in hand lacerations, wrist sprains/fractures, and shoulder dislocations. 2012 marks the second consecutive year that upper body injuries outnumbered lower leg injuries.

Activity at Time of Incident

Day hiking continues to yield the most incidents: 41% of the total. As a day hiking appears to be the most commonly offered activity by volunteer leaders, this leading percentage is to be expected. The number of accidents/incidents reported during "free" time (6-27% of the total) while at various camps and facilities, on the other hand, is higher than expected. The injuries sustained at camp or at a facility including burns and cuts while cooking, lacerations requiring stitches after falls during play, and multiple injuries sustained from falls. We urge leaders to remind their participants to be wary of risks throughout their time spent on AMC trips, before, during and after the main trip activity.

Age

Only 9 of the 22 submitted forms documented the age of the patient. We continue to encourage leaders to fully fill out the incident report forms to help us find trends in our incident data. Out of the 9 known ages,

6 patients were over the age of 50 and one was under the age of 10

Time of Incident

The first year AMC established incident trends, we were surprised to find that majority of documented volunteer-led incidents occurred between the hours of 11am and 3pm. This is contrary to the common assumption that most accidents happen near the end of the day. In 2012, 15 of the 22 incident report forms documented the time of the incident. True to our previous trend, 10 of the 15 incidents occurred at 3pm or earlier in the day. As in previous years, we hypothesize that early start times for activities combined with late lunch breaks can create individuals with low blood sugars who are more likely to trip or fall. We again urge leaders to break for snacks regularly, and take lunch breaks when needed.

Noble View Weekend

By Jodi Jensen
Social Committee Chair
socialchair@amcsem.org

“This past January, our chapter hosted the first winter weekend at Noble View Outdoor Center. The intention was to provide people new to winter hiking and snowshoeing an opportunity to try an AMC weekend close to home.

Only a 2 hour drive west of Boston in Russell, MA, Noble View is located in the “foothills” of the Berkshires. Eighteen attendees occupied the North Cottage Bunkhouse Friday through Sunday.

Photos Provided by Jodi Jensen

Maureen Kelly did an outstanding job planning this event. We were fortunate enough to have our own Joyce Wallis prepare fantastic meals, with the help of her husband, Luther. (You won't go hungry on these trips.) Along with co-leader, Walt Granda, we were offered 3 hiking opportunities on Saturday including a beautiful full moon night hike and bonfire!

After a superb breakfast Sunday morning, we all enjoyed a 3 hour hike before having lunch and heading home. Everyone agreed this was a successful weekend and should be an annual event. AMC has provided my husband and I with wonderful outdoor experiences and these weekend trips have given us the opportunity to develop great friendships. We now see familiar faces at every AMC event. We look forward to our “annual” AMC trips, which continue to grow every year.”

Wilderness First Aid is Coming

WFA (Woofers as some call it) is all set for a return visit to AMC's Noble View Camp in Russell MA April 27 & 28.

This course covers back woods first aid for those hikers who want to be prepared should a medical situation arise when they are in a remote area far from a quick 911 EMT response.

Whether one is hiking up north or out west, camping or backpacking away from populated areas, biking distant routes or paddling the hinterlands, accidents do happen and adverse health conditions do arise.

WFA prepares you to treat and stabilize victims until professional help arrives, which could take many hours and perhaps overnight. If you venture into remote areas, whether or not you are an AMC trip leader, WFA will give you confidence you can handle that unexpected situation we all hope will never occur.

Close Encounters with Grey Jays on Mt. Pierce

By Paul Miller
Vice Chair
SEM Hiking Committee
hikingvicechair@amcsem.org

The previous week's freaky thaw and heavy rains "up north" didn't bode well for the third trip in our 2013 Winter Hiking Series to Mt. Pierce in the Presidential Range of New Hampshire on February 1st. But this turned out to be yet another outstanding winter experience for the 14 enthusiastic participants, mostly from SEM, but also with representation from a handful of other AMC chapters.

Several of us had the luxury to drive up the day before and spend the night at either the AMC Highland Center in Crawford Notch or other nearby accommodations to be able to make it to the Mt. Clinton Road trailhead by the 8:45 am meeting time established by trip leaders, Leslie Carson and Wayne Anderson (Maureen Kelly and I served as co-leaders). Those who hadn't spent the night had to get up well before dawn to make it up to the trailhead on time; a necessary evil for most SEM hikes up in New Hampshire. I managed to duck out of work early on Friday following our weekly staff meeting. During my drive up to

Crawford Notch that afternoon, I didn't get any real sense of "winter" until I hit Franconia Notch, and even there I only saw one brave soul attempting to negotiate the steep and what looked to be extremely icy slopes at Cannon Mt. Ski Area. Even in Crawford Notch, there wasn't an awful lot of snow on the ground and the snow guns were going full force at Bretton Woods in an attempt to make the ski trails skiable for the upcoming weekend. All this didn't portend well for our planned winter hike on Mt. Pierce the next day, but I tried hard to keep thinking positive thoughts. When I got out of my car at the Highland Center, it certainly was cold and windy enough, but once again, there wasn't much snow cover on the ground. While checking in at the Highland Center, I asked about the conditions on the Crawford Path to try to gain a sense for what kind of equipment we would need for our hike the next day. "Ice, ice, and more ice," I was told. Hm-mmmnnnn. After enjoying an excellent buffet dinner and glass of Shiraz at the Highland Center with fellow SEMer, Alan Greenstein and the several other friendly AMC members with whom we shared a table, I retreated to the inviting library on the second floor of the Highland Center and skimmed through an excellent wilderness first aid manual published by the National Ski Patrol. (My fellow hikers will be relieved to know that, now, in addition to knowing how to fashion a splint from a foam pad and a bungee cord, I know practically everything there is to know about delivering a baby in the backcountry...)

After a hearty breakfast Saturday morning at the Highland Center, Alan and I drove up the road to the hiker’s parking area off the Mt. Clinton Road and met up with the rest of the group. It was certainly cold enough for a winter hike (the thermometer in Alan’s car read 3 degrees F.), but the skies were sunny and there didn’t appear to be too much wind, all good signs. After “circling up” and doing the usual introductions, we all donned our MicroSpikes and headed up the predictably icy Crawford Connector path, crossed the bridge over pretty, fast-flowing Gibbs Brook, and started up the Crawford Path proper. This appeared to be in relatively good shape, with only occasional water and a few slick spots in the hard-packed snow. After climbing a bit, we broke up into “faster” and “slower” groups to accommodate different people’s hiking preferences. Ultimately, both groups still managed to reach the summit of Mt. Clinton in time to eat lunch together. Predictably, at the point where the Crawford Path intersects with the Mizpah Cutoff we encountered several friendly Grey Jays, pretty, but aggressive “moochers” that know that hikers often stop at this spot for a quick snack and almost always swoop down to get their fair share.

Just before reaching the intersection of the Crawford Path and the Webster Cliff Trail on which we would hang a right to take us up to the summit of Mt. Pierce, we broke out of the trees and were treated to fabulous views of Mt. Eisenhower and beyond it up the Southern Presidential ridge to Mounts Franklin, Monroe, Washington (with the summit peeking in and out of the clouds), and even Jefferson well in the distance. The only really icy section we encountered -- and where full crampons would have worked better than the MicroSpikes -- was on the short, steep stretch of the Webster Cliff Trail leading up to the summit of Pierce. The two groups joined up on the summit where we enjoyed our lunch, drank in the views, and took some more pictures. As an extra gift for this winter hike, it actually started snowing lightly while we were on the summit and continued to do so on and off for the rest of the hike.

After lunch (and what appeared to be a brief nap for Jim Casey who was really grooving in his new ultra-warm, down-filled hiking duds), we continued on the Webster Cliff down to the AMC’s closed-for-the-season Mizpah Hut. While most of this portion of the trail is relatively level and winds its way prettily through snow-draped coniferous trees, the last stretch down to the hut does get pretty steep. This requires careful foot placement any time of the year, and especially in the winter. From the hut, we took the Mizpah Cutoff back to the Crawford Path, meeting up with our still-hungry feathered friends at the same spot and then followed the Crawford Path and Crawford Connector back to the trailhead, first stopping for a group photo on the bridge over Gibbs Brook.

We arrived back to the trailhead at around 2:40 pm, with plenty of daylight left. After unshouldering our backpacks, pulling off our MicroSpikes, and thanking the leaders for what turned out to be another beautiful and convivial winter hike, some of us headed across the street to the Highland Center for either a cold beer for those lucky people planning to spend a second night in NH, or hot coffee for us not-so-lucky people who had to hit the road for the long drive back home to Massachusetts.

Next month, we finish up the 2013 SEM Winter Hiking Series with our overnight trip into beautiful Carter Notch, one of my favorite spots on earth. Can’t wait!

Winter Fun with Some New Toys

By Gina Hurley

SEM Communications Vice Chair

Some of you may be thinking that winter is nearly over, so why write about it, especially as many people are thinking about spring and summer activities. Well even though Punxsutawney Phil did not see his shadow, and is predicting an early spring, snow is still falling, and temperatures are cold enough to make any winter activity exciting. A year and a half ago my husband and I finished summiting New Hampshire's 48 four thousand footers. After completing them, we decided, like many people do, to try to summit all 48 in the winter months. Last winter we summited several peaks but began to feel that our equipment, which was mostly equipment we used for summer hikes and backpacking, or winter skiing, was not sufficient. Specifically we were concerned about having the appropriate clothing, traction for both light and heavy ice conditions, and the right pack size. As this winter began, we were committed to summiting several more 4,000 footers, and decided that new equipment was a must. We all know that our “toys” can be expensive, and so we have spent most of this winter adding to our collection. Here are some of our recent purchases and how they performed.

“my husband and I finished summiting New Hampshire's 48 four thousand footers”

Appropriate Clothing: Although we have many articles of clothing for skiing and hiking, the three critical clothing items we needed were light weight gloves, newer wicking shirts, and a thin, packable down coat.

Gina Hurley and her husband Mark on Mt. Jefferson

- Gloves: We bought light weight gloves with a stretch fabric that are breathable, moisture-wicking, and wind, water, and abrasion resistant. We purchased these at Eastern Mountain Sports, and they have performed well. We have used these on many winter hikes, and they supplement our heavy duty gloves nicely.

- Wicking Shirts: I am sure many of you have wicking apparel. The long sleeve shirts I have are fine, but getting old. In addition, when buying clothing for winter activity you want to buy some of them larger so that you can layer, and still have enough room to move comfortably. You can find wicking shirts in many stores these days, not just outdoor recreation stores. In fact, some department stores carry these items regularly and can even be less expensive. We found ours at Sears and they are great.

- Thin, Packable Down Coat: We realized that hiking above 4,000 feet

requires many layers, and different coats for such layering. Having an outer parka is important, but as important is a thin, packable down coat that can be worn as an outer layer, and also as an inner layer under a heavier coat. Since we already had a heavier, outer layer, we bought a hooded Nordic Track down coat for the mid-weight. We also found this product at Sears. We used them recently on the top of Mount Monroe (5,372 feet) and they were comfortable and warm.

Traction: Snowshoes are great, and we've had ours for years. Our crampons were old, and the strap style made them difficult to stay tight on our boots. In addition, we needed a lighter traction tool, for less icy terrain. We bought the Hillsound Trail Crampon (about $60) for lighter use, and the Hillsound Crampon Pro (about $80) for more aggressive terrain. The Pro has simple ratchet buckle bindings, which make them very easy to put on and take off, and unlike our previous crampons, stay tight on our boots.

Pack: Winter hiking requires a pack larger than one used for day hiking, but not as large as needed for backpacking trips. You want a pack large enough to carry all of your gear, from light weight to heavy weight, from gloves to coats, from snow shoes to crampons, and sleeping bag or bivy, in case you have to spend an unplanned night out! I recently bought the EMS Trail 50. With 3,010 cubic inches, and 3 lbs. 5 oz. it is a great size for winter day hikes, or a one-two day backpacking trip. It has pockets to store items you need to get at quickly, and lots of straps to hook your equipment to, such as snowshoes, crampons, or foam pad. The best part is this was recently on sale for 70% off!

There are always new “toys” to buy for our outdoor activities. Now is a great time to buy, as most winter equipment is on sale. Having the right equipment makes the experiences more enjoyable. These are just a few of my new winter “toys” that will make summiting the rest of the 4,000 footers a little bit easier.

New Pack and new crampons... working well!

Leadership Training Why Take It?

In order to foster safe outdoor recreation enjoyable to all, AMC has for many years offered a variety of training programs – both for personal growth and trip leaders/organizers (checkout <http://www.outdoors.org/recreation/leadership/index.cfm>). The most basic program is Leadership Training. This program covers the essential elements our trip leaders need to understand when organizing, planning and managing groups of hikers, bikers, paddlers, or skiers. It is offered by all AMC chapters to train leaders with a common set of guidelines for situations they will likely face in running an outdoor activity. Anyone wishing to lead trips for our chapter should take this program.

Suppose one is uncertain as to whether or not they want to lead trips. Can they take it? Or how about members new to AMC who are not seeking to lead but want to learn how our organization operates. Can they take it? And there are those members who just wish to participate and not lead. Can they take it?

Yes! Yes! Yes! to all three questions. Leadership Training is for participants, too. You will learn how leaders manage groups, screening considerations leaders undertake and may ask you about to insure group compatibility, how to deal with accidents and AMC liability protections, and ways to personally prepare for your outdoor experience whether it's hiking, biking, paddling or skiing. You'll also meet and interact with SEM trip leaders who present course materials. So give LT some thought.

SEM offers Leadership Training once a year. The next offering is coming up on April 6. It's not too late to register.

Contact our Education Chair, Len Ulbricht at lenu44@gmail.com for further information.

2013 LEADERSHIP TRAINING

Leadership Training will be held on Saturday, April 6, 2013 at Borderland State Park, N. Easton, MA. This course prepares trip leaders for managing groups they will be leading on AMC sanctioned trips. The course covers leadership styles, trip planning considerations, screening criteria to insure similar group member skills, risk mitigation, and qualifications to become a leader. Non-trip leader candidates are also welcome. It is an all day course with a mix of classroom and outdoor exercises. Lunch and refreshment breaks are provided. This course is offered at no cost to chapter members.

Skins and Skulls at the Highland Center Lodge

Provided by AMC Outdoors/ Great Kids. Great Outdoors is an Appalachian Mountain Club blog. Written by Heather Stephenson

Has your child touched the tiny pelt of an ermine? Or noticed that the eye sockets of coyotes face forward more than those of deer?

"Skins and Skulls" gives them a chance to do this and more. For me and my daughter, the hands-on presentation we recently enjoyed at AMC's Highland Center Lodge in New Hampshire was a fun learning experience and a perfect break between a morning of snowshoeing and sledding and a hearty hot lunch in the dining hall.

I like to see animals alive and in their natural environments, but the reality is that a fox won't sit still for you to pet its fur. And measuring the size of a moose rack or noticing the little grooves left behind by the veins and arteries that were in its velvet is best done when the moose itself is not around.

What could be explained in a book about animals is much more easily discovered and understood by seeing and touching their bones and fur. For example, it makes more sense to me now that ermine's winter white fur was once used as a sign of royalty and high status in Europe. Just think how many pelts of animals that range from 6 to 13 inches long would be needed to edge a cape! And now when I notice an animal like the deer with eyes on the side of its head, the better to notice what's coming after it, I will understand that it is avoiding a predator, which likely has forward-facing eyes that allow it to see and judge depth during the hunt.

"Skins and Skulls" is one of many free programs offered by guides at the lodge for all guests. Others include naturalist walks, snowshoe treks, guided hiking and cross-country skiing, and evening talks or movies about natural history or outdoor adventure. Special programming for kids is often increased during vacation weeks, so call the lodge at 603-278-4453 to see what's planned. The lodge also has a natural outdoor playscape to explore, a recently enlarged collection of children's books in its library and basement game room, and the L.L.Bean gear room, from which guests can borrow boots, coats, snowshoes, and other gear. There's even a toboggan at the door that you can borrow for sledding.

August Camp 2013 in North Cascades, WA

Provided by Éva Borsody Das

In 2013 August Camp returns to the breathtaking North Cascades of Washington State. We'll hike in the North Cascades National Park, Mt. Baker-Snoqualmie National Forest, and Ross Lake and Lake Chelan National Recreation areas. Choose from a variety of 3-4 hikes every day, or add in backpacking, rafting or kayaking to expand your experience. No matter what you do, you'll be surrounded by amazing vistas! NEWSFLASH! Hike with AMC Southeast MA leader LESLIE CARSON as she joins the ranks of August Camp leaders during weeks 3 and 4 of Camp!

Our full service tent village for 64 campers each week offers home-cooked meals, daily hikes at all levels, nightly campfires and wonderful camaraderie. The 2013 campsite is on the banks of the swift-flowing Skagit River, a popular rafting destination, in the shadow of glaciated 10,781 foot Mt. Baker, and just down the road from Cascadian Farms, known for their organic food and the best ice cream we've ever had! Our site is reached by the North Cascades Highway, considered the most scenic drive in Washington State. Fly into Seattle-Tacoma International airport, from where our fleet of vans provides free transportation to Camp each Saturday.

Registration forms and detailed Camp information can found at <http://www.augustcamp.org>. Plan your one or two week adventure now and be part of one of the oldest camps in the AMC. One week registration $875; $50 discount if registering for 2 weeks. ($50 more for non AMC members).

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

Thu., Mar. 21. Thursday, March 21, Hike World's End (C3C). Meet at 10:00 AM, World's End, $5.00 per person entrance fee for non-Trustees members. Come celebrate the vernal equinox with this moderately paced walk of approximately 4-5 miles, exploring the landscape of a unique peninsula in Boston Harbor. The terrain is moderately hilly (over the 4 drumlins), with a mixture of carriage ways and sometimes rocky paths. Boots or shoes with good traction are recommended; light traction devices may be helpful if icy conditions exist (hopefully not!). The reservation has stunning views, but is exposed to the sea and wind, so dress accordingly, in layers and with good wind protection, as well as sunglasses if bright out! Bring water, thermos with hot drink, snacks or lunch. Directions: From Rt. 3, take Exit 14, Rt. 228 North for 6.5 mi. Turn left onto Rt. 3A (at traffic light), and follow for 0.7 mi. Turn right onto Summer St. (traffic light). At the major intersection with Rockland St. (another traffic light), continue straight across onto Martin's Lane. Follow for 0.7 mi. to entrance at end of road. After stopping at the entrance gate to show your Trustees card or pay $5, park in the first lot you see on the left. There are portable toilets to the left of the parking area, up a small hill. For more information visit: <http://www.thetrustees.org/places-to-visit/greater-boston/worlds-end.html>. Sherborn BCT/Rocky Narrows Hike

By Len Ulbricht
Education Committee Chair
educationchair@amcsem.org

23 hikers turned out Thursday Feb. 21 on a cold blustery day offering brilliant sunshine for a walk-in-the-woods. Everyone layered up to fend off the biting wind. We expected the trail to be well packed from previous hikers tramping down the two foot snowfall but found a long section untrod by man, almost pristine, except for one set of horse hoof prints and dog tracks. This section of the Bay Circuit Trail in Sherborn is apparently lightly used, making it an even more wonderful trek though the snowy wooded landscape. But we had to break trail most of the way to Rocky Narrows. It was a tough, slow slog and we finally made the canoe landing for lunch, a most lovely spot on the Charles River where canoeists pull up in warmer weather. The return was equally enjoyable, and faster since we 20+ hikers had tramped down a solid path during our outbound trek.

Spring Weekend Ramble Noble View April 27 & 28

Enjoy a social weekend taking in fabulous views and hiking trails for all abilities, bubbling brooks and waterfalls, spring wildflowers and flowering trees, brilliant sunshine and brisk winds, all capped off with social camaraderie and hearty meals provided by our own Joyce and Luther Wallis. The Noble View cabins are modernized and wood burning stove heated. They are situated on an easterly facing bluff with an absolutely magnificent view out toward Springfield and Mt. Wachusett. More information on Noble View.

Extra spots are available this weekend while fellow SEMers take in WFA training. $80 covers meals and a bunk for both days, pricing tough to beat.

View from the Chair

By Cheryl Lathrop

Wow, that was a lot of snow in March! But, whether here locally in SE Mass or up there in the mountains, SEM members know how to make the best of it. Thank you leaders for our wonderful winter cold weather and snow activities!

Will April showers bring May flowers? Don't know about that, but Daylight Savings Time is here and the days are getting longer. And April sure brings fun spring activities here in SEM!

Paddling is starting! Cape Hiking and Biking is still happening, Trails, Conservation, CYP, Family, and Social are waking up after a long winter nap. (Hiking is always happening, 24/7/365!)

SEM seems to use April for training – Leadership Training, CYP Leadership Training, and Wilderness First Aid Training (WFA). Check out the “Upcoming Events” tab on our website www.amcsem.org.

So, grab your paddle, your bike, or your boots, and . . .

I'LL SEE YOU ALL OUTSIDE!

Got something to say? Got a good idea? Want to volunteer?
Feel free to contact me anytime about anything!

Family Events

The Family Events Committee brings AMC families together by offering outdoor adventures suitable for adults and children of all ages. By participating in our events, families can learn about and enjoy regional natural resources, as well as meet other families who have the same interests.

FAMILY HIKING SERIES

This hiking series is meant to introduce families to the joy of hiking. There are 4 hikes in the series; hike one or hike them all. At each hike we will increase our distance and time.

Got kids?

Join us for a hike in our Family Hiking Series!

April 13, 2013

Hike #2 will be at F. Gilbert Hills State Forest. We will climb some more rocks, cross bog bridges and enjoy lunch in the woods. We will be hiking for approximately 1 hour and 30 minutes before our lunch break and 1 hour and 30 minutes after. Bring your family, pack a lunch and enjoy another local treasure.

Appropriate for children 3 and up. Children under 3 are welcome in child carriers. Contact leader for more information.

FAMILY HIKING SERIES #1 BORDERLAND STATE PARK

We had the first hike of the series March 9th. Who knew when we scheduled this hike we would have 25 inches of snow at Borderland? What to do.....we put some snowshoes on the leaders and packed down a trail. Hiking in the snow, even packed down is a little tougher for kids without any traction gear so we improvised. We hiked for a while had lunch then off to do some sledding. A good time was had by all.

Wilderness First Aid Course (WFA)

This course deals with medical emergencies that may occur in the back woods when you are more than one hour from medical care and 911 help may not be accessible. Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations. Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify.

AMC family walk

April 06, 2013 - April 07, 2013 (Sat - Sun)

Location: Norman Smith Education Center
Blue Hills, Boston MA Area

Please encourage parents, grandparents, friends and neighbors to sign up for this great one day leadership training with AMC's expert trainer Aaron Gorban and the Boston Chapter Family Outings Committee. The training agenda will include all of the basics of AMC's leader training manual with a focus on how to be outdoors with kids.

Parents can leave their kids in the care of two excellent AMC program staff who will keep the kids outdoors all day with games and explorations. Overnight lodging is available.

Take A Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers. It's still winter up in the snow-covered mountains, so let's talk more about winter and early spring hiking.

One of the rewards of winter hiking is losing weight. In this case, however, body weight should not be lost by eating normal nutritious meals. One must eat extra carbohydrates and fats. What's more, don't stop for lunch--keep moving and snack, snack, snack.

Proteins take days to metabolize and fats take hours, but simple carbs metabolize quickly. Energy bars, gorp with candy, cookies and crackers, all give quick energy. If you hike in winter, this is what to snack on during the day, after you've had a solid fat-filled breakfast of cereals, toast with peanut butter, or bagels and cream cheese, or french toast with syrup, and cheese, nuts, fruits.

But you will lose weight on a rigorous winter hike because you'll burn off more than you eat. Because proteins take so much longer to metabolize, you put yourself in danger if you decide to eat "diet" meals. You will tire and get cold faster, which can lead to falls and accidents. Carbs and fats will keep you energized and warmer, especially if you keep moving and don't stop for lunch.

Here are some winter hiking pointers and reminders:

- 1) Add Tang or Gatorade to water to reduce the freezing point. You must drink extra liquid to stay hydrated. Drinking water seems counter-intuitive when it's cold outside, but you will sweat a lot. A flavoring added to water, keeps it from freezing and adds taste.
- 2) Don't eat snow. Always melt it before you consume it. Eating actual snow will make you cold and the amount of energy your body expends to melt it outweighs the benefit.
- 3) Keep spare batteries covered and in a pocket so that they are warm and ready, if needed.
- 4) Pack a small container of glasses/goggles anti-fog stuff.
- 5) Fleece is best for warmth. And if fleece gets wet it still insulates. "Down" is warm, but useless when wet.

In winter conditions, keeping warm is a function of keeping dry. The trick is to keep cool. "If your feet are cold, put a hat on, or pull your hat down over your ears. If you are hot, take off your hat, or pull it up over your ears." Don't remain hot or cold, stay cool!

Thanks to fellow AMC member Bob Vogel for providing most of this information.

Slow and Snowy Hike

By Maureen Kelly
SEM Vice Chair and Hike Leader

vicechair@amcsem.org

My usual Fast & Hilly Hike at the Blue Hills this month was revised by Mother Nature to a Slow & Snowy Hike. The storm that blew through our area for two days last week dropped close to 2 feet of snow at the Blue Hills. At home in Plymouth, my snow was almost gone and I knew there was more snow further north; I just didn't know how much.

My email with the poop sheet suggested waterproof boots and microspikes but not everyone had the spikes. I could see our usual route, the Skyline Trail, from the road and it had been walked on; but without traction, we'd be sliding all over the hills. Not knowing exactly what we'd find for trail conditions we decided to hike the flatter White Triangle Trail, some of us in spikes, some in bare boots.

At first the trails were heavily packed and we moved fairly quickly. Before long though, the trails were less used, post-holes were everywhere and we tried to step in the footprints of the person ahead of us. We did not break virgin trail on any section; others had been there before us. I want to thank every hiker, snowshoer and skier that came through the trails before we did and packed the snow. At some points we could walk on single snowshoe tracks and not fall through the snow. Other areas were so deep that we needed snowshoes ourselves. In these areas and on the small hills we worked up enough heat to remove most of our outer layers. I don't want you to think I let the hikers off easy just because we weren't doing the Skyline Trail.

The deer in the park also appreciated the packed trails and we saw lots of tracks on our hike. We spotted a few of those deer watching us from a distance. Birds were singing; they were preparing for spring despite the snow on the ground. We saw no other hikers until we made our last cross of the Skyline Trail where we saw a couple hiking and a woman on snowshoes. She took the picture of us. In the end, five women, Karen Rudio, Lianna Lucchesi, Megan Conley, Aviva Slomich and I had a beautiful, Sunday morning, winter hike of almost 7 miles in a lot of snow. It wasn't the hike we were expecting but it was great; it's nice to shake things up once in a while.

Carter Notch Overnight Provides Fitting Finale for 2013

SEM Winter Hiking Series

By Paul Miller
SEM Hiking Committee
Vice Chair

hikingchair@amcsem.org

The SEM Hiking Committee has developed what we think is a pretty good formula for our annual Winter Hiking Series.

First, we start off with an informative indoor workshop in November to provide prospective participants with an overview of what they can expect during the series as well as what equipment and clothing they'll need and how to use it. We also explain how to eat and drink during winter hikes to help void "bonking," dehydration, and hypothermia and provide some suggestions for conditioning.

Progressively more difficult winter hikes

Early in December, we have our first actual winter hike, usually an easy local hike, such as this year's Blue Hills hike on Dec. 1. As explained in an article in an earlier issue of the Breeze, while this was still pretty early in the season, we really lucked out this year with relatively cold temperatures and a light snowfall. This provided participants with a chance to try out some of their cold-weather gear.

Then, early in January, we usually head "up North," to a relatively easy mountain in NH. This year, we hiked the Morgan-Percival Loop overlooking scenic Squam Lake on Jan. 5. Once again, we lucked out with wonderful weather for winter hiking: sunny, cool temps in the mid 20s, and a moderate breeze on the exposed summits and ledges.

On February 1, for our third hike in the series, we hiked up 4,301-foot Mount Pierce in the Presidential Mountains of NH. Again, we experienced wonderful winter hiking weather. In this case, that meant cold temperatures in the single digits, very little wind, and sunny skies in the morning (yielding excellent views from the summit), which gradually progressed to overcast skies and light snowfall.

Had the "weather gods" finally deserted us?

However, in the week leading up to the final trip in the series, it looked like the beneficence of the "weather gods" might finally have left us. All week long, the weather reports for the upcoming weekend kept predicting unseasonably mild temperatures and a chance of showers...even at higher elevations. Not at all an encouraging outlook for our trip to the AMC's Joe Dodge Lodge in Pinkham Notch and Carter Notch Hut, March 1-3.

But fear not resolute hikers; the weather turned out great for the weekend; cold on Friday in the teens, with only slightly warmer temps in the high 20s and low 30s on Saturday and Sunday. And while we didn't see any bright sunshine during the trip, it did snow lightly on and off all three days, providing an appropriate backdrop for winter hiking. In fact, my only weather-related complaint (if you can call it that) was that my 0 zero degree down sleeping bag was a little too warm for me Saturday night at Carter Notch, even in our unheated bunkroom.

Snowshoeing in Pinkham Notch

As usual, the hiking and camaraderie were also great. Most of us took the day off on Friday to make the long trek from Southeast Mass. up to Pinkham Notch. After checking into their bunkrooms at the Joe Dodge Lodge, Leslie, Wayne, and Maureen (the other three leaders for the weekend) led a group of SEMers up the Tuckerman Ravine Trail for a quick afternoon snowshoe hike.

As planned, I waited around for some more stragglers to arrive and then led a smaller group up to Square Ledge. This short, fun hike offers a wonderful view down into Pinkham Notch. We had to break trail in our snowshoes through the fresh snow, which was a lot of fun, especially as we got to the final really steep section of trail that leads around to Square Ledge itself. Coming down this really steep, snowy section in our snowshoes was even "funner," but we took our time and everyone made it down OK.

The important thing, of course, is that both groups made it down to the Joe Dodge Lodge in time to enjoy our chapter “happy hour” in the cozy, fireplaced living room. This provided everyone with a chance to socialize, catch up with each other, snack lightly on cheese and crackers, and enjoy some of the wine and beer we all brought up with us for the trip.

At 6:00 pm, we headed over to the dining hall to enjoy an excellent and plentiful buffet dinner, which ultimately resulted in applause for the chef. (As is often the case at the AMC lodges, the homemade soup was particularly outstanding...). Then, after checking out all the neat gear and books in the adjacent Trading Post, many of us stuck around to enjoy a short film on backcountry skiing in Tuckerman Ravine, after which we all turned in early for our hike into Carter Notch the next morning. I lucked out that night, sharing a spacious “family room” at the JDL with just one other person, a quiet (non-snoring) young guy up in Pinkham for the weekend to take a SOLO wilderness first aid course.

The siren call of Carter Notch in winter

Saturday morning, following a hearty breakfast, we met up in the Pinkham parking lot to split up the group food that Leslie had purchased and carpooled several miles up the road to the small Nineteen Mile Brook Trail parking area. Here, all 17 of us intrepid winter hikers shouldered our heavier-than-usual winter packs, circled up for a brief orientation by the leaders, slipped on our microspikes, and then headed up the beautifully snow-covered, but well-broken-out Nineteen Mile Brook Trail for the 3.8 mile trek up to the Carter Hut.

For most of its length, this trail climbs gradually, hugging the pretty brook and providing occasional glimpses of mountains on both sides. This day, the trail was particularly attractive, with heavily snow-draped trees providing each with two leaders. We all made it up to intersection with the Wildcat Ridge Trail in good order and then negotiated the short but steep descent into beautiful Carter Notch, with its two pristine, iced-over mountain ponds, the imposing “Ramparts,” and the historic stone AMC hut, all nestled between majestic Carter Dome and Wildcat A Mountains.

After following the trail around the shore of the larger pond and then crossing right a real sense of winter hiking in NH. Soon after passing the Carter Dome Trail on our left, which marks the approximate halfway mark, at Wayne’s suggestion, we all swapped our microspikes for snowshoes, since the snow was getting deeper and softer as the trail climbed up toward the Wildcats. For the last half mile or so, the trail climbed steeply (or at least it seemed awfully steep to me...), at which point we broke up into “faster” and “slower” groups, over the frozen smaller pond, we arrived at the hut, the oldest in the AMC hut system, a little after noon. This sits just above the shore of one of the two ponds, which serves as the winter water source for the hut. After checking in with Chad, the a m i a b l e winter caretaker, we found our a s s i g n e d bunkrooms in one of the two unheated wood bunkhouses just up the trail from the stone hut itself. After spreading out our sleeping bags and orienting ourselves a bit, we all met up again in the hut to eat our lunches and discuss our plans for the afternoon.

the Notch. Maureen and I led another group to explore the Wildcat River Trail, which passed right out from behind our bunkhouse and eventually wends its way down to the paved Carter Notch Road in Jackson. Mistakenly, we thought this would be a relatively moderate ramble

You don't have to summit to have fun

We decided on two different snowshoe hikes. Leslie and Wayne led a group that wanted to score a winter summit of 4,832-foot Carter Dome, a steep, approximately 1,500-foot climb up from through the woods. The relentlessly steep section of the Carter-Moriah Trail that leads up to the summit of Carter Dome proved to be deep in unbroken snow, meaning the hikers practically slid down two steps for every step climbed on their snowshoes. In these challenging conditions, only two hikers actually made it all the way up to the summit, but all had a blast.

Our group ran into a surprise on the Wildcat River Trail as well. Rather than a pretty "ramble" through the woods, we found ourselves on a steeply descending trail, on which only a lone skier had passed since the last snowfall. While it was certainly pretty in these quiet, pristine woods and a lot of fun negotiating this descent on our snowshoes, the thought that we would have to regain all the altitude lost on our return to the hut prompted us to turn around after just a half hour or so. The climb back up to the hut wasn't nearly as difficult as we had anticipated and just before reaching the hut, several of us broke off to explore a side trail to The Ramparts, huge boulders that loomed over the Notch offering wonderful views.

An eating club with a hiking disorder...

Back at the hut, which was beginning to fill up with several other groups, we enjoyed Leslie and Maureen's sumptuous appetizer spread (along with wine and other refreshments) while waiting for our allotted time to prepare our group pasta dinner in the hut's small, but well-equipped kitchen. After dinner, we socialized some more and then headed back up to the bunkrooms to crawl into our sleeping bags for a well-deserved rest. For many of us, this was punctuated by more than a little bit of snoring, to which I no doubt contributed at least a bit.

The following morning, after a hearty group breakfast of pancakes, sausage, oatmeal, and coffee, we packed up for the much easier, largely downhill hike back to our cars, passing several other groups of hikers going in the opposite direction on the way.

Back at the trailhead once again, after unshouldering our packs and unstrapping our snowshoes, we circled up one last time to thank Leslie and Wayne for putting together this excellent trip and say our goodbyes before departing for the long drive home.

The headline says it all. This indeed was a fitting finale to the excellent 2013 SEM Winter Hiking Series. For me, while I've done many winter hikes with the Club, this was also the first winter series for which I personally completed all four hikes (see sidebar).

SEM Communications Vice Chair
commsvicchair@amcsem.org

On March 9, 2013 we held our annual Open House at the Bourne Community Center in Buzzards Bay. This was a great opportunity to meet new friends, and learn about all of the fun activities the SEM chapter offers.

About a dozen new members came, along with several current members. Most of the new members came from the Cape, and many were interested in hiking activities.

To give new members an idea of the opportunities in the chapter there were presentations on hiking by Walt Granda, family events by Christine Pellegrini, CYP by Sally Delisa, and August Camp by Leslie Carlson. Refreshments (sandwiches and cookies) were served, and raffle prizes insured fun was had by all!

We would like to thank Jim Casey for the photos, Maureen Kelly for helping with several tasks, and Ed Miller and others for their coordinating efforts.

A special thank you goes to all of the presenters that came to introduce new members to our organization. They left knowing more about AMCSEM then when they came!

Don't forget to look at the chapter calendar for other great events!

XC Ski at Applebrook Weekend, Mar 1-3, 2013

By Len Ulbricht
SEM Education Chair
educationchair@amcsem.org

When we arrived Friday afternoon, with 2-4 inches of fresh powdery white stuff on the ground, Barbara, Ellen, Anne and Ewa had their snowshoes strapped on and were off breaking trail into the woods surrounding Applebrook B&B, our sanctuary for the weekend. We (Monica and I) chose to get acquainted with our room and unload our luggage. Soon thereafter Wayne, Jodi, Ralph, Jeannine and Paul arrived rounding out our group just in time for pre-dinner appetizers. (For those unfamiliar with these XC ski weekends, Barbara reserves the entire B&B for our exclusive use, with dinner and breakfast both days included.)

I'm a downhill skier, never having tried XC, but I don't downhill on weekends anymore given the extra expense and crowds. So this was my time to experiment with XC skiing on flat terrain. Arriving at Bretton Woods Nordic Center to rent equipment I was presented with my first challenge – conventional or skate? Egads, people skate on skis? Stick with conventional skis they advise first timers. And what curious boots – they lace up. No buckles. Hadn't worn lace up ski boots for decades. And the pricing. The rental and trail fee came to less than my typical weekday lift ticket. Wow.

Next challenge was the XC step-in binding. Place the boot toe up against the binding, lean forward and snap goes the binding – your fastened. That's what they told me, but they lied. Suffice it to say it was struggle struggle struggle until eventually "snap" went the binding and I was fastened in. Then repeat the struggle struggle struggle for the other foot. Downhill step-in bindings are so nice. Place the boot toe in the binding toe piece, press down with the heel and, walla, your fastened to the ski.

Next challenge – how to create forward motion with edgeless skis. Do it all the time with my alpine skis – push off with the inside edge. But these things slip – and I fall. But no time to practice. The others have arrived and we are off to the first trail. No wide open slopes here. The groomed trails look to be 15 feet or so feet wide, bounded by scenic woods and a gurgling stream. Real nice. And the trails even have tracks, one for each ski, running along the side of the trail. The tracks are cut by the trail groomer. Nice person that groomer. So I put skis in tracks, copied the swinging motion of the others and off we went.

Next challenge – Whoa, how do I slow down? It’s so easy to ride up on the skis of the person in front. Solution. Put Len in the lead. Ugh. Okay, away we go.

Well it didn’t take long to get into the swinging motion and glide along the trail. Glide left pole right, glide right pole left – you get the idea. Onward to the yurt. The yurt outpost was a most welcome rest stop in the far woods. Cooled down, ate lunch fixings, and chatted. Once refreshed, off again for the return. More glide left pole right, glide right pole left till we closed the loop and reached our starting point. Ahhh, off with these edgeless skis.

Now for the reward, the best part. It is customary on these ski trips to simultaneously recover from the strain on our leg muscles and re-hydrate our depleted bodies with a stop at the Mt. Washington Hotel lobby bar. Then, after one or perhaps two rounds, we adjourn to the Applebrook for BYO appetizers and a gourmet dinner.

Tough to beat an introduction to XC skiing like this. From now on, downhill weekdays, XC weekends.

Conservation

Please consider adopting these three simple tips to protect our seas, streams, and water supplies:

Join the Massachusetts Annual Statewide Beach Cleanup:

Volunteers throughout Massachusetts turn out in large numbers each year for COASTSWEEP, the state-wide beach cleanup sponsored by Coastal Zone Management and the Urban Harbors Institute of UMass Boston. COASTSWEEP will celebrate its 24th year this September and October.

Get a free Seafood Watch Pocket Guide from Monterey Bay or download the Seafood Watch application right to your phone:

The Pocket Guide and Mobile application will help you choose ocean-friendly seafood wherever you live or travel. Worldwide fishing practices are damaging our oceans by destroying habitats and polluting water.

Be a smart consumer of seafood!

Consume LESS Bottled Water! Buy a BPA free water bottle with a filter attached. Every year, over 300 million tons of plastic are produced and contribute to garbage patches in our oceans, which kill birds, sea turtles and other sea life; in the US alone we buy an estimated 28 billion water bottles annually and over 80% end up in our landfills.

Are your juices flowing yet?

Last weekend was Ed's annual NY Times Crossword Puzzle Tournament in Brooklyn Heights. Typically, while he "works," I explore the neighborhoods, take many photos and hope he takes me to a good place to eat later.

This year I invested in a $12 ticket on the East River Ferry which gave me unlimited rides for the entire day and spent 2 hours riding north and south getting shots of Brooklyn and Manhattan, replete with a multitude of bridges. Such a deal!

About halfway through my voyage, look what I saw! Forgot to quiz him if he was wearing a wet-suit or noticed if he had a spray skirt. Shame on me, but we really we couldn't have communicated without a megaphone.

It got me looking forward to our upcoming opening paddle of the season - Bill's trip on the Centerville River, truly a perennial favorite.

Here's to spring and I can't wait!

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

HIKING

IMPORTANT: No pets w/o prior permission of trip leader. Individuals under 18 years of age must be accompanied by a parent or responsible adult, and obtain prior consent from L. Those accompanying a minor are responsible for minor's actions. Reg. req'd for most hikes, preferably at least 1 week prior to the trip so Ls can discuss prior hiking exp., conditioning, clothing, and equipment. Dehydrating Food: The Basics

By Gina Hurley
SEM Communications Vice Chair

No matter what our outdoor activity, when we are out in nature, particularly on extended trips, many of us struggle with the space and weight of food. Whether you hike or backpack, canoe or kayak, climb, bike, fish, camp, or even hunt, the amount of food we need to pack can take up a lot of space and weigh way too much. In addition to the space and weight, freshness is a factor. One way to deal with this is to use dehydrated foods. Of course there are many prepackaged options out there. Most outfitters carry different brands, such as Mountain House or Backpacker's Pantry. You can also order different products as from www.hawkvit-

tles.com or www.packitgourmet.com. These are all great options, but can be a bit pricey compared to dehydrating your own food. For those of you who want to try dehydrating your own food, it can be very easy and simple. Once you try it a couple of times you can get more creative and elaborate.

Getting started is easy. With the internet you can certainly find a lot of recipes and information online. In fact, you do not even need a dehydrator, but can dry your food in the oven. If you do choose a dehydrator you do not have to spend a lot of money. I have a Nesco, which was under $50. You can get others for much higher in price, with more options, but for a beginner a basic dehydrator will do fine. A great resource for information and recipes is www.backpackingchef.com. This website walks you through preparing and dehydrating individual items, such as more >> Page 6

View from the Chair

By Cheryl Lathrop

As I write this, I'm excitedly packing for a weekend getaway! SEM is holding its 2-day Wilderness First Aid (WFA) training at AMC Noble View camp. What a brilliant idea—to have our 2-day class out in beautiful western MA!

I can't wait to wake up each morning and have a cup of coffee sitting on the porch of the Double-Cottage looking out for miles over the valley (pic below!) This is the best of SEM—combining daytime classroom safety training, with nighttime socializing with friends around the fire, with beautiful natural surroundings.

So, by the end of Sunday, I'll be rested and relaxed, and recertified in both WFA and CPR to maintain my qualifications to lead mountain hikes (as will all the other leaders attending).

So, whether you're on the trails, the waterways, or the roads this May—

I'LL SEE YOU ALL OUTSIDE!

Got something to say? Got a good idea? Want to volunteer?

Feel free to contact me anytime about anything!

Got kids?

May 11, 2013

Hike #3 will be at Blue Hills Reservation

Join us for our Family Hiking Series. This hiking series is meant to introduce families to the joy of hiking. This hike we will be adding some elevation gain to our hiking skills.

We will be hiking for approximately 2 hours before our lunch break and 2 hours after. Bring your family, pack a lunch and enjoy beautiful views of the Boston skyline. Appropriate for children 3 and up.

Children under 3 are welcome in child carriers.

Contact leader Christine Pellegrini 508-244-9203 (best time to call: 6-8pm) chrispellegrini@yahoo.com for more information or to register.

Registration Required.

F. GILBERT HILLS STATE PARK

Had our second hike of the series April 13th and it was a blast! Beautiful day and quite the group of hikers ranging in age from 2 to 13 years old. Fun day in Foxboro for sure. Join us on hike #3 May 11th at Blue Hills Reservation!

Hiking Tip - Pack Sandals

By Ray Anderson

HELLO FELLOW HIKERS.

What's one of those items you keep forgetting to pack for a hike? Or, perhaps, you haven't realized their versatility and don't take them. I bet it might be sandals.

Hiking Tip: Pack Sandals

Let's say that your map shows several streams or narrow rivers. And when you arrive you find out there are no bridges. The streams are not too deep and are fordable, but the water will fill up your shoes or boots and drench your socks. So you decide to go barefoot. But wait; isn't that how you aggravated a blister or bloodied your foot on a rock the last time? Now, don't you wish you had packed sandals?

Crocs are my sandals. The ones you see in the pictures are the same ones I bought in Georgia in 2003 (back before they became a fashion statement) in a hiking store on the A.T. And I still wear them---around the house and on hikes. They are indestructible. I submit, and I'll probably be corrected, that crocs were first sold in outdoor stores. That's where I and many other hikers first saw them.

Sandals have other advantages. They provide the perfect way to air out your feet at the end of the day. And you won't stub your toe walking about camp. In the black of night, if you have to void, sandals are quick and convenient as you exit your tent or shelter, and you don't have to worry about stepping on sharp stones and twigs. Most of all, sandals are relaxing. Put them on your pack list, and end the day in comfort.

vegetables, fruits, and meats, and also has many different recipes. I started dehydrating fruits and vegetables first to see how they came out, and then moved into various recipes. Once I understood the drying time with my specific dehydrator, I started getting a little more adventurous, adjusted different recipes, and even came up with my own version of buffalo chicken jerky.

I dehydrate food for our backpacking trips, specifically our long-distance hikes. I have dehydrated food for our trips on the Long Trail, the Tahoe Rim Trail, and the John Muir Trail. A bag of dehydrated strawberries, bananas, and pineapples makes for great snacking along the way. And when you have not had fresh fruit in days or weeks, a bag of dehydrated fruit is very tasty. The chicken or beef jerky also makes for great snacking or a nice lunch. I have also made some great dinners, prepared before our trips. All that is needed on the trail is to add water. Chili and pasta marinara bark have been my favorites over the years.

Whether you are going out for a long-distance hike, or a week long biking trip, dehydrating your food can be a nice way to lighten your load and still have great food along the way!

Go backpacking?

Yes, you should! The reasons are pretty simple and plenty. When you travel, you see new places, meet new interesting and strange new people, taste new food, experience new things and encounter different cultures. On the road you're away from routine, you live an adventurous life and experience complete freedom. Answer: why NOT? There's a huge world out there, ready to be explored!

Teen Wilderness Adventures - Youth Adventures: Carter Notch Hut Base Camp

This trip begins by hiking to Carter Notch Hut in the White Mountains. This historic hut will act as home for the first two nights. As a group we will explore the Carter Range on day hikes while learning the basics of how to travel safely and efficiently as a group through this spectacular backcountry setting. The second half of the trip we will utilize backcountry campsites and put our new skills to use! Topics covered include: maps and navigation, dressing and packing properly, Leave No Trace, and basic camp craft. The fun outdoor skills you'll learn over the this 5-day adventure that will increase your wilderness confidence and leave you wanting more! Prices include instruction, transportation during the course, all meals from lunch the first day through lunch the last day, group equipment (tents, stoves, pots/pans, etc.), and all camping fees during the program. Trip planned for teens aged 12-14. more>>

Teen Wilderness Adventures - Wilderness First Aid and Rescue

Explore the terrain of the Presidential Range while learning wilderness first aid and search and rescue techniques. The course will use Hermit Lakes Shelters as a base camp to explore the surrounding area. Participants will explore introductory search and rescue techniques and leave with a Wilderness First Aid and CPR certification from SOLO. Trip planned for ages 16-18. Prices include instruction, transportation during the course, all meals from lunch the first day through lunch the last day, group equipment (tents, stoves, pots/pans, etc.), and all camping fees during the program. LEADERSHIP TRAINING APRIL 6, 2013

By Len Ulbricht
SEM Education Committee Chair

SEM's annual Leadership Training workshop was held at Borderland State Park on April 6.

No commitment to lead trips is required or expected in order to attend this training. Ten SEMers participated, some interested in leading trips, others learning important elements of trip leadership to make them informed followers.

The attendees enthusiastically engaged presenters with questions and comments, and during role plays exhibited exceptional thespian prowess. This was fun for everyone, as learning experiences should be.

Thank you to our volunteer presenters who took a Saturday of personal time to offer their leadership experiences to the group:

Great job. Also, special recognition to Jess Wilson, AMC Manager of Leadership Training, who traveled down from NH to address the important topics of risk management and liability issues when leading trips for AMC.

Bagging peaks in the White Mountains

By Doug Karlson
SEM Member

One night last week after dinner at the Appalachian Mountain Club's Highland Center at Crawford Notch, (they have really good family-style dinners) we watched a movie called Appalachian Impressions, about people who hike the entire Appalachian Trail. From Georgia to Maine. Crazy people, if you ask me, but a special breed of folks and I'm glad our country is populated with men and women who would do that. The narrator said it's good that the White Mountains come near the end of the trek (for north-bound hikers) because by then they're well-conditioned. Unfortunately, I was not in the best shape last week when I drove north to "the Whites" for four days of hiking. I've been busy and hadn't been to yoga class in weeks.

According to the film, the White Mountains, which include the Presidential Range (the big mama is Mt. Washington, at 6,288 feet, the tallest peak east of the Mississippi and home to the Mt. Washington observatory), are considered the most difficult stretch of the AT. I'll take their word for it. During our four days there, those peaks tested us. We pushed ourselves to our limits, and it's a great feeling – not giving up when you really want to.

I'm a novice hiker. Sure, I've been doing local day hikes, and I once climbed Cradle Mountain and did the Overland Trail in Tasmania, and spent two weeks hiking in Yosemite and Into National Forest, but that was a long time ago. So this trip was designed as a learning experience. I decided to go to the Appalachian Mountain Club's lodge so I could borrow any equipment we were missing and get advice from the guides there. We gained valuable insight that will help us on future trips: like the importance of crampons on icy terrain, waterproof pants for sliding down the mountain, and good recipes for trail mix (craisins, almonds and M&M's – yum!).

After checking in to the Shapleigh bunk house, our first hike was Mt. Avalon (elevation 3,442). We left at around 1 p.m. and not knowing if it will become more difficult, or even impossible, makes it all the more rewarding when you finally get to the top.

On Day Two we hiked a mile uphill on a paved road to get to the trailhead for Sugarloaf. It was about another mile and a half to the mountain's saddle, from which we went first to the Middle Sugarloaf summit, .3 miles away, then backtracked to the North Sugarloaf, which is .4 miles from where the trail connects to the top ridge. The sky was clear and we could see for miles as we stopped to enjoy our lunch. From the rocky cliff we could see hawks soaring in the valley below.

Day Three. This would have been a good day for a leisurely hike along flat terrain so I could rest my muscles and catch my breath. But no. We had planned to climb Mt. Jackson, our toughest climb by far. (Mt. Jackson is a 4,000 footer – 4,042 feet – but who's counting?)

Sugarloaf has interesting rock formations

Arethusa Falls

Grey Jay. You're not supposed to feed the animals, but this guy had real personality reached the summit about 2 1/2 hours later. It wasn't the tallest peak we climbed, but one of the more challenging, there are sections that are very steep and solid ice. In some places I was literally clawing my way up, grabbing saplings and branches and looking for a foothold wherever I could find one. But the difficulty of the climb, and

Overall, it's not as steep as Mt. Avalon, (although there was one steep icy "scramble" in the beginning that almost stopped us) but it's a lot longer, the trail to the top is about 2 1/2 miles. We wore snowshoes, for the traction, but would have been better off with micro spikes.

It was too cold and windy at the top

It was cold and windy at the top of Mt. Jackson.

Bagging cont'd of Mt. Jackson to stay long, so we descended 100 feet or so to have lunch in the snowy trail.

We were joined by a friendly bird who landed on my son Dougie's hand and helped himself to trail mix and crackers. It was a Grey Jay, or Canada Jay, and they're very tame. He kept coming back for more trail mix and even managed to steal a Ryvita cracker.

Finally, on our last day we planned a on the road and drive home. Instead we almost became an re-enactment of the Donner Party fiasco. Just kidding. The volunteers who maintain the trails do an awesome job, I'm the clueless one. Next time I'll bring a more detailed map. However, as we progressed, I started to notice that the trail was very rugged: downed trees, deep snow, washed out trail, tricky stream crossings. How can the trail be so rugged? I wondered. This is insane. We weren't wearing snowshoes, and I was up to my thighs in snow, and getting exhausted. Eventually, I said, "this is it, I can't go on," and then, through the tree branches, I saw the falls!

Halfway up Mt. Jackson

Dougie Karlson

short morning hike to Arethusa Falls, the highest falls in New Hampshire. Now, here I have a bone to pick with the volunteers who maintain the trails. Like maybe a sign that says "wrong way, this is the OLD trail." This was supposed to be the easiest of our hikes, short and sweet so we could get

After we got there, Dougie found a blue arrow on the other side of the river, and found a very well maintained trail. It was like walking on a red carpet. We made out way down to the mountain. Then drove to Conway, NH for wood fired pizza at Flatbread Pizza Co.

What a great trip. Years ago, when I spent that week hiking in Tasmania, I told myself I should do this every year. Then life got in the way. But I never forgot that I wanted to do that. Last year a good friend who was very into the White Mountains reminded me, and I'm grateful to her for that. It's about giving up the soft sheets and creature comforts, roughing it, being able to survive in the wild, forging special bonds with your mates, and appreciating how much you love this beautiful country. This beautiful planet.

New Hiker FAQ Sheet

By Paul Miller, Vice Hiking Chair

Welcome to the Appalachian Mountain Club! This FAQ page is intended for new members who are not sure how to choose a hike to match their ability level, register for a hike, or what to bring for a day in the outdoors. The Southeast Massachusetts (SEM) chapter organizes hikes year round, so it is important for new hikers to be honest in their self-assessment to maximize their safety and enjoyment as well as the safety and enjoyment of the other hikers in the group. Below you will find description codes that will help you choose, prepare for, and equip yourself for a hike that matches your strength and stamina. Also please feel free to contact the hike leaders indicated for any in which you are interested to discuss further.

Who may participate on an AMC hike?

All SEM hike participants must be physically able to participate in the activity described and be equipped with appropriate clothing, gear, and supplies for a day in the woods. AMC membership is not required, but encouraged. Younger hikers (under 18) are welcome, but must be accompanied by a parent or other responsible adult. The SEM Hiking Committee also offers several “family friendly” hikes every year, specifically targeted for families with younger hikers.

How can I decide which hike would be best for me?

AMC hikes are rated based on pace, terrain and distance. You should be aware that different chapters use a slightly different rating system for their respective hikes. In the SEM hiking rating system, the first letter indicates the distance of the hike (AA = 13+ miles, A = 9-13 miles, B = 5-8 miles, and C = less than 5 miles). The middle number indicates the pace that the hike leader plans to maintain (1 = very fast, 2 = fast, 3 = moderate, and 4 = leisurely). Finally, the second letter indicates the type of terrain we expect to encounter during the hike (A = very strenuous, B = strenuous, C = average, and D = easy).

So, for example, a hike rated as B3B in the AMC trip listing system or in our chapter’s Southeast Breeze newsletter, would be somewhere between five and eight miles in length, covered at a moderate pace, and over strenuous terrain that is likely to have significant elevation gain and loss. Obviously, while not overly challenging for an experienced hiker, this would not be an appropriate hike for a beginner, especially one who is not already in reasonably good shape. On the other hand, a hike rated as C3C might be just what a person who is new to hiking, but walks a lot or goes to the gym regularly is looking for. In addition, the SEM tries to offer at least one local, “Intro to AMC Hiking” hike every month and also tags appropriate hikes listed on the AMC online trip listing system with either an “F” to indicate “great for first time hikers,” or “N,” indicating that new members are particularly welcome. (Please note that if the trip status is “Wait Listed,” it means that the hike leaders have reached the maximum number of hikers for this trip and that there is now a waiting list for participation.)

If you are a new hiker, start with a slower, easier hike rather than a faster, more difficult one. Never choose a hike solely because of its location, no matter how appealing it may sound! It’s a good idea to start with easier local hikes held in State Forests, State Parks, conservation areas, and the Blue Hills Reservation before heading up to the mountains of New Hampshire or out to the hills of Western Massachusetts. However, once you start getting into it, you’ll be surprised how quickly you’ll become ready (both physically and mentally) for more ambitious hikes “up North.” Once again, you shouldn’t be bashful about contacting the respective hike leaders to discuss.

Do I need to register for AMC hikes?

Hikes organized by the SEM Hiking Committee usually require participants to register in advance. However, most hikes organized by our Cape Hikes Committee are just “show and go,” which means that you meet the group at a designated time and place.

For hikes that do require registration in advance, when you contact the person indicated as the hike “Registrar,” he or she will ask you several questions to help you decide whether that particular hike is appropriate for you based on your prior hiking experience (if any), physical condition, and equipment. Please don’t take it as a personal insult if the registrar turns you down for the hike and, as an alternative, recommends a hike that he or she feels might be appropriate (and enjoyable) for you. Also keep in mind that SEM hike leaders rarely (if ever) permit participants to bring their pets along on official chapter hikes and even then, you would require specific prior approval from the leader to do so.

When you show up for an AMC hike, you will be required to sign the liability waiver sheet at the meeting place and give a contact name and phone number. This is for your own safety. View a copy of the waiver.

Where do I get driving directions to the meeting place?

Hike leaders almost always include detailed driving directions to the designated trailhead in the information sheet (what we often refer to as the “poop sheet”) that they will e-mail to you at least a week before the hike. Of course, it’s always a good idea to consult a road map, an online map site, and/or your GPS to verify that these directions make sense to you. Also, the AMC strongly encourages carpooling, so the leaders will also often suggest one or two carpooling locations and encourage participants to communicate with each other in advance to maximize carpooling. Drivers should plan to arrive at the trailhead at least 10-15 minutes before the hike starts so you can don your boots and be ready to go when the group leader starts the hike.

What should I wear and what gear do I need to bring?

The “poop sheet” will usually include

New Hiker Cont'd FAQ Sheet

detailed information on what to wear and what gear is required for that particular hike. In general, you'll need:

- at least two liters of water in Nalgene-type water bottle or Camelback
- trail snacks and sandwich for lunch
- full rain/wind gear
- waterproofed, well-broken-in hiking boots
- gaiters (for hikes in winter or "mud season")
- weather-appropriate synthetic or wool clothing, including warm fleece jacket or wool sweater (multiple light layers are better than a single heavy jacket or coat). No cotton jeans or sweatshirts...
- warm wool, fleece, or nylon-shelled hat and gloves (mandatory in winter, good idea in the mountains any time of year...)
- hiking poles (not mandatory)
- headlamp (required for some hikes)
- personal first aid kit, sunscreen, and insect repellent (during bug season)
- toilet paper and baggy
- trash bag
- whistle and compass (ideal for safety)
- pocket knife
- bandana
- foam pad for sitting during breaks (optional)
- ID card
- Mylar "space blanket" for emergencies
- daypack to hold all the above

For winter hikes, the leaders may also require light traction devices (such as microspikes), full crampons, and/or snowshoes; plus additional clothing layers and an extra hat and gloves.

Many hike leaders will not allow individuals wearing jeans to join a hike. Cotton takes too long to dry, making it uncomfortable in warmer months, and actually dangerous when the thermometer drops (hence the often-repeated expression, "cotton kills.") and jeans are not comfortable for hiking. When stopping for breaks, we cool down quickly and wet cotton clothes could cause hypothermia posing a risk not only to the hiker but to the group as well. Most hikers wear synthetic clothes, in layers, because they wick moisture away from the skin and dry quickly. You will also need a water resistant windbreaker with a hood in case of a sudden rainstorm. In cold weather, you'll also need additional layers of fleece or wool (including a warm hat and gloves). Extra items in your backpack might include a fleece vest, a windbreaker, two or more extra pair of gloves in case the first pair gets wet; an extra shirt to change into for the ride home, and always, an extra pair of hiking socks. A leader can refuse a hiker if he/she deems the hiker is not attired in a manner appropriate for the conditions.

How do I choose hiking boots that will be right for me?

The first step in choosing hiking boots is to determine what kind of hiking you're most likely to be doing. Lightweight hiking shoes or boots are appropriate for local hikes on relative flat and smooth trails (think Borderland State Park); midweight hiking boots are more appropriate for more rugged Blue Hills or New Hampshire hikes. While, heavyweight hiking boots are usually best for multi-day backpacking trips, some diehards are willing to put up with their heavier weight and stiffness in exchange for the increased protection and support they provide. As a new hiker should probably choose midweight hiking boots, since these would also be appropriate as you progress to more challenging hikes. Please note that all heavyweight, most midweight, and even some lightweight hiking boots/shoes require adequate "breaking in" on the street before you hit the trails with them. You'll know when the boot is properly broken in when you can walk for a half hour or so and not feel any discomfort, pressure points, or "hot spots" caused by friction.

Go to a retailer that offers well-known, quality hiking gear (EMS, REI, LL Bean, etc.) and knows how to properly fit you for your hiking boots. A good boot fitter will measure your feet and take note of any conditions, such as pronation, that might require a supportive foot bed in order to get the best possible fit. Take along the socks you like wear for hiking. Be patient, and if you don't think the selection is broad enough, go to another store. Some stores that offer expert boot fitting will even take returns on boots that have been worn if the boot turns out to be a bad fit.

The boots should be snug at the heel but roomy enough for you to wiggle your toes. One way to test for a good fit is to move your foot forward in the unlaced boot so that your toes touch the front of the boot. There should be just enough room for your forefinger to fit between your heel and the back of the boot. If you are an in-between size, have the boots fitted to your larger foot and try using a more cushioned insert, or heavier socks, in the boot for your smaller foot. Sporting goods stores that cater to hikers will have a slanted ramp that you can walk up and down to test the boots for comfort when walking up and down hills.

AMC offers various discounts available for AMC Members; check these offers out before purchasing.

How much food and water should I bring for a day hike?

Bring lunch (usually a sandwich or two), trail snacks (such as chocolate, a granola bar, and/or fresh or dried fruit), and a minimum two quarts of water (three quarts when the temperature is over 80 degrees). In cold weather, some hikers also bring a thermos of hot tea or soup. Never skimp on water; it's your own responsibility to stay properly hydrated, which helps prevent fatigue, cramping, heat stroke (in summer), and hypothermia (in winter). After you have hiked various distances in different weather conditions, you will have a better idea of how much water and food you need. You should always carry some extra food, such as high-energy bars, in case you experience a delay or if you feel hungry on the trip back home.

What is the role of the leader and the co-leader?

It's the leader's responsibility to plan and organize the hike and to guide the group, from the designated meeting place until the time of departure. The leader's decisions about the route and group conduct are final. The assistant co-leader(s) is/are there to assist the leader, who may delegate certain roles to that person. AMC leaders are trained volunteers who want to provide an enjoyable day in the woods, so it is important to follow their guidance and observe all park regulations and club rules. Keep in mind that hiking involves a certain element of risk and that your personal safety is your responsibility, not the leaders, and that lack of preparation on your part can adversely impact the group as a whole.

What is the role of the sweep?

The official hike leader will designate someone to serve as both a “leader” and “sweep” before the hike begins. Hikers should remain behind the designated “leader” and in front of the “sweep” at all times during the hike to help ensure that no one gets lost or left behind. The official hike leader will also announce “separation breaks” every two hours or so during the hike in which males and female participants will move out of sight each other to perform the needed bodily functions. If you need a separation break before the leader calls one, let the leader know. Never leave the group unannounced for a solo separation!

What if I want to go faster than the group or if I can't keep up?

It is best to remain with the group even if you feel that the pace is too slow. If you do go ahead unannounced, the leader will consider that you have left the hike and will note the sign-in sheet accordingly. If you find that you cannot keep up with the group, it is best to let the leader know as early in the hike as possible, since he or she may have to assign another leader to walk you back to the trailhead. Never turn back on your own. Also, on SEM hikes, with adequate leadership, we'll often break a larger group into nominally “faster” and “slower” groups to accommodate different hiking speeds. Remember to read the hike descriptions carefully so you can choose a hike appropriate for your ability.

Can I use my cell phone on a hike?

Cell phone usage is not allowed except in the case of an emergency or special situation, in which case it should be used away from the group during a designated break and after you inform the leader so you don't get left behind by accident. Otherwise cell phones should be turned off during hikes.

Shenandoah National Park

By Gina Hurley

SEM Communications Vice Chair

Of the 58 National Parks in the United States, my husband Mark and I have had the good fortune of traveling to 19!

The most recent was in mid-April when we went to Shenandoah, which is in northern Virginia. It is only 75 miles from Washington, DC, and easily accessible from the highway. Shenandoah National Park was established in 1935. One of its greatest features is the iconic Skyline drive. Driving the Blue Ridge provides magnificent views to the left and right. This time of year the Skyland Resort is the only motel open in the park, and is located on Skyline drive. Although the word “resort” is in the title, think a bit more rustic!

The purpose of our trip was to hike. Given all of the mountains in and around the park, there is no shortage of great hikes: short and long, beginner to expert. On our first day we hiked Old Rag. Old Rag is Shenandoah's most popular and most dangerous hike. The circuit hike is about 9 miles. There is significant elevation change and a strenuous rock scramble that requires good upper body strength, maneuvering between rock formations, and jumping from boulder to boulder. Although the weather was cloudy, resulting in a viewless summit, this limited the crowds, and actually gave the hike a mystical and magical feel. We reached the summit with little difficulty. The hike down the other side was much easier, and had two shelters for day use. We stopped at the first one for lunch, and made it back to our car with ease.

On day two we drove a good part of Skyline drive taking in the sights and views. We also did a 3.3 mile circuit hike to Lewis falls, an 81 foot waterfall. Part of this circuit hike is on the AT. The AT runs close to the ridge throughout most of the park, so if you are a fan of the AT, there is plenty of opportunity to hike along the trail. Our last hike was in the Cedar Run and Whiteoak Canyon, which was an 8.2 circuit hike. The trail begins a descent down into the canyon, following a river, and passing Cedar Run falls. As the trail circles around to travel back up the canyon, it provides amazing access to Lower Whiteoak and Upper Whiteoak falls. Given the beauty of this hike, the trails were busy, even for a cool April day.

These are just three hikes in Shenandoah. There are many, many trails within the park. If you are planning a trip to Shenandoah, their website is very good, specifically their hiking page. Hope you can experience the beauty of any of our national parks. They are truly a gift worth experiencing!

Red Line the Blue Hills

On April 11, the Thursday evening hike series, Red Line the Blue Hills started off its 8th season hiking the trails in the Blue Hills Reservation. A good number of hikers from previous years and many new faces joined us for a hike along the south shores of Ponkapoag Pond out to the Horse bridge over Rt. 24, and then around the AMC cabins. We also got to explore a new trail on the latest Blue Hills map. Our second hike took us up the Smith Trail to the old Nike base in Randolph and this week we head for the CCC camp area.

A Paddle with Two Strange Bedfellows

By Louise Riemenschneider Foster
SEM Member

The setting is an early August paddle on the North River. Trip leaders, Art and Rick, rode up together from Southern Massachusetts to the headwaters of the North River. Rick had thrown his canoe, which had been stored in his yard, on top of his car and picked up Art on the way; then he headed north to Hanover.

The North River is a favorite destination and it was a spectacular day, so there was a large group eager to get on the water. The plan was to spot cars and ride the current of the outgoing tide to our lunch spot, Couch's Beach on Blueberry Island, and then on to the take out at Union Street in Marshfield. As usual, Art was in the bow and Rick manned the stern of his canoe, with the rest of us in kayaks. The lunch break was full of tall paddling tales and was followed by an easy ride to the take out.

When we reached Union Street, Rick began clearing debris he had not noticed before leaving home out of the bow of his canoe. It was then he discovered a tiny mouse, which must have been a stow away in his canoe, first on top of the car and later on the river, likely with the soles of Art's big muddy boots in his face.

We all marveled on how this little creature could have survived the long ride north, travelling at highway speeds on top of the car in an inverted canoe! Some of us took his picture, while another complained that mice had destroyed the wiring in his hot tub.

Now the overriding question was what to do about the mouse! We certainly didn't want to subject him to another trip like the one he had endured earlier in the day. Short of one of us taking him home, which after the hot tub story no one wanted to do, the only reasonable option was to dump him out of the canoe into the Marshfield woods. So, as he scampered away into the wilderness, many felt guilty about displacing him from his native home and what he could face in these unfamiliar surroundings. But the mouse was finally forgotten, as we packed up our gear and headed home.

A few hours later, we all received a forwarded email Art had just received from Rick: "You're never gonna believe this. We saved that mouse's life! When I was hosing out the bow of my boat, out swam an eight inch snake!"

Boat. 'Best of Draw Something'. Rate this drawing click >>> Credit Tango \(54\)

So, for the mouse, this turned out to be one heck of a lucky day, but for the snake, totally frustrating. As Art commented, "they were paddling an Ark of sorts" and who knows what else fell out during the ride?

So, no, although you may have first guessed otherwise, the strange bedfellows in this tale are not Art and Rick. And the moral of this story is to thoroughly check out the contents of your boat before you launch. Otherwise, you just might find yourself paddling with strange bedfellows of your own.

Of Special Note: George Wey will be leading a North River Trip this year on Wednesday, August 7, probably leaving from Union Street in Marshfield. For details check the Canoe/Kayak schedule on AMCSEM.org

Barnstable Harbor and western creeks

By Ed Foster
SEM Leader

On April 27th, the 10.8' high tide was at 1:22 so we launched about mid tide and headed north across Barnstable Harbor toward the entrance to Wells Creek. You didn't appreciate the strength of the tidal flow until you approached the far side of the harbor where there were various buoys and you could see yourself being swept from right to left relative to them.

We headed up Wells Creek with the intention of taking a sneak path back out to Barnstable Harbor. However the tide had not filled in that much so I decided to continue further up the creek to allow time for tide to come in a bit more. At the spot when it appeared that the creek was narrowing down to the point that any travel further up would require us to back paddle out we turned around. By then the creek had filled in quite well and the sneak path to the harbor had plenty of water in it. Once back in the harbor we headed west for a little bit until we came to an area that looked like we could haul out without too much problem. That was our lunch spot and we made it at 5 minutes before noon. Two paddlers chose to remain in their boats while the other 4 pulled out onto the salt marsh.

After lunch we headed south across the harbor toward (we hoped) Bridge Creek. By now the tide was quite high and entrances to the various creeks were a bit blurred. After a false start or two we found our way into Bridge Creek and started working our way up it. The further up the creek we got the better defined the channels were so finding the sneak path (the first of at least 3) to Brickyard Creek was fairly easy.

Two interesting experiences in Brickyard Creek. There was a Canada Goose nest right on the edge of the bank, with mother in attendance, that two of us came very close to before we realized what we were doing, and got a severe warning from the mother as a result. There was a collapsing Osprey platform that was apparently being contested by 2 Osprey pairs and we got to watch them swooping down on and chasing off whichever ones dared to perch on the precarious platform. Eventually they tired of that, or came to some sort of accord, and flew off to search for fish.

The rest of the trip back was uneventful, the tide was high enough that we didn't have to stay in the channels but could glide over the marsh in a more or less direct line home. 9.4 miles by my GPS.

SEM Chapter 2,000 Mile Club

By Bernie Meggison
SEM Leader

The 2,000 Mile Club was founded by Jack Jacobsen in 2003 to recognize our Southeastern Mass AMC member's accomplishments of cycling 2,000 miles or more in a calendar year.

After a minor niggle in the early years, the club was successfully revived in 2007 by our then interim chair, Victor Oliver. Since then we have grown steadily and increased our membership every year.

Mileage

2013 marks the 10th year of the 2K Club, as the first year of recording our mileage was 2004. Mileage must be accurately logged and recorded and

"2013 Marks 10th Year of 2000 Club" may be a combination of road cycling and mountain biking miles.

Send your mileage quarterly to our new registrar, Bernie Meggison at thosmeggisons@gmail.com.

Thanks again to Dan Egan for serving as registrar for the past four years.

AMC Books Announces New Titles

AMC's Best Day Hikes in Vermont provides detailed hike descriptions, maps, and directions as part of the "best of" hiking guide series. This guide will direct you to trips good for dogs, kids, snowshoeing, and cross-country skiing. It features GPS coordinates to trailheads, nearby attractions/amenities, trip planning/safety information, and nature and history essays.

AMC's Best Day Hikes in Connecticut, 2nd Edition is an updated and fully revised guide to hiking in Connecticut. The book offers 50 of the state's best trips up mountains, through caves, along riverwalks, and on shoreline trails. It features GPS coordinates to trailheads, nearby attractions/amenities, trip planning/safety information, and nature and history essays.

Outdoors with Kids Philadelphia is the latest addition to the AMC's Outdoors with Kids series. Providing comprehensive guides to low-cost adventure, the book includes destination and trip information for locations in and around Philadelphia. It focuses on the "pay-off" for children of each age group while specifying which locations are good for hiking, swimming, paddling, biking, etc. It features safety tips and a "Plan B" for each destination.

Monadnock Without the Crowds

By Paul Miller,
SEM Vice Hiking Chair

It's well-known that Mt. Monadnock in Jaffrey, NH is one of the most frequently climbed mountains in the world. What's not so well known, is that it's easy enough to (largely) avoid the crowds if you make the effort to avoid the popular White Dot and White Cross Trails that lead directly from the main parking area to the main summit. I've been climbing Monadnock two or three times a year now for the last fifteen or so years and in that time have come up with a number of interesting hikes, most that avoid those two crowded trails like the plague.

One of my favorite hikes starts at the main parking area off Poole Road. But rather than going straight up to the summit on either the White Dot or White Cross Trails, this hike first loops around toward the other side of the mountain via the little-trod Parker and Lost Farm Trails and includes a visit to the peaceful summit of Monte Rosa, one of the two sub-peaks (along with Bald Rock) in Monadnock State Park before finally hitting the typically crowded main summit of Grand Monadnock. This is the route that a group of thirteen intrepid SEM hikers (including leaders Ken Jones and I) took on April 27th for an excellent early-spring hike.

AMC Gear Swap

June 5, 2013 6:30pm - 9:30pm 4 Joy Street, Boston

Find a new home for that old, unused gear you have around the house, in the barn, or under the bed. You know, the stuff you never use, but it's still usable, or just needs minor repairs. Most items will be free and some items will be for sale. We hope that all the gear stays in the AMC family, but feel free to invite friends, family, coworkers and neighbors you think might want to come who could put the gear to good use. If you want to sell, donate, or volunteer, please register here and review list of gear available.

Wondering what to give your June graduate for a gift? I was recently wondering just this as I held the invitation to my nephew's graduation in my hand—and then I received an email from the AMC entitled “The Gift of Adventure”. Certainly curious, I opened it to see: “Give the gift of the outdoors. Give a U-30 membership.” I immediately clicked and bought my nephew a 2-year under-30 (U-30) membership. It came with a logo pouch and a clip-on LED light. Then I threw in my copy of a popular funny hiking the AT book. Problem solved with one click!

My nephew's graduation invitation e-vite (all is electronic nowadays!) had a picture of him in the Alaskan mountains from a family vacation. In my card I wrote: “You don't need to travel so far to find mountains; the Appalachian Mountains are right here in your own backyard!” (He'll be in the MD/DC chapter.)

So, forget briefcases and pens and watches. Congratulate your favorite member of the class of 2013 with the gift that brings them closer to the outdoors.

I'LL SEE YOU ALL OUTSIDE THIS JUNE!

Got something to say? Got a good idea? Want to volunteer?

William E. Leahey, 91

AMC lost a loyal and long-time member on May 10, 2013 when Colonel William Leahey of Brewster passed away at age 91.

As an AMC SEM member, Bill participated in bicycling, hiking, and canoeing trips. He competently led AMC hikes on trails in the mid and lower-Cape areas. In addition, he participated in hiking trips to the White Mountains with AMC friends and one particularly memorable one was when we accompanied former hiking chairperson Janet Kaiser on her final 4,000 footer!

Bill's generosity and camaraderie was demonstrated in hosting large New Year's parties in his home for his AMC friends and others for which he will always be remembered as well as for his dedication to his country serving in both the National Guard and the U.S. Army for a total of 33 years retiring as a full colonel.

Written by Nancy Wigley, AMC Life Member

“ AMC has lost a generation of renaissance men who were the leaders in the 80's and 90's.

They had mountain and white water experiences and joined AMC when membership requirements challenged the applicants skills and knowledge.

Others gone but not forgotten . . . Colonel Dalton, Harry Dombrosk, Jack Handlen, and Bud Carter. They initially had established and implemented the AMC outdoor activities on the Cape, including trail maintenance.

May we remember with great appreciation these men and their legacy of commitment to AMC activities on the Cape ”

Egg Island, The Quasi Phoenix

by Louise Riemenschneider Foster

Thanks to James Gould, Historian; Brian Braginton-Smith, Executive Director of the Lewis Bay Research Center; and Fred Stepanis, Barnstable Conservation Agent for the historical information in this report.*

The plan for our Lewis Bay trip is the “flip” of most of our others and the result is a delightful concoction of contrasts. This season, weather permitting, Ed Foster will be running this paddle on July 17. It begins in bucolic estuaries and coves and then for the grand finale, heads into one of the busiest working harbors on the Cape. All this is punctuated by an ethereal lunch site, which is quite unexpected if you haven’t before been on this adventure. When leaders select dates for their events, they usually target high tides at mid day for travel as far as possible into tidal areas. This one is fundamentally based on the opposite, when the tide cycle around noon is near low. It is then when the waters finely retreat to expose Egg Island, seemingly, but not really, “rising” like a Phoenix from the deep. It is surreal and this will be our lunch spot!

The trip begins in Yarmouth, moving clockwise along the perimeter of Lewis Bay, aka Sepnessett (its ancient Wampanoag name)*, into little estuaries and coves, the seclusion of Uncle Robert’s Cove and around Grand Island. The route is scattered with buoys marking shellfish grants and offers splendid, sweeping panoramas of the skyline of the Village of Hyannis, the “metropolis” of Cape Cod. On some trips we have an “encounter” in this area with a pirate ship! It is filled with kids dressed like bandits, and they point their huge cannons at us. These can deliver very hefty streams of water, but the adults in charge are saving the water for a summer hire floating in the harbor, pretending to be Slash, a nasty stranded mutineer. They soon head off searching for sunken treasure and the unfortunate Slash, leaving us in the midst of osprey screeching above.

Just when we are more than ready for lunch, we move past a breakwater into the harbor. If the timing is perfect, somewhere out there in Hyannis Outer Harbor, the waters part and our lunch spot magically appears as the Egg grows! This is a serene place, completely void of footprints other than our own. The water drains from the porous sand, instantly creating dry land so we can sit. Nirvana!

It is hard to imagine that not so long ago, there was a very different ecosystem here. Egg Island was a full fledged island with substantial upland dunes dotted with summer camps and could be accessed from Kalmus Beach by a shallow sand bar. A 13 foot deep channel into Hyannis Inner Harbor ran on the other side between it and Grand Island, and established the boundary between the Towns of Yarmouth and Barnstable, placing Egg Island in the Town of Barnstable. A popular social destination, girls rowed out with picnic supplies and boys waded over on the sand bar at low tide. It was known as a place where gulls' eggs hatched, hence the name. In about 1900, when today's wider channel into the harbor was dredged, the hydrodynamics of the Egg Island area were dramatically affected; sand accreted in the original channel and the island fell prey to major erosion, finally meeting its end at the hands of the hurricane of 1938. A sand bar now blocks the original channel, connects Egg Island to the mainland on the Yarmouth side and holds back waters from flushing the bay.* A robust land mass reduced to a sand bar and a once major channel choked with sand - perhaps an over simplification on my part, but a sad, all too familiar example of how a well intentioned project can trigger an upset elsewhere, and have far reaching consequences.

After lunch, we depart the still growing sand bar and cautiously cross the boat channel, then through a large, crowded mooring basin and finally into the inner harbor. Here we pass and are passed by commercial vessels going off to work and excursion boats taking folks out to see some of the places we have just been. Almost always, we see the Duck Boat; the passengers "quack" at us as it whirs by. We stay off to the side to give a wide berth to the ferries, which create surprisingly small wakes. The atmosphere is colorful and noisy. Artists' shanties, ice cream stands and water-side restaurants lining the shore above, beckon us to return when we are ashore! There are many kinds of marine tour operations and commercial fishing boats moored along the wharf at our level. We notice the pirate ship is back in port. Slash is no where in sight.

With little threat of pirate attack, it is back to the put in. All this covers 8 to 9 miles and as you load up your gear, you will feel "you have seen it all!" Hope for good weather on July 17 for the Good Egg!

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Pamet River, Truro

May 8, 2013

By Donald J Palladino

A dense early morning fog in Wellfleet did not bode well for the paddle, but by 8:30 the fog had lifted. The forecast was for showers later in the day, and so out we went and could not have asked for a more perfect day. It was a bit breezy at times - 10- 15 mph as reported, but we were mostly protected in the river and marsh.

We launched just at high tide and paddled upstream on the Pamet to Pamet Center where the Castle Road embankment had prevented flow from the ocean into the upper Pamet into the lower Pamet when the dunes were breached at Ballston Beach during the spring storm. Just as the tide turned we paddled downstream to the harbor and then into the tidal flat toward Corn Hill, returning to the south bank of the harbor near the breakwater for lunch - a total of 4.5 miles. After lunch we paddled into the marsh south of the harbor but the tide was retreating quickly so we returned to the launch site - overall just over 6 miles.

Did not see much wildlife, but saw enough of the sun to enjoy a great paddle.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Mashpee Wakeby Ponds

By Jean Orser L.

Paddlers: Jean Orser (Leader), Paul Corriveau (Co-Leader), Vicki Blair-Smith, Gary Robinson, Don Palladino, Marjorie Jordan, Bill Fischer, Louise Foster, Ed Foster, George Wey

A perfect sunny spring day with very little wind and temps in 60's was enjoyed by all. We paddled clockwise from the put-in on Mashpee Pond, Mashpee to the lunch spot at the end of Wakeby Pond in Sandwich arriving 1 minute before noon. The picnic tables were still there and sitting in the sun; catching up with everyone's winter activities was fun. After lunch we continued back to the put-in with a slight tail wind for approximately 7 miles total. It was great to see paddling friends again.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Swan Pond/River

May 11, 2013

By Jean Orser

Paddlers: Jean Orser, (leader), Paul Corriveau (Co-Leader), Vickie Blair-Smith, George Wey, Bill Fischer

Although the weather forecast was dismal with rain, thunderstorm, and high winds predicted, we decided to go as it didn't look like it would happen soon.

We paddled clockwise on the pond to Swan River and headed downstream under Upper County bridge which was still under construction to route 28 bridge where a temporary bridge is being built for future reconstruction of the main bridge to Lower County bridge.

The river mouth where we stopped for lunch (well before noon) is different again this year with much more sand on the left side and a very narrow channel to the ocean. White caps were visible in the ocean and so we didn't venture out. The wind increased and we had a nice ride back. We passed many geese, ducks, snowy egrets, a few osprey (2 in nest by route 28) and one swan.

The rain held off and it was a nice day to paddle.

When you need a quick and convenient temporary knot that can bear a continuous load and be rapidly untied, even under load, think of a toggle knot.

To produce a toggled reef knot, any fixed loops will do, but the loops ends must be secure. This knot is ideal for joining two eye splices, the loops of loop-producing knots or any combination of loops.

A. Bringing two loops together from opposite directions, take the tip of one loop under and through the tip of a second loop. Press the legs of the second loop up through the first loop and hold them in position.

B. Place the toggle between the legs of the second loop in front and the legs of the first loop behind.

C. Draw up tightly and maintain constant pressure on the toggle.

Block Island Cycling May 4, 2013

The Greenway, inspired by England's Greenway system of trails, is a growing enterprise that now includes more than 12 miles of trails covering much of the southern half of the island. The trails, which range from wide and flat swaths of mowed grass to rocky slopes, pass through many of Block Island's most revered natural areas: Rodman's Hollow, the Enchanted Forest, Nathan Mott Park, and Turnip Farm.

The Mohegan Bluffs are large clay cliffs about 150 feet (46 m) high, located on the southern shore of Block Island. They got their name because the battle of the Niantic and the Mohegan took place here in the mid 16th century. The battle was over supremacy of the island, and the intruding Mohegans were forced over the cliffs to their death by the native Niantic.

Last Hike of the Season

Hike #4 location TBD - New Hampshire

View our webpage

Got kids? Join us for our Family Hiking Series. Hike #4 is our final hike. We have learned a lot since our first hike and we plan to take what we learned and head to New Hampshire. The destination will be decided based on how our group has improved over the last 3 hikes. Appropriate for children 3 and older with some hiking experience. Children under 3 are welcome in child carriers.

Contact leader Christine Pellegrini 508-244-9203 (best time to call: 6-8pm) chrispellegrini@yahoo.com for more information or to register. Registration Required.

Family Hike Series #3

Blue Hills Reservation Milton, MA

The May weather threatened the hike but with the right window of opportunity we sneaked in a wonderful hike with the Families in the 3rd series hike at Blue Hills. We had some 2 yr olds that walked and rode in packs but the youngest hiker on the ground was just under 4 years old. Everyone had a great time.

AmeriCorps Volunteers of Barnstable hosted the 2013 Cape Cod Canal Cleanup Day

By Maureen Kelly
SEM Vice Chair and Leader
vicechair@amcsem.org

The AmeriCorps Volunteers of Barnstable hosted the 2013 Cape Cod Canal Cleanup Day on Saturday April 20. The weather was predicted to be rainy all morning and that kept some people back in their houses. Four SEM AMCsers donned their rain gear and pitched in to work. Nancy Wigley picked up trash along the canal as she has done in past years. The rest of us didn't see her because we were working on the Sagamore Hill Trails. Our group consisted of Joe Keogh, Cathy Garry and me. This is a nice area of trails across the street from the parking lot with the fishing pier on the way to Scusset Beach. Sagamore Hill is surrounded by the marsh but brings you to the high point of the area with beautiful views out to Cape Cod Bay.

There was light rain in the morning when we met our Americorp Volunteers Jenna and Scott. They had about a dozen engraved slate signs that are taken down in the fall and put up again in the spring. This was our main job for the morning as well as doing any small-scale trail maintenance that we noticed along the way. Joining our group was another local group of 3 adults and one mother and son team, Owen and Janet. Owen was the main sign-attacher because he was the shortest and could reach under the posts easier than the rest of us.

At the top of the hill was the remains of an old artillery base from World War II. The Sagamore Hill Military Reservation was built on state land. Its mission was to protect the Cape Cod Canal from possible air and naval attack. It never did have to fire its guns in defense though but it did play an important part in the defense of the canal. The Panama mounts (1942) and battery commander's station of a two-gun 155mm battery still remain here, as well as several magazine igloos. >> Sagamore Hill Military Reservation.

By this time the rain had stopped and the day was warming up. Cathy and I persuaded Jenna to walk us through other trails in the area so we could do more trail work since we were there and ready to work. She walked us around for about an hour and then back to the cars. All of the workers were rewarded with pizza in Buzzards Bay for lunch. It felt good to help care for a great recreational area in my backyard and I learned some local history as well. Thanks to all the AMCSEMers for putting in some hours to help keep it in good shape.

A rushing waterfall welcomes hikers to snack, cool off, and reflect. How many steps, water bars, bog bridges, cleared blow downs, and trail blazes did it take to get to this picturesque oasis? Who keeps the trail clear of encroaching branches and makes it passable through mud and muck? Enjoying that waterfall depends on the work of people just like you who take time to learn about and do trail work.

AMC teaches trail work skills from basic brushing to stabilizing eroding trails with rocks. Chapters offer many opportunities to learn and make friends while you work. Imagine if instead of just passing by a piece of trail, you spent a day making it safer, more enduring, and easier to find? Get Out. Give Back.

over the distant hills AND a 99% full pink moonrise above the glistening lights of Springfield, gurgling brooks, spring bird songfest, multi-course meals prepared on site by Luther and Joyce: what more could one ask.

In all 26 attendees from SEM, the Boston chapter and western MA scout leaders took in the Noble View experience. Nineteen folks took WFA and nine took CPR. They had a fabulous professional instructor SEM engaged for the weekend. Our SEMers are now ready to splint you, CPR you or Heimlich you if you dare to give them a chance.

The Ramblers took advantage of the great weather to mosey about the NV trails and waterfalls, and made offsite trips to bicycle, hike Mt. Tom, and visit the Keystone Arches Bridges in nearby Chester. These railroad bridges date back top the early 1800s and were dry stone built (no mortar), and their still standing. Spring bird calls abounded and one noteworthy call can be heard

It means planning meals, purchasing food and hauling it all to NV, waking at 4:30 to prepare breakfast, starting lunch soon thereafter, and dinner after that, then crashing early to get ready for the next day. And those meals: pan pizza dinner, breakfast quiche, French toast, pulled pork, chilli over rice, baked on site oatmeal cookies and brownies, hot hearty oatmeal, vegetarian options, and even cheese and veggie appetizers for social hour.

COLD RIVER CAMP LOOKING FOR LEADERS!

AMC Cold River Camp contacted South East Mass chapter looking for trained hike leaders to lead hikes for summer weeks at Cold River Camp. For leading four hikes over the course of a week, a leader would get free room (cabin) and board (great food) for seven days (a value of $545). There is an extensive inventory of possible pre-existing hikes from Camp gathered in booklet form ranging the full spectrum from easy to heroic. A leader is bound by specific hikes on specific days. They are encouraged to customize the day trips based on the guests at Camp, weather, and leader interests. They usually have two hikes leaders and a naturalist each week with each leader leading four trips (two offered each day), so trip selection doesn't fall all on one person's shoulder. Having already the AMC leader certification is a big plus.

Poole Reservoir to get to the Parker Trail. We followed the fairly level Parker Trail up to the Lost Farm Trail. This starts out level at first but soon starts to climb the side of the mountain. We followed the Lost Farm Trail up to the Cliff Walk Trail for a very short stretch to get to Thoreau's Seat (Monadnock was a favorite hangout for Thoreau, Emerson, and other Transcendentalists, who found its pristine beauty inspiring...). From there, after futzing around for a few minutes trying to find the correct trail (hey, I hadn't taken this particular hike for several years!) we found the sign for the Thoreau Trail, which brought us down to the clearing that marks the old Halfway House Site. Here, only a few pieces remain from the foundation of the small inn that used to house Victorian hikers.

From the Halfway Half Site, we followed the White Arrow Trail for a short stretch to the Monte Rosa Trail, which climbed with several steep sections up to the summit of Monte Rosa.

Other than one other hiking group that passed through us, we had this pretty spot all to ourselves (not at all an uncommon experience). We stopped atop Monte Rosa for a quick snack and to enjoy the view from our peaceful spot across and up to the well-populated summit of Grand Monadnock, just a half-mile away, but a good 1,000 feet higher.

From Monte Rosa, we dropped back down into the woods on the Smith Summit Trail and then alternately climbed and scrambled up to the crowded summit. Here, among the hordes, we located a spot for our group to hunker down on for lunch and to enjoy the panoramic view. Uncharacteristically for Monadnock, there was very little wind on the summit and even on this early spring day we didn't have to pile on the layers to stay comfortable.

After enjoying our lunch and taking the obligatory summit photos, we started the return journey via the exposed, but scenic Pumpelly Trail and then down the Red Spot Trail. While this trail is not all that difficult to climb, its several steep sections often make it a bit challenging to descend (a fact of which my 62-year old hips took the opportunity to remind me...). Luckily, the day was dry, so the footing remained secure. The Red Spot brought us to the gentler Cascade Link Trail, which follows a pretty stream for much of its length. This took us back to the dreaded White Spot Trail for a short stretch, which was not really all that crowded this late in the day..) and, eventually, the main parking area. Here, we said our good-byes and hit the road back to Massachusetts, somewhat tired, but with smiles on our faces.

We finished this approximately 6.5-mile hike in a total elapsed time of about six hours. Not a speed record to be sure, but a great day all in all. No bugs, no ice (didn't need the Microspikes that I had declared to be mandatory equipment after all...), plenty of sunshine, little wind, and a really nice group of people. This included several AMC members who have never hiked with the SEM before, but are likely to do so again at some point in the future...

Obligatory Summit Photo by Madelyn Atwood

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

Peak-bagging is hiker jargon for those who get satisfaction in summiting mountains. Peak-baggers will climb (bag) peaks usually in some type of organized quest. It's how I developed a passion for hiking.

Some years ago, I met a hiker in the White Mountains who said he was going to summit all the 4000 footers Washington's peak, looking down on Lakes of the Clouds Hut on the shoulder of Mt. Washington.

New Hampshire's Mount Washington, the highest mountain in the northeast, at 6288 feet.

in New Hampshire. There are 48, and he was up to 23. I checked my journals and realized I'd done seven. Over the next years, I finished the ones in New Hampshire and went on to complete all the 4000 footers in New England. There are five in Vermont and fourteen in Maine.

This whole idea can become addictive. There are lists of the 100 highest mountains in New England, the Northeast, and the USA. There are backpackers who try to "bag" all those peaks. I stopped after the 4000 footers in New England, but will begin a quest of the 4000 footers in the Adirondacks of New York state this autumn. There are 46, so it will take me a while.

The landscape photo where you can just make out the towers is New Hampshire's Mount Washington, the highest mountain in the northeast, at 6288 feet. The other landscape photo is from Washington's peak, looking down on Lakes of the Clouds Hut on the shoulder of Mt. Washington. The profile photo shows the Franconia Ridge Trail up to the peak of another 4000 footer, New Hampshire's Mt. Lafayette (5260 ft).

Most peaks are scenic and peaceful, the perfect place to relax and put your life in perspective.

getting new life out of a old tent

By Doug Karlson

AMC SEM

I purchased my Eureka two-man tent in a sporting goods store in Lower Manhattan in 1987. I think I paid less than a hundred bucks. I was headed to Australia and New Guinea and a few other places, and while I was buying my backpack the tent caught my eye. It was an impulse purchase.

Turned out I didn't schlep the tent across the Pacific. When my mother told my father I planned to bring a tent into the jungle he recommended I stick to hotels. That was probably good advice. In New Guinea they have spiders that hunt birds, and centipedes the size of your arm. I wouldn't have slept a wink. Plus there are Anopheles mosquitoes, and, I think in 1987, still a few Japanese soldiers who didn't know the war was over.

Anyway, fast-forward twenty years. I've still got the tent, only when we use it at a Cub Scout camping trip (not exactly Papua, New Guinea, but challenging in its own way) I realize the tent is no longer waterproof. It's not even water-resistant. It's water absorbent. Water beads through the tent fabric. My down sleeping bag becomes saturated, my clothes soaked. I begin to question the whole Cub Scouting movement.

Rather than chuck the tent I asked Google, "why do tents leak?"

Dougie Karlson in a dry tent, credit Doug Karlson

The "Old" tent sealed and ready to stay dry

Nikwax Tent and Gear Solarproof Spray

"With a little common sense and Yankee thrift we saved some money and made do with a perfectly good tent"

They need to be re-sealed, Google said. That prompted a trip to EMS in Hyannis where I purchased Nikwax Tent and Gear Solarproof Spray and also a bottle of seam sealer.

Setting aside all the build-up about New Guinea and the Cub Scouts, here's the information that's useful to you, the reader: it worked. I sealed the bottom of the tent, then erected it in the backyard, after which I sealed all the seams and sprayed the fly and lower sides of the tent.

How do I know it worked? Because the next morning the lawn sprinkler came on. It was like a lab at a testing facility. The tent was pummeled on all sides. That afternoon we inspected it. It had leaked, so we applied a second coat of Nikwax until the bottle was empty. (I'm guessing the tent probably weighs more than 7 pounds now.)

That night the heavens open up and the second test began. No way could it still be dry after all that, I thought, but when the rain stopped I inspected the tent. The sealer had worked. The tent was dry. With a little common sense and Yankee thrift we saved some money and made do with a perfectly good tent. Maybe it never made it to New Guinea, but this tent could still have a few good years in the White Mountains left. We're looking forward to using in the coming months. But I'm still hoping it doesn't rain.

Spring Skiing in Tuckerman's Ravine

By Gina Hurley
AMC SEM Comms
Vice Chair

commsvicechair@amcsem.org

One of my favorite spring activities is hiking up the Tuckerman's Ravine trail in April and May to watch the hundreds of skiers ski the huge bowl and gullies in the ravine.

This spring, on a beautiful, clear Saturday we made the hike up to the ravine. Starting at Pinkham Notch Visitor's Center the Tuckerman's Ravine trail climbs 3.1 miles to the ravine. As we parked the car at 9:00 am in the overflow parking lot we saw many skiers, snowboarders, and day hikers getting ready to head up the trail. If you have never hiked this trail, it is a wide trail with a moderate slope. During spring season, on any good weekend day, the first ¼ mile of the hike is a line of skiers, snowboarders, and hikers starting the trek up the mountain. Even as you get further up the mountain, the crowd starts to spread out, but it is still very busy. The trail itself is very picturesque. There are bridge crossings, views of Wildcat Ski Resort, and a wonderful viewpoint for Crystal Cascade.

At 2.4 miles is Hermit Lakes caretaker cabin and shelters. Although the cabin is not for public use, there is a large covered porch and open patio with picnic tables. The shelters are typical lean-to style, where skiers, snowboarders, and hikers can spend the night. This is where most people stop to regroup, talk to the rangers, and get an idea of the snow conditions. Conditions and avalanche information are posted, and during spring season additional AMC volunteers and rangers are present to answer questions and share information about the hazards of skiing and being in the ravine during spring conditions. These hazards include falling ice, crevasses, and waterfall holes. Many people have been injured or killed in the ravine, so anyone in the ravine, skier, snowboarder, or hiker, must be aware of the dangers.

We love to stop at Hermit Lakes cabin to take a break, talk to others, and see the activity as people check their equipment, and grab a quick snack before heading another half mile up the trail to the ravine, or deciding to climb one of the gullies near the cabin, such as Hillman's Highway. Although this gully is not as crowded, sitting at Hermit Lakes cabin you can watch some of the skiers climbing up and skiing down the gully. But if you really want to experience spring skiing in Tuckerman's Ravine make the extra half mile hike up the trail to the floor of the ravine. Not only are you awarded with spectacular views, you will experience a spring snow party like no other. There are hundreds of people in the ravine. Some are getting their skies or snowboards ready for the climb up one of the gullies, while others are playing frisbee or sledding on the slopes in the ravine. Many are enjoying the views. Spectators and day hikers come prepared to spend some time in the ravine. They bring pads to sit on, food to eat, and all kinds of beverages to drink. And don't forget your sunblock, and the binoculars. Watching skiers climb up the ravine, and ski down is amazing. When someone makes a good run, the crowd cheers, yells, and applauds the person for their efforts. Each year my husband and I talk about attempting to ski the ravine ourselves. In the end, the time we have being spectators is so much fun, we put it off another year! If you haven't been up Tuckerman's Ravine for spring skiing, put it on your calendar for next year. I guarantee you will not regret it!

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

HIKING

IMPORTANT: No pets w/o prior permission of trip leader. Individuals under 18 years of age must be accompanied by a parent or responsible adult, and obtain prior consent from L. Those accompanying a minor are responsible for minor's actions. Reg. req'd for most hikes, preferably at least 1 week prior to the trip so Ls can discuss prior hiking exp., conditioning, clothing, and equipment.

Always looking for additional hike leaders! Contact hikingchair@amcsem.org

Did you know that: The AMC is the nation’s oldest outdoor recreation and conservation organization, founded in 1876 by 34 outdoor enthusiasts. That New York was the 1st chapter, founded in 1912. That SEM chapter was created in 1976. That our SEM (SouthEastMass) chapter is 1 of 12 in the AMC club. That the club is managed by a Board of Directors (4 officers, 19 directors) and paid staff located in Boston at 5 Joy St. (which is why we call them “Joy Street”) . That the club is guided by “Vision 2020” which is based on 5 strategic initiatives. That AMC’s Board of Directors has the goal of building a community of 500,000 constituents and helping to get 500,000 kids outdoors. That the AMC has 16,000 volunteers, with our own SEM volunteer leaders making up part of that total.

SEM has 3000 members, Boston has 23,000 members and Mohawk-Hudson (NY) has 1,000 members. That NY and NH have 12,000 members. We’re neither the biggest nor the smallest; we are a nice size. And we have great summer programs going on (thanks to our tireless volunteer leaders).

July is hot, but the trails are shady, the waters are cool, and the roads are breezy. So, get outside!

I’LL BE OUTSIDE ON THE TRAILS THIS JULY!
WHERE WILL YOU BE?

Got something to say? Got a good idea? Want to volunteer?
Feel free to contact me anytime about anything! chair@amcsem.org

INTRODUCING THE AMC SEM 100-MILE HIKING CLUB

Log your miles; earn an awesome patch!

Based partly on the success of the SEM Biking Committee's "2,000-Mile Club" and the New England hiking community's popular "4,000 Footer Club," the SEM Hiking Committee has just initiated an "100-Mile Hiking Club" for SEM members who get out on the trails regularly with the club.

Membership is open to any SEM member who, starting on July 1, 2013, hikes at least 100 miles with the SEM and/or any other AMC chapter and remembers to log those miles along with the date hiked and location on our online spreadsheet linked to the SEM Hiking page on www.amcsem.org.

To get your name included on the online spreadsheet so you can record your miles hiked with the AMC after July 1st (using the honor system), just send an email to either hikingchair@amcsem.org or hikingvicechair@amcsem.org.

Hikers that complete the requisite 100 miles of hiking with AMC SEM will receive an awesome patch!

Welch-Dickey Hike May 14, 2013

Contributed by Len Ulbricht

This hike was one in the Tuesday morning conditioning series that Ken Jones and Luther Wallis run during April and May at the Blue Hills. This day was a special treat. The weather was absolutely perfect. A cold front passed through the previous day so we had sunshine, 50 degrees and a brisk northerly wind (note gloves and fleeces in photos) making the air crystal clear to take in distant views. And no black flies.

Welch-Dickey is a loop hike of 4.4 miles and 1800 feet elevation gain. Granite slabs cover most of the peaks so for modest effort one experiences obstruction free views of Waterville Valley and the Tripyramids to the southeast, Franconia Notch and associated peaks to the north, and even distant Monadnock to the southwest. The multi-hued greens of budding trees covering the valleys and the deep blue sky above made this an exceptional hiking experience. Try it.

Attention Backpackers

Wilderness First Aid Training

The fall SEM offering of WFA (Woofers as some call it) will be held November 9 & 10, 2013 at the Chapel Meeting House in Foxboro, MA. It is taught by a professional instructor from SOLO schools.

The WFA course runs 8-4 that Saturday and Sunday. CPR follows the Saturday session. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. CPR is optional for additional $35.

This course covers back woods first aid for those hikers who want to be prepared should a medical situation arise when they are in a remote area far from a quick 911 EMT response. Whether one is hiking up north or out west, camping or backpacking away from populated areas, biking distant routes, paddling the hinterlands or backcountry skiing, accidents do happen and adverse health conditions do arise. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify. WFA prepares you to treat and stabilize victims until professional help arrives, which could take many hours and perhaps overnight. If you venture into remote areas, whether or not you are an AMC trip leader, WFA will give you confidence you can handle that unexpected situation we all hope will never occur. To register or for further information, contact Barry Farnsworth, Education Vice Chairperson, at bfarns99@yahoo.com.

Take A Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

Hikers with dogs are common, but some parklands don't allow dogs on established trails. If you are thru-hiking the AT, for example, you are not supposed to bring your pet when you hike through Smoky Mountains National Park. It is wise to check beforehand and make proper arrangements.

Dogs on an extended hike with their master usually carry their own food and supplies. The dog in the picture on the left carries her own collapsible bowl, food, and a mat. The dog in the other picture, Danny, loves to run through brooks and streams, so he is equipped with a waterproof food bag.

On rocky terrain, claws and paws can get beat up pretty bad. To avoid this, on the rugged John Muir Trail, I saw dogs with "paw boots," little leather booties velcroed around their paws. You can buy them at hiking stores.

Dogs give warnings of other animals and possible problems. Most of all, they are great company for a lone hiker. Who else would listen to your sermonizing?

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Meeting House Pond to Little Pleasant Bay - June 1

By Betty Hinkley

Paddlers: George Wey, Paul Corriveau, Jean Orser, Vicki Blair-Smith, Joanne Snyder, Pat Carden

We set out on Meeting House Pond on an absolutely beautiful day.

We went down the River and across open water to Namequoit River fairly easily.

There were some wind gusts that persuaded us to keep close to the shoreline most of the time.

We went down the Namequoit River to Arrey's Pond.

While on the River, a swan came in for a landing close overhead; big wings flapping, it sounded like a small jet.

He landed in the middle of our group, and proceeded to look very angry; we gave him plenty of space (although it is a very narrow river).

We never saw a mate or babies, and he eventually drifted away, so not sure what his problem was.

We stopped at Namequoit Point for lunch, although that has signs posted saying that it is private; but we thought we might get away with it at this time of year.

In fact, it is OK to be there if you have your feet in the water, so we were prepared to jump up and stand in the water if necessary.

In the end, nobody cared about our being there. We ate lunch, followed by Jean's brownies, and felt blessed.

After lunch we rounded the point into Little Pleasant Bay and paddled along the shore to the conservation area and into Paw Wah Pond.

After that we turned around and made our way back to Meeting House Pond.

Aside from the swan, the only interesting bird we saw was an osprey diving for a fish.

We did see a few sailboats and several power boats, so summer is definitely upon us.

Thanks for coming; it was a great day to be on the water.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Bass River South - June 5

By Jean Orser

Paddlers: Jean Orser, Leader, Paul Corriveau, Co-leader; George Wey, Vickie Blair-Smith, Gary Robinson, Margot Fitsch, Pat Carden, Bill Fischer

At the Cove Road put-in everyone marveled at the calmness of the water. As we were anxious to start before the wind came up, we decided to paddle around Grand Cove first so we would see any late comers when we passed the put-in on the way out. Along the way we saw a large nest on a raft with a sea gull and at least one baby gull. Seeing no late comers we paddled south on Bass River into Horse Foot Cove, past the Bass River Marina and under the route 28 bridge to Winkle Point where we gazed at all the large yachts moored in the fingers. Just past the West Dennis Yacht Club five of us ventured under the Loring Ave Bridge to Weir Creek where the water level was much higher than usual and so we ventured under the Lighthouse Road Bridge which goes into Uncle Stephen's Pond. It did look like we could go further up Weir Creek but we opted to return as no one knew how quickly the tide would go out plus it was after 12 (the usual lunch time). Along the way we saw an osprey in its nest and a beautiful snowy egret.

We landed on West Dennis Beach for lunch; there were very few cars in the lot probably because of the nesting plover restriction. One plover escaped from the designated area and strolled not too far from us. We headed out to Nantucket Sound looking at dredging equipment along the way. We reversed direction paddling on the opposite shore passing Grand Island, the Yarmouth Windmill, under route 28 bridge, past Bass River Yacht Club and into Grand Cove to the put-in. Bill's GPS showed we paddled 9.34 miles.

An exceptional day to be on the water.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Lewis Bay - June 19

By Ed Foster

Paddlers: Ed Foster - leader, Paul Corriveau, Bill Fischer, Lynne O'Riorden, Jean Orser

We launched from Mayo Beach in Wellfleet into a 12-14 mph wind from the southwest but quickly went around the harbor and pier into Duck Creek where the water was very calm. We paddled upstream past the marina, through the pilings of the bridge for the former Boston to Provincetown railroad and then under Uncle Tim's Bridge. Since it was then high tide we were able to paddle all the way upstream through the channels in the marsh to Route 6.

Returning to the harbor we paddled around Chipman's Cove and stopped at noon for lunch on a sandy beach on Indian Neck across from Mayo Beach. After lunch, the wind in Wellfleet Bay had not abated so some chose to go directly across the harbor to return home whereas the remainder paddled along the north shoreline of the Bay toward Great Island. We paddled against the wind but that made the return trip to Mayo Beach and the launch site with the wind at our back an easy paddle.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Swan Pond, Dennis MA - June 15

By Betty Hinkley

Paddlers: Vicki Blair-Smith, George Wey, Al Phillips, Rona Robinson, Margot Fitsch, Louise Foster, Ed Foster, Betty Hinkley (Leader)

This was a really beautiful day. We launched at 10:30 and went counter-clockwise around Swan Pond (no swans) and then under the newly constructed Upper County Road bridge - completely different from the old bridge, easy to pass under even at high tide. Lots of construction at the Route 28 bridge, but still OK to pass under, except for fishing lines. We saw several white egrets, geese, and a couple of osprey, and a few kayakers. No paddle boats yet, but signs of life at that location. We got to the end of the river and heeded the warning that Margot had given us from her trip - the channel into the Sound has been seriously narrowed, and the outgoing tide doesn't seem to have anywhere to go. If you got close to the breakwater, you were swept along, but then there was no water to go out to the Sound. Really need to do some dredging there. For the few who ventured out there, it was definitely a challenge to get back against the outgoing tide; physics is a wonderful thing, however, and in the end we all returned to the river.

We ate on the enlarged beach, next to the Plover homes. A brave seagull wandered apparently too close for comfort to the Plover territory (although not much closer than Ed and Margot) and the adult Plovers systematically nose dived the gull, who ducked at every attack. It was really funny to watch, and finally the gull decided he'd had enough and took off, and the Plovers followed him all the way to the opposite beach and continued to dive at him a few more times. We were happy that the gull took the heat for us. We returned up the river after lunch. A really nice leisurely trip.

Thanks for coming.

The Day was very warm for June but the slight wind from the south west made for a lovely paddle. Once on the Childs River the pleasant conditions were very evident to all of us. We paddled down the Childs River to the SeaPit River and out into Waquoit Bay. We kept Washburn Island on our right all the way to Tim's Pond. The tide was just deep enough to make the entry into the Pond and across to the portage path back to the Childs River. After a portage of about 50 yards we were back on the water. We had lunch at the beach at the end of the Childs River.

After lunch we paddled back up the River past the put-in and under Route 28 as far as we could go. Then it was back to the put-in for a total of 6.5 to 7 miles depending on the path taken. The route will be forwarded on a different e-mail as it's provided by Ed Foster. Turned out to be a very nice paddle on a hot day.

Shoestring and Popponesset Bays - Short and Sweet or Fully Loaded

By Louise Riemenschneider Foster

Shoestring and Popponesset Bays offer a wealth of choices. Starting at exactly the same put in, one trip can be very different from the next, depending on the tides, preference and the stamina of the paddler. Time of year is another big variable. A good starting point is the Town Way to Water on Santuit Road in Cotuit. There are other ports of entry, such as Pirate's Cove or The Town Landing on Ockway Bay, both in Mashpee, but those require a resident parking sticker in season. Once on the water, the obvious route is south on Shoestring Bay toward Popponesset Bay and Nantucket Sound. Depending on the wind, hugging one of the shores may be a smart move. The two bays mark the border between the Towns of Barnstable and Mashpee and about a quarter of a mile from the put in is "The Narrows," which is the transition between Shoestring and Popponesset. Exactly where that boundary lies has been disputed by property owners in that immediate area. On the Mashpee side, is Half Tide Marina and its crowded mooring fields. Pirate's Cove follows, and soon thereafter, the first decision point, the entrance to the Mashpee River.

This is practically a "no brainer" because the Mashpee River offers such an interesting spectrum of flora as it changes from a salt water ecosystem, through brackish water and finally to the fresh water source. The progression of plants reflects these changes and is impressive. In the spring there is new growth springing from the river's bottom, especially near the source, and in the fall, many spectacular wildflowers adorn the shore in full bloom. On occasion, some paddlers have made it almost to route 28, but this not easy and the final stages are often blocked with debris. There is always a rich assortment of birds - great blues, swans, osprey and many kingfishers. Oh, and let's not forget the ever present Canada Geese! There are two pair of osprey which nest on poles easily seen from Quinaquisset Avenue in Mashpee, nearby on the edge of the Mashpee River Woodlands, and are undoubtedly among those fishing the river. Up toward the entrance is evidence of oyster farming, which is a project employing filter feeders au naturale to remove unwanted nitrogen containing compounds from the watershed. As these slurping oysters gorge themselves and grow to a useful size, they are unceremoniously dumped on the shore for lucky resident holders of shellfish permits to collect and serve up for dinner. I have not seen data, but I can only hope this is working.

Paddling the Upper Reaches of the Mashpee River in the Fall

After the Mashpee River, continuing toward the sound and passing Gooseberry Island on port, another option, Ockway Bay, is soon revealed. One of the alternative put ins is at the head of this bay and the one I believe Nancy Wigley will use for her upcoming September Mashpee River trip. The shoreline is quite developed with homes, and piers, but still offers great encounters with birds, including a long established osprey nest, which becomes larger and larger with each subsequent season. Bring your camera!

Continuing south another opportunity comes up. There is an interesting detour along Popponeset Creek. After going under the small bridge to upscale Popponeset Island, there is a relatively narrow manmade canal, quite densely lined on both sides with very large, high profile residences, This passage was dredged in the 1950's under the direction of a state official who eventually landed in jail for questionable practices in awarding contracts. The creek spits out next to a barrier beach known as Thatch Island aka Popponeset Spit, a favorite weekend "tailgating" destination for power boaters . Depending on the day of the week this is a fine place for lunch - or continuing along this barrier beach and across the opening to the sound, leads to Meadow Point. This is protected by The Barnstable Land Trust and is a perfect spot to just watch the world go by, as marine traffic comes and goes through the cut. After lunch, if the seas are calm and currents are at a minimum, it may be possible to take a little spin out into the sound.

Another option for lunch would be the beach at Crocker's Neck Conservation Area due east of Gooseberry Island. After lunch at whatever site chosen, there are always the options of heading back to the put in or exploring a marsh area accessed through Pinquickset Cove, which is just adjacent to Crocker's Neck. Much of this excursion boards the pristine Town of Barnstable Conservation Area and in the spring, when marsh growth is just getting started, the vista is quite open. At high tide, travel up and around several little estuaries far into the marsh and almost to the Crocker's Neck shore is fairly easy and again, many birds can be seen.

Now it is definitely back to the put in. In the fall sizeable fish are jumping and sometimes thump into the hulls of the boats. When the put in is finally within sight, if the tide is fairly high and paddlers are up for even more, they can proceed to the north end of Shoestring Bay, paddle under the School Street Bridge and explore the Santuit River. Most of this area is very undeveloped and there is usually lots of wildlife here. It is here in the spring that herring make their way from Popponeset Bay to the upper reaches of the river to spawn. Unfortunately many become snacks for hungry gulls and osprey (they have to eat too!), but the good news is that the herring counts here in the last couple of years are way up. Spring is a good time for this area because the views are not obstructed by tall growth, but in the fall, there are plenty of wild flowers to admire. This is a great side trip, but very serious caution is advised, since the water can run out quickly and it is easy to be stuck aground if the tides are marginal when you begin this part of the trip. On the other side of the coin, if the tide is too high, the underside of the bridge will be impassible going both in and out, so good planning is imperative. One possibility is to make this side trip at the very beginning of the day to take advantage of a perfect tide. Unfortunately, I can't tell you what "perfect" is.

This trip may be short and sweet or extremely long, especially if all the options are taken. On September 21, Nancy Wigley will be running a trip to the Mashpee River, specifically to showcase the lovely autumn wild flowers there. I will be leading a trip there in August and you can take it to the bank I won't be exercising all my options!

A tribute to Pam Carter

“Pam took a walk along a stream, and touched the bark on the trees to feel the texture. And she felt the pine needles. As always, she was close to nature. After awhile she got tired and sat on a rock, and realized she had gone too far and would never get back home. The Lord spoke to her and said what a great life she had, and she told the Lord she’d never get home. The Lord told he that his house was closer, and took her hand... “

Recent Blue Hills “Intro” Hike Earns Rave Reviews

By Paul Miller, SEM Vice Hiking Chair

Most regular readers of the Southeast Breeze newsletter are well aware that we’re big on “series” hikes in the SEM Hiking Committee. Our Red Line the Blue Hills, Thursday Morning, Full Moon, and Winter hiking series have all become very popular; with 20 or more participants often showing up for hikes, in addition to the hike leaders.

Not quite two years ago, we also launched our “Intro to AMC Hiking” series of local hikes in an attempt to get more SEM members out on the trails to enjoy the fun, camaraderie, and great exercise of our chapter hikes. For reasons that largely evade your Hiking Committee, participation in this series still has not achieved what we consider to be “critical mass.” While several of the local intro hikes have attracted as many as ten or so participants, others have attracted only a handful. But based on the success of several recent intro hikes, this appears to be changing for the better.

In one example, Jim Casey and I planned and led an Intro Series hike in Blue Hills on June 15 that drew five other participants (with a sixth person cancelling at the last minute with apologies due to illness...). Three participants had never hiked with the AMC before. Another participant’s last AMC hike (an intro-level backpacking trip with another chapter) had been less than enjoyable due largely to horrendous weather and possibly in part to an overly-ambitious agenda.

While there’s certainly no shortage of great hiking to be had in the Blue Hills, Jim and I took quite a bit of time studying the DCR Blue Hills Reservation topo map to put together a loop hike that would include interesting and varied terrain and some nice views to entice participants to come back for more; but would not be so challenging that participants would feel like they’re in “over their heads.”

We ultimately decided on a modest, approximately 3.5-mile loop hike that started at the Chickatawbut Overlook, followed the Cedar Rock Path to the Headquarters Path, and then continued on to the Indian Trail Path, which eventually led around to the Skyline Trail. From here, we jogged east for a short stretch to climb and enjoy the views from Rattlesnake Hill before doubling back on the Skyline to Wompatuck Hill, where we stopped for a quick bite to eat before continuing around on the Skyline. After several more short “ups and downs,” this eventually led us to the Chickatawbut Tower loop that brought us back to our starting point.

It was a real pleasure for both Jim and I to have the opportunity share our enjoyment of and enthusiasm for hiking with this wonderful, if small group of largely novice hikers. Based on their feedback during the hike, it was clear that everyone had a very positive experience, so we asked all to send us some comments that we could include in this write up.

Here's what one woman hiker wrote: "Thank you, Paul! Our Skyline Trail hike in the Blue Hills has renewed my faith in AMC-run trips! After a particularly traumatizing beginner experience the previous weekend, I got up on the horse again by trying out 'just one more AMC hike.' I can't thank you enough for the great experience, beginner pace, help along the way, and the great views atop Rattlesnake Hill! I feel better about signing up for more trips and treks with the AMC – and only have great things to say about the SEM Chapter! Thank you, thank you!"

Another woman wrote: "Hi Paul! It was great meeting you and Jim on Saturday. It was our first hike with the AMC and we loved it. The weather was beautiful. Our hiking companions were friendly and eager to hike. We only live about 15 minutes from where we hiked and I can't believe we have not hiked it before. To kick off the day seeing the deer and then later on seeing the hummingbird on top of Rattlesnake Hill were the highlights for me. We also enjoyed some of the interesting hiking facts that you and Jim shared with us and your stories of past hikes that you have done with AMC. Looking forward to the next hike! Thanks so much for sharing the day with us!"

Doesn't sound like it was too painful an experience, does it? So, if you're one of the many SEM chapter members who have been sitting around thinking about coming out and joining us for a hike, but needed just a little more motivation to actually do so, what are you waiting for?

To check out some of the upcoming chapter hikes, just click >>. And keep in mind that if you're ever not sure whether a particular hike (or any other chapter activity) is appropriate for you, just contact the leader to discuss. He or she will always be glad to point you in the right direction!

Blue Hills garter snake with death grip on toad

June 4, 2013

On a recent morning in the Blue Hills, we happened across this sight right next to the trail, a garter snake just getting started on his breakfast! The poor toad was still very much alive -- we could see his throat pouch pulsating, and occasionally his front legs trying to get some traction -- not that it would get him anywhere!

We felt sorry for the toad, of course, but also admired the snake's successful hunt! We hung around for a while to see how the big fat toad was going to get inside the skinny snake, but after 10 minutes or so of not much progress, we continued on our way!

What Is On Your Summer Reading List?

By Gina Hurley

As we enjoy the long days of summer, I hope you are getting some good reading in. There are so many wonderful books out there, and many in the Outdoor Adventure category. Whether you are looking for true adventure stories, informational guides, nature stories, or anything in between, there is a plethora to choose from. Here are some from my collection that you might want to pick up.

Long Distance Hiking: If you are considering a long distance hike, there are many guides available to help you plan your trip.

You might want to start with the Thru Hiker's Guide to America by E. Schlimmer.

Schlimmer reviews and describes 25 trails, ranging from 95 to 1,300 miles long. Once you settle on a trail, there is usually a guide book to help you with planning your trip. One such guide is the Long Trail Guide (Green Mountain Club), which provides a wealth of information about this trail. Not only does this guide provide the reader with maps, trail profile, and trail description, it also provides information regarding wildlife, water, camping sites, permits, and safety. Want to head to Mount Rainer and hike the Wonderland Trail? Pick up a copy of Bette Filley's Discovering the Wonders of the Wonderland Trail: Encircling Mount Rainer. Filley provides detailed information about the mountain, the trail, and all the rules and procedures of hiking this trail.

Of course, some of you might be thinking of hiking the Appalachian Trail.

If so, there are many books to read about the AT. One personal account is Robert Alden Rubin's On the Beaten Path: An Appalachian Pilgrimage. In it Rubin recounts his journey, highlighting the people and the landscapes along the way. Walking the Appalachian Trail, by Larry Luxenberg, offers insight into why so many people chose to hike the AT. Luxenberg profiles many AT hikers in his book, providing a flavor of the different people and experiences along the way.

True Adventure Stories: Looking for an exciting true story to keep your blood pumping?

One of the best true survival stories is Touching the Void by Joe Simpson. Simpson and his climbing partner, Simon Yates, were climbing a 21,000 foot peak in the Andes when an accident changed their lives forever. Recounting the days on the mountain is an epic tale that will keep you on the edge of your seat the whole time. Want to read a tale of survival at sea? Fatal Forecast, by Michael J. Tougias, describes the 1980 fishing trip of two vessels headed to George's Bank. When the weather turns up sixty-foot waves and hurricane-force winds, fishing turns to survival. Although stories of survival are always amazing, The Grizzly Maze, by Nick Jans, is not a story of survival, but a story of a fatal obsession with grizzly bears. The book takes you through the life and death of Timothy Treadwell and his many, and final, interactions with these aggressive animals.

Alaska: The 49th state has had many books written about it, especially books about travel and the Alaskan outdoors.

Alaska On Foot, by Erik Molvar, is a resource guide for hikers headed into the backcountry. Molvar covers route selection, mapping and navigation, wildlife, and other components of planning an Alaskan trip. One Man's Wilderness, by Sam Keith and Richard Proenneke, recounts Proenneke's journey to Alaska and settlement in the wilderness. His simple account of his daily activities, exploration, and encounters with nature, coupled with great photography, make this book a must read.

Of course a book collection about Alaska is not complete without a book on the Iditarod.

Gary Paulsen's Winterdance is his story of running this famous 1,180 mile dog sled race. Although all of these books about Alaska are great, one of the best is Arctic Homestead by Norma Cobb and Charles Sasser. In 1973, Norma Cobb, her husband Lester, and their five children, headed north to Alaska to follow their dream of claiming land under the Homestead Act. They settled near the Arctic Circle, where they encountered fierce winters, grizzly bears, and many other obstacles that would have turned most families away. Their story is one of true amazement.

Summer is a time to relax and enjoy the great outdoors. While you are doing so bring along one of these great reads. You will be glad you did!

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board.

Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

HIKING

By Jean Orser, Leader

Paddlers: Jean Orser, Leader, Paul Corriveau, Co-Leader, Vickie Blair-Smith, Bill Fischer, David Metcalf, Bob Zani

A perfect day to paddle Follins/Mill Ponds as wind was 12-16mph with some gusts, but we stayed close to shore and the wind felt great. We left put-in and paddled counterclockwise around Follins Pond to Weir Creek and easily passed under the North Dennis road bridge (Boston hi tide 8:29 am 8.8 ft) into Mill Pond. We passed several crabbers and Crab Creek Conservation area. We circumnavigated the pond noting that there no longer was a putting green behind one house. There was a stiff incoming current at the bridge, but everyone made it thru quite easily. We continued paddling Follins Pond stopping to look at a spring historians say was used by Leif Eriksson around 1000 A.D. and boulders with holes typical of Norse mooring holes. Lunch on beach at 12:15 pm. Then on to Dinahs Pond and Kelleys Bay and back to the put-in at 2 pm for a total of 7.5 miles according to Bob and Bill. Along the way we saw 2 osprey nests with birds, a cormorant eating a snake, swans, geese and a egret. There was very little boat traffic which was great. A nice relaxing day to be on the water.

Wilderness

First Aid Training

The fall SEM offering of WFA (Woofers as some call it) will be held November 9 & 10, 2013 at the Chapel Meeting House in Foxboro, MA. It is taught by a professional instructor from SOLO schools.

The WFA course runs 8-4 that Saturday and Sunday. CPR follows the Saturday session. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. CPR is optional for additional $35.

This course covers back woods first aid for those hikers who want to be prepared should a medical situation arise when they are in a remote area far from a quick 911 EMT response. Whether one is hiking up north or out west, camping or backpacking away from populated areas, biking distant routes, paddling the hinterlands or backcountry skiing, accidents do happen and adverse health conditions do arise. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify. WFA prepares you to treat and stabilize victims until professional help arrives, which could take many hours and perhaps overnight. If you venture into remote areas, whether or not you are an AMC trip leader, WFA will give you confidence you can handle that unexpected situation we all hope will never occur.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Oyster Pond to Mill Pond

July 10, 2013

By Bob Zani

Paddlers: Bob Zani Leader; George Wey, Tom Jones, Cheryl Doran, Fred Anderson, Bill Hor-rigan, Jean Orser, Paul Corriveau, Betty Hinkley, Vicky Blair-Smith Sweep

Nice paddle with nice weather cooperating. We had a good workout from Mill Pond back to Stage Harbor with a strong headwind, an adverse tide, and a fair chop. Total of 9.6 miles.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Lewis Bay

July 17, 2013

By Ed Foster

Paddlers: Ed Foster - leader; Paul Corriveau, Jean Orser, George Wey, Hugh Blaire-Smith

I was the last to arrive at the put-in and there was only one parking spot left. Max was at the put-in planning to paddle directly to Egg Island and a Power Squadron cookout. We set off in a clockwise direction and explored the small cove at the southeast end of Lewis Bay. Two paddlers opted to carry over the sand spit connecting Pine Island to the mainland into Pine Island Creek, an attractive little cove, while the others paddled around. After emerging from the cove we headed into Uncle Roberts Cove past several fields of oysters bags. Two paddlers went under the Great Island Road bridge and pretty far up the salt marsh before running out of water. After leaving Uncle Roberts Cove it was a quick paddle to Egg Island to meet up with Max and his Power Squadron buddies for lunch and Jean's brownies. After lunch Max persuaded us to enter a Bocce competition, AMC vs. Power Squadron; we got creamed but discovered that George had a real knack for the game. Paul wanted to play another match so we had a short men vs. women game; the men won. It was getting a bit late so we decided to paddle directly back to the put-in, logging 6 very easy and pleasant miles under light southeast winds.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Egg island

July 17, 2013

By Max Sarazin

Paddlers: Max Sarazin (solo)

Today's Egg Island Rendezvous was as good as any with a light breeze . Paddling solo, Max went thru fleets of Optimist prams, Lasers, and Cape Cod Knockabouts . We arrived to see Lee Johnson with his USPS flag on a 9 foot pole with 3 guys on the highest point which had just come out of the water at 1055 with low tide scheduled for 1303 . USPS members arrived by kayak, sail & power . Max unloaded grille and got charcoal going to cook his rack of ribs then there was room for everything else after a short grillin . People asked about the ribs and they are Plumrose from Stop & Shop, the only good ones . Max went to move his canoe as the tide was dropping further and noticed the anchor line was gone, and just before asking for help to find his anchor he noticed he was at the wrong end of the canoe! Don't tell anyone.

Soon after, the AMC arrived with Ed Foster, Bill Wey, and Jean Orsor & Paul Carriveau . They joined in and saw what a wonderful organization the U.S. Power Squadron is, people that is - we like to party! AMCers can still take the basic boating course and join in on our upcoming Bass River Rendezvous . Anyway we got down to business with a bocce game of USPS vs AMC with Max & Joan Croft referees, course USPS won as they get more practice . AMC and the Wampys both played bocce, but one day the trip leader wasn't too happy when Max broke out the bocce balls and that ended it except when we scheduled a PaddleQue to Bees River in Eastham . The men beat the ladies in the second round . New rules in effect as of last year consisting of a woman's tee a little closer when a male member tosses out the jack ball too far, but of course women lie and cheat and men only lie when they cheat.

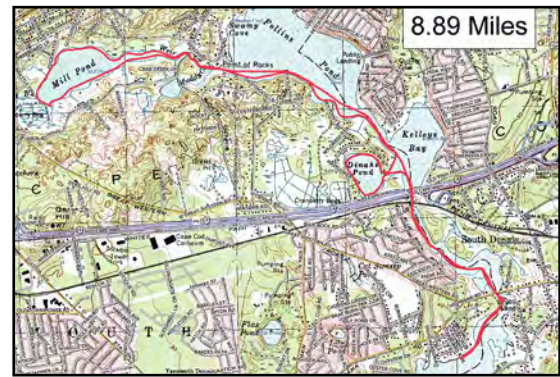

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Bass River

July 20, 2013

By Bob Zani

Paddlers: Bob Zani Leader, Jeff Hyman, Paul Corriveau, Jean Orser, Kerry Griffin

Windy trip to start as we headed south. After a half mile or so we could see Grand Cove where we were to meet up with Margot and her group. Could not see them so assumed they had cancelled. We were fighting a fifteen plus knot headwind and a pretty good chop which was enhanced with the high speed boat traffic so we wimped out and turned to the north. The rest of the paddle was in mostly flat water with a few small swells at times when exposed to the wind. A total of 8.89 miles with a nice group of paddlers.

On arriving home and checking email, found out that Margot and her group had waited for us on the west side of the river. We couldn't see them so we never met but both groups had a nice paddle on a windy day.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Barnstable Harbor,

July 24, 2013

By Ed Foster

Paddlers: Ed Foster - Leader, Paul Corriveau, Bill Fischer, Jean Orser, George Wey, Bob Zani

We followed the current up Clay's Creek a bit fearful that there might not yet be enough water to get through. That turned out not to be a problem, we easily made it to the junction of Bass Creek. Paddling out of Bass Creek had us going against the incoming tide and we had to work pretty hard at places.

Once into Barnstable Harbor we found the calmest conditions we had encountered there in quite a few years. It was an easy paddle to the tip of Chapin beach where we had an early lunch. However getting in and out of our boats was made a bit tricky by the strong cross shore current set up by the still incoming tide. After lunch we decided to take advantage of the incoming tide by going up Chase Garden Creek. One paddler decided to skip that so now there were only five of us. At Bray's farm two paddlers got out of their boats to stretch their legs and check out the chickens, goats, and cattle. Once back in the boats we decided that this was a good place to turn around so we headed out against a now reduced incoming tide. After a little over a mile of following the twists and turns of the creek the tide had finally come in enough to mostly flood the marsh so we could head straight over the marsh to the put-in. We made a slight detour to get a closer look at a small seal and then continued in a straight line to the put-in and the end of an 8.5 mile paddle.

DIY - Do It Yourself - Homemade Natural Bug Spray

By Andrea Holden
Communications Chair

Recipes provided by Wellness Mama

Fresh or Dried Herbs Bug Spray

Ingredients:

- Distilled water
- Witch hazel or rubbing alcohol

- Dried herbs: peppermint, spearmint, citronella, lemongrass, catnip, lavender, cinnamon, cedarwood, eucalyptus etc.

How to Make Bug Spray From Fresh or Dried Herbs:

Boil 1 cup of water and add 3-4 TBSP of dried herbs total in any combination from the above. Use approx. 1 TBSP each of peppermint, spearmint, catnip and lavender, and also throw in a couple of dried cloves. Mix well, cover and let cool (covering is important to keep the volatile oils in!) Strain herbs out (use paper coffee filter, cheesecloth, or metal strainer) and mix water with 1 cup of witch hazel or rubbing alcohol. Store in a spray bottle in a cool place (fridge is great) Use as needed.

Vinegar of the Four Thieves Insect Repellent

Fair warning: this stuff stinks when wet, though the smell disappears as it dries. It works incredibly well, is very strong and has antiviral and antibacterial properties. It is based on a recipe that was used by thieves during the Black Plague to keep from getting sick. They used it internally and externally to avoid catching the disease and to keep the flies and other pests away. According to legend, it worked and they survived...

Ingredients:

- 1 - 32 ounce bottle of Apple Cider Vinegar
- 2 - TBSP each of dried Sage, Rosemary, Lavender, Thyme and Mint
- 1 - quart size or larger glass or plastic jar with airtight lid (reuse pickle, coffee or couscous canister, or peanut butter jars etc)

How to Make the Vinegar of the Four Thieves Insect Repellent:

Put the vinegar and dried herbs into large glass jar. Seal tightly and store on counter or place you will see it daily. Shake well each day for 2-3 weeks. After 2-3 weeks, strain the herbs out and store in spray bottles or tincture bottles (reuse spray bottles you already have), preferably in fridge. To use on skin, dilute to half with water in a spray bottle and use as needed.

Female Hikers, Unite

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers.

This column is for all hikers, backpackers, and campers. Most of my blog subscribers are male and most comments I've received have been from men. Judging by the increased numbers of females on trails, I would have expected more readership and feedback from women. Every year I see more of the fair sex out on trails, and that's a positive development for the AMC hiking community.

Now and then, I see something referring to women hikers. Recently, it was Trail Dames at www.traildames.com. I don't know much about this group or how active they are, but their site looks interesting. They have eleven chapters, all in the east except for a chapter in Michigan. I suspect this is because of the increasing popularity of women, young and old, hiking the Appalachian Trail. Trail Dames held their own conference this past June in Virginia.

Another blogger mentioned the Women's Adventure Club of Centre County PA, which ran an Appalachian Hiking Series For Women this past summer. When I thru-hiked the A.T. some years ago, I remember how grateful I was to a young lady who had---all day---hailed my sack of soaked and dirty laundry I'd left at the shelter.

A couple of years ago, Jennifer Pharr Davis captured the speed record for hiking the Appalachian Trail. She trimmed 26 hours off the previous record set by a man! Click above and you'll see the stunning article from Men's Journal. That she hiked the entire length of the A.T. in 46 days, 11 hours, and 26 minutes is incomprehensible to me. She was chosen as one of National Geographic's Adventurers of the Year.

The picture below is from a hike with friends to AMC's Mizpah Springs Hut. Most of the women I see on hikes are fit and tough. Welcome.

Have You Wanted To Try Backpacking?

By Gina Hurley
Communications Vice Chair

Are you a day hiker who has thought about backpacking? When you hike do you wonder about the people you see carrying big packs with sleeping pads latched to them, or a pair of Crocs hanging off the back? If so, then you may be ready to take the next step, and venture into the world of backpacking. I began hiking over 20 years ago. I remember when I first became aware of backpackers, and was so intrigued by the idea of spending a night or two, or more, out in the woods, with everything you needed strapped to your back. What a concept! At first I thought those people were crazy, but the more I hiked, and had encounters with them, the more curious I became. Given that I hike with my husband, he, too, started to get the backpacking bug, and before you knew it we were thinking we should try it. But where does one start? How do you know what you need? We learned a lot by watching others, and talking to backpackers we came across on our day hikes. We also used the AMC resources, such as the Outdoors magazine, guide books and maps, and classes. Another great resource is Backpacker magazine. All of these helped us prepare for our first backpacking trip.

I remember that trip 20 years ago. We spent months buying all of the basic equipment....pack, sleeping bags, stove, and tent. We went to Kinsman Pond Campsite in New Hampshire. There is a shelter (three sided lean-to) and four tent platforms. It is run by the AMC. There is a caretaker there in the summer, and a fee is collected. There are several established AMC sites in New Hampshire with a shelter, tent platforms, water, and a caretaker. These established sites are great spots for first time backpackers. Given that there is a caretaker, you have someone to talk to and ask questions in case you run into any difficulties. Plus, caretakers are a great source for information regarding hiking in the area, and knowledgeable about backpacking, and the outdoors in general. On that first trip I brought cotton sweatpants and Tupperware! Obviously I was a novice and had a lot to learn. But I remember walking out of the woods back to our car after two nights out thinking “We made it, we are backpackers!” In the twenty years we have been backpacking we have had some amazing trips, from overnights in New Hampshire to long-distance trips such as the John Muir Trail, the Tahoe Rim Trail, and the Long Trail. All of them have been amazing and very special. Being in the backcountry provides solitude and serenity. Something we all need.

So where to begin?

First: the equipment. You do not need to buy all of the equipment before venturing out. Today there are stores, such as EMS, where you can rent the basic equipment. The nice thing about this is that you do not have to put out a lot of money to try backpacking. Also, you can rent different types of products to see which one works best for you. Maybe the two person tent you tried last time was too small, and you would really like a three person tent, but are wondering if it will be too heavy. Renting can be a great option when first venturing out. Regarding food and a stove, for your first trip or two you can bring some simple food that does not require cooking. Examples are granola bars, GORP, jerky, tuna in a pouch, or peanut butter and bagels. These are just a few options to get you started. Once you have mastered some of the basics you can venture into carrying a stove, and cooking up some great backpacking meals.

Second: where to go on your first overnight? Considering that going out for one’s first backpacking trip may be a little anxiety provoking and can be a bit risky (what if I forget something, what if I hate it), selecting a spot that is within a few miles from the trailhead is a smart choice. New Hampshire has many options that fit this criterion, making these spots ideal for first time backpackers.

1. AMC Kinsman Pond Campsite: As I stated above there is a shelter and four tent platforms at this campsite. It is reached in 4.5 miles by the Cascade Brook Trail and the Kinsman Pond Trail, off of Route 93.

2. AMC Nauman Tentsite: Seven tent platforms, no shelter. One of the best parts of staying at Nauman Tentsite is its proximity to the AMC Mizpah Spring Hut. It is literally steps away. You can get that hut feeling, without staying there. From 302 near the AMC Highland Center take Mt. Clinton Road to the Crawford path parking area. Take Crawford Path 1.9 miles to the Mizpah Cutoff for another 0.7 mile. This is a very popular area in the summer. If you start early you can set up your tent and then take the Webster Cliff Trail for 0.9 mile to the summit of Mount Pierce for great views of the Presidentials. You can loop back down via the Crawford Path and Mizpah Cutoff.

3. Sawyer Pond Campsite (no caretaker): This shelter and 5 tent platforms can be reached via the Sawyer Pond Trail, which runs from the Kancamagus highway to Sawyer River Road. This is a beautiful spot, right on the pond. The fall foliage is spectacular. It is a quick and easy 1.5 mile hike in from Sawyer River Road or a longer 4.5 mile hike in from the Kancamagus. If you are bringing children on their first backpacking trip, the route from Sawyer River Road is a great option. Just be aware that given the easy access and short distance to the trailhead it is often busy.

4. Osgood Campsite (no caretaker): No shelter here, just tent platforms. This is an easy to reach area, hiking 1.8 miles on the Great Gulf Trail off of Route 16, then 0.8 miles on the Osgood Trail. Although there are no great views from here, you can set up camp, and continue up the Osgood Trail to the AMC Madison Spring Hut, and Mount Madison. It is a strenuous hike from this point on so be prepared.

There are many other areas to consider for novice backpackers, these are just a few. I recommend AMC’s Backcountry Camps and Shelters for more information on these and other areas. Backpacking is a great way to enjoy the wilderness. Be safe, and get out there!

Cold River Camp

A place surrounded by mountains and by time.

Here, you can enjoy the astonishing pleasure of walking out the door of your own cabin in New Hampshire, crossing a river on a small bridge spanning the lovely Cold River, and beginning your day in the White Mountain National Forest. Here is a peaceful oasis ... surely a place to concentrate on the important things in life.

You need only to decide where to journey each day, from Little Deer and Big Deer just across the bridge, to the great North Baldface just across the road! Magnificent hikes abound in every direction. Want larger challenges? With an early start, you can reach the Presidentials. Easy canoeing? The Saco and the Androscoggin Rivers are both close by.

Each adventure begins and ends with the good food, comfort, and companionship of the Cold River Camp. Perhaps that is why so many people return to this peaceful place year after year.

Join us this summer! Come, be part of the Cold River Camp community!

We look forward to seeing you.

Welch-Dickey Pleases in All Seasons

Paul Miller, SEM Vice Hiking Chair

Prior to this trip, I'd already hiked the popular Welch-Dickey loop near Waterville Valley in NH at least three or four times - but always in winter. These were all memorable trips to be sure; the great views, fun scrambles, numerous exposed ledges, and (since these were all SEM trips) excellent company and scintillating conversation made the 2.5-hour drive each way well worth the effort.

At just about 4.5 miles long and only 1,650 of elevation gain, this is not a terribly challenging hike by NH standards. However, on my previous trips, the typically icy winter conditions made full crampons mandatory to prevent participants from slipping off the exposed, frequently steeply angled ledges into apparent oblivion. But what would it be like in summer, particularly if the ledges should be wet and slippery? After deciding to give Welch-Dickey a try in summer, I succeeded in roping Jim Casey into leading the trip with me (I believe his exact words were, "You do all the work, and I'll be glad to come along...") and we subsequently discussed this at some length. Since full crampons or even microspikes don't work very well in summer, we decided that if the trails were wet, the best approach would be to use extreme caution when negotiating the steeper ledges. What a strategy!

Luckily, despite numerous days of very hot and/or very wet weather in the weeks leading up to the hike (and, on the day of the hike itself, it was drizzling steadily when we left Massachusetts at 6:00 am for the drive up...), when we arrived at the trailhead off Orris Road in Campton, NH, a little before 9:00 am, the skies were mostly sunny and neither the temperature or humidity were excessive.

For reasons that still elude me, by the day of the hike, we were down to eight registered hikers. This, despite the fact that we had "wait listed" the previously oversubscribed hike several weeks before the scheduled date. When another couple cancelled the morning of the hike due to sudden illness, we ended up hitting the trail with just six hikers, including Jim and I. This turned out to be a good number, since it gave everyone a chance to interact and get to know each other.

While Jim and I had been a little concerned about stream crossings, the one crossing at the beginning of the hike soon after hitting the Mt. Welch Trail turned out to be a literal “hop, skip and a jump.” After passing through some pretty wooded areas, the trail started climbing a bit, with one or two fun scrambles. Then we hit the exposed ledges leading up to the tiny summit of 2,605-foot-high Mt. Welch and the fun really started, with more scrambles and some excellent views across the valley to Sandwich Dome and the Tri-pyramids. Atop Mt. Welch, we stopped for a snack and to take in the view up and across to the summit of Mt. Dickey (2,734 feet).

From the summit of Welch, the trail drops steeply back down into the woods and then parallels some more ledges before climbing up out of the trees to the expansive summit of Mt. Welch, where we stopped for lunch and to enjoy the views. This included some nice views across the Pemi Wilderness to Mts.

Lafayette, Lincoln, and Little Haystack on the distant Franconia Ridge. From the summit of Dickey, the trail looped back down to the trailhead, taking us along another series of exposed ledges, some quite expansive and many which offered more nice views in all directions.

We eventually arrived back at the trailhead, sweaty and well above “book time;” but fully intact, with smiles on our faces, and with plenty of time left to drive back down to Massachusetts before the popular racetrack in Loudon let out for the day, jamming up the interstate with pumped up NASCAR fans.

Winter or summer, this is wonderful hike! Several people have also told me that this is one of their favorite fall foliage hikes; but I guess I’ll have to find that out for myself...

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Seeking an “Event Planner” for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

Happy September!

Labor Day Weekend marks the division 'tween summer and fall for us here in New England. Our cape and mountain family vacations are behind us—and didn't we have great fun with our SEM summer activities! Thanks leaders!

We're also looking forward to our fall activities! More great hikes, bikes, and paddles organized by our leaders. And, remember when you're out there to keep Conservation in the back of your mind. So, pick up a little trash along the way or move a branch off of a trail, because we in the AMC always: "Leave nothing but footprints, take nothing but pictures, and kill nothing but time."

A save-the-date for you: our SEM Annual Meeting and Annual Dinner on Nov. 2. Election of chapter officers and board meeting. And then a yummy dinner and interesting speaker – mixed in with a raffle and door prizes—and a chance to catch up with old friends. So, grab all of your old hiking, biking, or paddling buddies and reserve a table together!

I'LL BE OUTSIDE THIS SEPTEMBER! WHERE WILL YOU BE? GET OUTSIDE!

Got something to say? Got a good idea? Want to volunteer?
Feel free to contact me anytime about anything!

Wilderness First Aid Training

The fall SEM offering of WFA (Woofers as some call it) will be held November 9 & 10, 2013 at the Chapel Meeting House in Foxboro, MA. It is taught by a professional instructor from SOLO schools.

The WFA course runs 8-4 that Saturday and Sunday. CPR follows the Saturday session. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. CPR is optional for additional $35.

This course covers back woods first aid for those hikers who want to be prepared should a medical situation arise when they are in a remote area far from a quick 911 EMT response. Whether one is hiking up north or out west, camping or backpacking away from populated areas, biking distant routes, paddling the hinterlands or backcountry skiing, accidents do happen and adverse health conditions do arise. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify. WFA prepares you to treat and stabilize victims until professional help arrives, which could take many hours and perhaps overnight. If you venture into remote areas, whether or not you are an AMC trip leader, WFA will give you confidence you can handle that unexpected situation we all hope will never occur.

To register or for further information, contact Barry Farnsworth, Education Vice Chairperson, at educationvicechair@amcsem.org

Plan B: Newfoundland and Labrador

Gina Hurley
Communications vice-chair

This past winter I started planning my summer vacation. Like most of us, I love the planning, and spent many months getting my long distance hiking plans in order, from dehydrating food to researching and buying new equipment. Our plan was to thru-hike the 275 mile Long Trail in Vermont. My husband and I had thru-hiked this trail in the past, and loved it, so thought it would be a great summer vacation. We started our trip the first of July, during the very hot and humid week of July 4th. After 2 days I was miserable. I knew I could not do 25 more days. Mosquito bites and bleeding toes just did not feel like a vacation to me. So we pulled the plug, came back to the Cape, and thought about Plan B. We had always wanted to go to Newfoundland and Labrador, so took a few days to research the area and get our camping gear in order, and headed out. Prior to long distance hiking my husband and I were big campers, and still love our camping trips to far and distance locations. We headed though Maine into Canada, first New Brunswick, and then Nova Scotia. At the tip of Nova Scotia, in North Sydney, we took the 7 hour ferry ride to Newfoundland. Newfoundland is a large Canadian island off the east coast of North America. The island of Newfoundland covers 43,008 square miles- an area that rivals the size of the three maritime provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island combined. With the addition of the vast territory of Labrador, the province covers a total area of 156,453 square miles, and has more than 18,000 miles of unspoiled coastline. It is no wonder that this would be a summer vacation destination.

Our trip included several days in Gros Morne

National Park, where we saw beautiful sunsets and caribou, and had wonderful coastal hikes. The campgrounds in the national park were busy, but not overly crowded. After leaving this park, we headed to the northern tip of Newfoundland to the town of St. Anthony and were lucky enough to see whales swimming along the coast, and icebergs floating off shore. The drive thru this area was unspoiled, with spectacular views, and amazing scenery.

After another 2 hour ferry ride we arrived in Labrador. If you are looking for a quiet, undisturbed, and unpopulated area, this is the place! There are few amenities, including campgrounds, lodging, and gas stations. Driving the one major road takes planning, as gas stations are few and far between, and the road turns to dirt and gravel. We drove about 175 miles up the main road, and stopped in all of the coastal villages. From many of the villages we were lucky enough to see icebergs of various sizes. It is no wonder this part of Canada is referred to as Iceberg Alley.

After two weeks in this beautiful Canadian province I am happy that we pulled the trigger on Plan A, and focused on Plan B. Sometimes the most amazing gifts are the ones you never expect!

If you are thinking of traveling to Newfoundland and Labrador, check out these websites to help plan your trip.

No Sweaters Needed for this Mt. Cardigan Hike!

Photos by Walt Granda

By Paul Miller
SEM Hiking Vice Chair

On August 10th, Walt Granda and I led a congenial group of AMCers on a fun hike up Mt. Cardigan in central New Hampshire. The ten of us met at about 9:15 am at the pristine AMC Cardigan Lodge, near the main trailhead for the trails on the east side of this handsome mountain. This followed a surprisingly long, almost three-hour drive up from southeast Massachusetts. Surprising, because while the mileage is relatively small (compared to heading up to any of the notches, at least), we still had quite a bit of driving to do once we got off the Interstate.

While it had rained heavily the day before, we lucked out with nice, mostly sunny skies, a light breeze, and warmish, but not oppressive temperatures. (This made it unlikely that we would actually have to slip on our sweaters for this “Cardigan” hike.)

After signing in, making our introductions, and a very brief speech by Walt, who had organized the hike, we set off on the main Manning/Holt Trail. This starts as a relatively flat logging road with numerous campsites on either side. Once the Holt and Manning Trails diverged and we started making our way up the Manning Trail for this approximately six-mile long, counter-clockwise loop, we hit a few steeper, fun sections; some requiring a bit of scrambling to negotiate. We followed the Manning Trail up over some exposed ledges (similar to on last month's Welch-Dickey hike...) with nice views and eventually found ourselves on the expansive, largely wide open summit of Firescrew Mountain (3,084 feet), with its excellent views, including a view up and across to the fire tower atop Mt. Cardigan. We followed the connecting ridge across to the surprisingly uncrowded summit of Mt. Cardigan (3,155 feet), stopping along the way to collect handfuls of wild blueberries. Once atop the summit, we stopped for lunch and to enjoy the cooling breezes and panoramic views.

While on our lunch break, one of our group, a Wilderness First Responder, provided some materials from his ample first aid kit to help a woman from a small family group clean and dress some nasty "rock burns" on her leg, the result of a bad fall near the summit. After lunch and some photos on the summit, we took a side trip over to South Peak, which we had all to ourselves.

On the way back to back to the Clark Trail via a small connecting trail for our return trip, we passed by the AMC Cardigan High Cabin, which is nicely situated in a small clearing not too far down from the main summit. The cabin looked particularly appealing that day, with its newish wood siding, porch, and snazzy metal roof! We stopped for a few minutes to chat with one of the people renting the cabin for the weekend; part of a family that apparently rents the cabin every year at about this time to be able to view the Perseid Meteor Showers from the cabin's cozy and comfortable front porch. What a great idea!

Once back on the Clark Trail, we followed this downhill a bit and then took a left onto the Holt-Clark Cutoff to "Grand Junction," and then followed the relatively benign Holt Trail through the woods back to the Holt-Manning Trail and, in not too long, back to the Cardigan Lodge trailhead. At the lodge, we took advantage of the facilities, thanked Walt for organizing the trip, said our goodbyes, and then hit the road back to southeast Mass.

All in all, yet another very enjoyable SEM hike!

Whiteface Mtn. Hike

Saturday August 17, 2013

By Len Ulbricht

Whiteface is one of the smaller 48 NH 4000 footers, elevation 4020 feet, with 180 degree commanding views to the south. It anchors the west end of the Bowl Natural Research Area in the Sandwich Range Wilderness. Mt. Passaconaway, also a 4000 footer and 23 feet higher, sits at the east end, the two peaks connected by a ridge line above the bowl.

Perfecto weather- sunny, mid-70s, light wind, low humidity - filled the day for nine of us. The planned loop hike took us up the Blueberry Ledge Trail to the Rollins Trail and the summit of Whiteface, the Rollins Trail then continuing along the Bowl ridge line to the Dicey's Mill Trail at a point about a mile below the Passaconaway summit. We descended from there and had the loop's only water crossing on Dicey's Mill. The hiking distance of 9.8 miles with 2800 foot elevation change was completed in 7.5 hours, book time plus

The 4 mile Blueberry Ledge Trail has lower and upper ledges, the lower being less difficult and manageable with poles, but put them away for the upper ledges. The uppers are a challenging scramble demanding use of all fours. Reminded me of Baldface. Stone steps have been placed on a steep section between the lower and upper ledges. Outstanding views from the upper ledges encompass Sebago Lake, Lake Winnepesaukee, Chocura, Passaconaway and the Bowl. The Whiteface summit is further along the

Dickey's Mill water crossing

Rollins Trail and treed, so get your views in at the ledges.

Continuing along the treed ridge line, the Rollins Trails roller coasters up and down for 2.4 miles, gradually descending 700 - 800 feet. Soft tuff makes for pleasant trail footing. There are a few small lookout points out over the bowl along this section. Also noticeable are many blowdowns, all facing north, evidence of a fierce wind driving up the bowl face. Fortunately the trail was cleared of blowdowns.

Chocura

Whiteface Cont'd

The 3+ mile descent along Dicey's Mill Trail was easy, made easier by the stone steps on the steep sections. The one water crossing over a felled tree was aided by a taught rope to steady ones balance.

Many hikers on the ledges took in the view on this glorious weather day, and there were several places to do so. Crowding was not an issue. We only passed one hiker on the ridge line, many apparently descending the shorter Blueberry Ledge route. No parking fee at the trailhead lot.

Take A Long Hike

Hello fellow hikers.

Recently, I spent three weeks hiking New Hampshire's Cohos Trail.

This relatively new trail is an isolated path that runs from the Canadian border, just above Pittsburgh, New Hampshire down to Crawford Notch, in the heart of New Hampshire's White Mountains. I trekked from north to south so I could build up to the more strenuous climbs in the Whites.

If you are looking for a new trail to hike and don't mind not seeing many (if any) other hikers, then this is a good challenge for you. I didn't see a soul. Only when I neared Mt. Eisenhower and the overly popular Mt. Washington, did I spot other hikers.

In most sections the blazing is good; in some sections, the blazing is weathered and can be confusing. I used my compass often to confirm direction, and I suggest you bring separate maps of the White Mountain trails you will encounter. The Cohos Trail website store sells a set of Cohos Trail maps, and these are an absolute must if you are planning to thru-hike the Cohos.

If you do plan to thru-hike this trail, go with a friend or with a group. It is very isolated and cell phone coverage is limited at best.

The two pictures are from the Cohos Trail. The shelter you see is one of only three on the trail.

Whose Nirvana Anyway?

A Portion of The Panoramic View in February of Hall's Creek and Nantucket Sound from Saint Andrews By The Sea

By Louise Riemenchneider Foster

Now that Labor Day is over, we have a new degree of freedom! Those signs in parking areas which promise tickets to those of us who do not have stickers are passe! We are now free to roam jurisdictions formerly either denied or unaffordable to the many of us falling under the dreaded classification of "nonresidents"! Welcome to just one of the many perks of fall paddling.

One of this seasonal wellspring of new options is a destination little known to paddlers - Hall's Creek! Select a day when the wind is either slack or from the north, making excursions along other shores of the Cape an uncomfortable choice. Before Labor Day without a Town of Barnstable beach sticker, Covell Beach off Craigville Beach Road in Centerville would not let you park there at any price - that is, if there were spaces even available. Now, it could still be tough to find a parking spot if you come later in the day, but at our usual 10:30 launch time, there are usually plenty of spaces and the kids at the gate checking beach stickers have all gone back to school!

After launching into the surf, proceed east along the sound passing many seasonal old, and not so old time, West Hyannisport residences. About half a mile in the distance, is your way point, a breakwater marking the entrance to our destination. Once at the breakwater and the entrance of Hall's Creek, a charming pastoral tableau unfolds before you. For descriptive purposes, the creek and its estuaries can be very loosely thought of as a distorted right hand with five digits, and a palm like small island. Paddling counter clockwise into the pinkie and ring fingers, the marshes protected by the western shore of very private Squaw Island and the causeway, border the old community perched above; long ago a portion of the island was a secluded retreat, the JFK Summer White House. To the north, high on Sunset Hill, is the enchanting, storybook stone structure of Saint Andrews By the Sea Episcopal Church. This place is to be remembered when back on land; a visit to the church parking lot offers very nearly celestial views of the creek and the sound beyond. Immediately to the west of the church is the Hyannisport Club. Having once been treated to a tour of the golf course, I can tell you the condition of the fairways here rivals that of greens elsewhere. Traveling along this part of the shore and into middle and index fingers of the creek will take you past tees and along fairways of the course and you may be greeted by happy golfers along the way.

When it is time for lunch, there is no spot specifically offered to the public and, of course, somewhere along the golf course is definitely out of the question. There is a small association beach and areas along the opposite little island, the palm, which seem available for a brief, discrete interlude, since as I said, the kids are back in school. After the break, the trip up the remaining branch of Hall's Creek, the long thumb, is a nice finale to an exploration of this off the beaten track oblivion.

A Typical Hall's Creek Trip Paddling Route. Courtesy of Ed Foster

The paddle back to Covell can be a bit choppy with waves coming at you from the side, but the return trip is just as short as the way out. Depending on the day, you may return to a deserted beach, or be confronted by a sea of prone, sunscreen slathered humanity, cell phones clamped to alternating ears. Quite a jolt after the utopia of Hall's Creek. But everyone's Nirvana is different; seemingly for some, it has been right there all along, chattering and basking in the sand and sun on Covell Beach.

This trip, which is about seven miles long, has not been scheduled for this year, but I will do my best to influence a Leader's Choice in this direction. Keep watching our paddling email notices for good news.

Bike Law

Provided by:
MassBike.org

For exact requirements, please read the complete text of the laws pertaining to bicyclists and bicycling in Massachusetts. General Laws of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Chapter 85, Section 11b, Chapter 85, Section 11c, and Chapter 85, Section 11d.

Your rights

You may ride your bicycle on any public road, street, or bikeway in the Commonwealth, except limited access or express state highways where signs specifically prohibiting bikes have been posted.

You may ride on sidewalks outside business districts, unless local laws prohibit sidewalk riding.

You may use either hand to signal stops and turns.

You may pass cars on the right.

If you carry children or other passengers inside an enclosed trailer or other device that will adequately restrain them and protect their heads in a crash, they need not wear helmets.

Do you know your rights of the road? Do you know what your responsibilities are when biking in Massachusetts? Here is a summary of Massachusetts' bike law that covers equipment, riding, safety standards, races, violations, and penalties. This law applies to all cyclists in Massachusetts — even you!

You may hold a bicycle race on any public road or street in the Commonwealth, if you do so in cooperation with a recognized bicycle organization, and if you get approval from the appropriate police department before the race is held.

You may establish special bike regulations for races by agreement between your bicycle organization and the police.

You may have as many lights and reflectors on your bike as you wish.
Your responsibilities: you MUST do these things

You must obey all traffic laws and regulations of the Commonwealth.

You must use hand signals to let people know you plan stop or turn.

You must give pedestrians the right of way.

You must give pedestrians an audible signal before overtaking or passing them.

You may ride two abreast, but must facilitate passing traffic. This means riding single file when faster traffic wants to pass, or staying in the right-most lane on a multi-lane road.

You must ride astride a regular, permanent seat that is attached to your bicycle.

You must keep one hand on your handlebars at all times.

If you are 16 years old or younger, you must wear a helmet that meets U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission requirements on any bike, anywhere, at all times. The helmet must fit your head and the chin strap must be fastened.

You must have your headlight and taillight on if you are riding anytime from 1/2 hour after sunset until 1/2 hour before sunrise.

You must wear reflectors on both ankles if there are no reflectors on your pedals.

You must notify the police of any accident involving personal injury or property damage over $100.

Your responsibilities: you MAY NOT do these things

You may not carry a passenger anywhere on your bike except on a regular seat permanently attached to the bike, or to a trailer towed by the bike.

You may not carry any child between the ages of 1 to 4, or weighing 40 pounds or less, anywhere on a single-passenger bike except in a baby seat attached to the bike. The child must be able to sit upright in the seat and must be held in the seat by a harness or seat belt. Their hands and feet must be out of reach of the wheel spokes.

You may not carry any child under the age of 1 on your bike, even in a baby seat; this does not preclude carrying them in a trailer.

You may not use a siren or whistle on your bike to warn pedestrians.

You may not park your bike on a street, road, bikeway or sidewalk where it will be in other people's way.

You may not carry anything on your bike unless it is in a basket, rack, bag, or trailer designed for the purpose.

You may not modify your bike so that your hands are higher than your shoulders when gripping the handlebars.

You may not alter the fork of your bike to extend it.

Your responsibilities: equipping your bike

Your bike must have a permanent, regular seat attached to it.

Your brakes must be good enough to bring you to a stop, from a speed of 15 miles an hour, within 30 feet of braking. This distance assumes a dry, clean, hard, level surface.

At night, your headlight must emit a white light visible from a distance of at least 500 feet. A generator-powered lamp that shines only when the bike is moving is okay.

At night, your taillight must be red and must be visible from a distance of at least 600 feet.

At night, your reflectors must be visible in the low beams of a car's headlights from a distance of at least 600 feet. Reflectors and reflective material on your bike must be visible from the back and sides.

Penalties

Violations of any of these laws can be punished by a fine of up to $20. Parents and guardians are responsible for cyclists under the age of 18. The bicycle of anyone under 18 who violates the law can be impounded by the police or town selectmen for up to 15 days.

Motorist Responsibilities (see MGL Chapter 89, Section 2 and Chapter 90 Section 14)

Motorists and their passengers must check for passing bicyclists before opening their door. Motorists and their passengers can be ticketed and fined up to $100 for opening car or truck doors into the path of any other traffic, including bicycles and pedestrians.

Motorists must stay a safe distance to the left of a bicyclist (or any other vehicle) when passing. Motorists are also prohibited from returning to the right until safety clear of the bicyclist.

Motorists must pass at a safe distance. If the lane is too narrow to pass safely, the motorist must use another lane to pass, or, if that is also unsafe, the motorist must wait until it is safe to pass.

Motorists are prohibited from making abrupt right turns ("right hooks") at intersections and driveways after passing a cyclist.

Motorists must yield to oncoming bicyclists when making left turns. The law expressly includes yielding to bicyclists riding to the right of other traffic (e.g., on the shoulder), where they are legally permitted but may be more difficult for motorists to see.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Cotuit Bay

July 27, 2013
By Bill Fischer

Paddlers - Bill Fischer, Pat Carden, Pat Sarantis, Bob Sarantis, Jean Orser, Paul Carriveau.

We left the put-in at Ropes Beach to travel Clockwise around Oysterville Grand Island. For the balance of the paddle we kept Grand Island on our immediate right. This kept the wind from becoming much of a factor in the paddle. In the middle of the Bay it was pretty strong but in the lee of Grand Island it made for a very nice trip. It was nice to have some wind as the temp was about 80 degrees. After going under the Oysterville Bridge we made a sharp right as we entered West Bay and headed for Dead Neck for lunch. There were a lot of boats in the channel but that was the only place there was a lot of boat traffic on the trip. It was almost 5 miles to the lunch spot. After lunch we went down the Seapuit River back to Cotuit Bay and the put-in for a total of 7.5 miles. A very nice summer day and great paddle.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Illumination Night

July 27, 2013
By Max Sarazin

After a busy day at Korea Veterans Memorial in Hyannis on the 60th anniv of the Truce we prepared for Illumination Night in Onset Bay . We arrived at 5:10 not knowing what time the Onset 'Walking Jazz Band' would be going alongside the river, across the bridge, and into Onset Village . This band, although small, is excellent and compares to New Orleans with their goings on along the route . We made our way to what used to be Ken's Salt Water Taffy from the '30s . A structure was built over the original clam shack to protect it, and going inside the building you were standing 'outside' the original shack, but no longer; the place was sold, name changed, and the inside was gutted . No place to get good fried clams or all that good stuff anymore . The firewhistle sounded at 8:50 and townsfolk ignited the approx. 2300 flares outlining Onset Bay, Wicketts Island and Onset Island, quite a site, but I like the Town Band best.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Nauset Marsh

August 3, 2013
By Bob Zani

Paddlers - Bob Zani Leader, Jean Orser, Paul Correveau, Kerri Griffin, Lynne O'Riorden, Gary Robinson

Nice paddle of 6.7 miles with a bit of rain, plenty of wind, and a dicey time crossing the inlet to the marsh. If you look on the map, the location of the inlet is now where the little jog in the paddle takes place just south of the T in the caption Nauset Marsh. As an added attraction Max and his wife were at the launch site to provide a send off audience.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - North River

August 7, 2013

By George Wey

Participants - Al Hart & Rick McNally (Canoe), Pat Carden, Vicki Blair-Smith, Bill Fischer, Carol Houghton, George Wey (kayaks)

It was a beautiful day for a leisurely paddle of the 8.6 miles from Marshfield to Hanover. At 10:30am we moved cars from the put-in on the Marshfield side of the Union St. Bridge to the take-out in Hanover. Upon returning we launched and were on our way up river with the current at approximately 11:15. At noon we stopped at Blueberry Island for lunch. Continuing on after lunch we reached the take-out at approximately 2:30.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Shoestring/Popponeset Bays

August 10, 2013

By Louise Foster

Participants - Louise Foster, Leader, Paul Corriveau, Bill Fischer, Ed Foster, Betty Hinkley, Jeff Hyman, Jean Orser, Gary Robinson

We began our trip traveling north from the put in under the School Street Bridge and into the Santuit River. The water seemed low so we paddled in just a short distance. Back out into Shoestring Bay we traveled in light breezes toward our designated lunch spot on Meadow Point. We were accompanied by several osprey who were diving in the water attempting to catch their supper. They should have been pretty successful, since the fish were jumping all day. As we neared our goal, we realized we had time for an extra maneuver before the obligatory noon arrival time for our lunch. Hence, we explored the Popponeset River and approached Meadow Point from along Thatch Island. There were lots of boats traveling in and out of the cut and people wading the tepid water along the sand spit. Gary and Jeff took a swim and Jean plied us with her delicious brownies. After lunch we skirted the lines of a few fishermen on shore and headed into Pinqickset Cove and Marsh. We saw several egret and great blue heron as we made our way into the narrow channel of the marsh. Upon reentry into the cove we discovered the wind had shifted from NW to SW and had built to probably 17 - 18 miles per hour, which made paddling back across the cove and Ryefeld Point to the bay very slow going. Once there, however, we were protected from the west and the south wind helped to blow us back to the put in. Our route was one of those sparkling venues and approximately 8 miles.

An absolutely perfect day for a paddle with the only drawback the numerous power boats on the water. Circled Grand Cove then went north to lunch at Follins landing and then to Mill Pond, but not into the pond. Half of the group had a nice 10.7 mile jaunt while the other half cut it a little short but still managed 9 plus miles.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Cotuit Bay & Prince Cove

August 24, 2013

By Ed Foster

Paddlers: Ed Foster - Leader, Vicki Blair-Smith, Paul Corriveau, Bill Fischer, Betty Hinkley, Jean Orser, Bob Zani

We set off hugging the left hand shore to try to find some relief from the wind and as a result paddled coves and inlets we normally pass by. Every time we rounded a point we got a full blast of headwind, but the wind eased a little as we got out of North Bay and into the river leading to Prince Cove. Because of our late start lunch, at the Prince Cove town landing, was also a half hour late but Jean's brownies made up for it. After lunch we continued around Prince Cove keeping the land on our right. When we again got to North Bay we took a direct route across it but now with the wind (which seemed to have abated a bit) at our backs. Six of the paddlers stayed to the right while one decided that he'd like to have a change of scenery and hugged the shore of Great Island (Oyster Harbors). Crossing Cotuit Bay to the put-in was easy in spite of a sidewind.

6.8 miles for a much better paddle than we might have expected given the wind.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Lewis Bay/Egg Island

August 28, 2013

By Bob Zani

Paddlers: Jean Orser, Paul Corriveau, Bill Fischer, Vicki Blair-Smith, George Wey, Gary Robinson, Ed Foster, Louise Foster, Betty Hinkley

This was a very delightful impromptu trip; the weather was perfect, and we had the water almost to ourselves, with the exception of Hyannis Harbor. Egg Island was apparently much smaller than when the famous bocce match was played there in July, but it was fine for lunch (and brownies), and a very interesting experience for those who had never been there before.

NEWS FROM JOY STREET

Team AMC: Rock 'n' Roll Brooklyn 10k

October 12, 2013 (Sat)

Team AMC is a fundraising program offering members the opportunity to support AMC's mission and programs by participating in events as a charity runner. Participants raise funds that support the protection, enjoyment, and understanding of the mountains, forests, waters, and trails of the Appalachian region.

AMC is proud to be a part at this year's Rock 'n' Roll Brooklyn 10k. All funds raised will go to support the

New York -New Jersey Youth Opportunities Program (YOP).

AMC members interested in participating in the Team AMC Brooklyn 10k must fill-out and submit an application. Space will be limited to ten runners for this event. Each participant selected to run for AMC in the Brooklyn 10k, is required to raise a minimum of $500. Visit >>

Adventure Travel Training Workshop

November 15-17, 2013

Visit some of the most exciting places in the world as the leader of an AMC Adventure Travel Trip!

The Adventure Travel Training workshop (held November 15-17th, 2013 at White Memorial Foundation) provides important training to people who have AMC activity leadership experience (no beginners, please) to transition from leading weekend chapter activities to more complex and longer trips, domestically and overseas. Previous outdoor leadership training is highly desirable.

It emphasizes planning, cost estimating, trip management, people skills, and risk management. You'll also learn procedures and guidelines for researching, proposing, and leading Adventure Travel trips and have the chance to exchange ideas, problems, and solutions with some of the AMC's most skilled leaders. The training's small group size assures abundant discussion and access to instructors. For more information visit >>.

Climate Change Series (Boston-area activity—more pertinent to SEM, WR, BN, NA)

Air pollution and climate change affect both the health and experiences of people who love to get outdoors to enjoy the unique ecology of the Northeastern United States. It takes action from individuals and communities to make the changes that will slow and/or reverse these trends.

This fall AMC's chapters will offer events and programs designed to help you learn about climate change and what you can do about it. In Boston, AMC is collaborating with the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts to increase awareness and action on climate change, energy, and the outdoors.

Upcoming events:

September 4—come to AMC headquarters at 5 Joy Street in Boston to hear speaker Dr. James Hunt talk about his new biography about John Muir's 1000-mile walk through the southern US in 1867, which was a formative journey for Muir.

September 4—Unveiling of the Barbara Bosworth photography exhibit which features the New England Scenic Trail.

October TBD—AMC 5 Joy Street—Panel Discussion: Our Clean Air Future and Natural Gas

November TBD—AMC 5 Joy Street—Exporting our Clean Energy Impacts

November TBD—Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts, Cathedral of St. Paul, 138 Tremont Street, Boston, MA 02108—Ecumenical/Interfaith discussion about Faith, Climate Change, and Action.

Sat., Nov. 9-10. Wilderness First Aid (WFA). WFA Training November 09, 2013 - November 10, 2013 (Sat - Sun) The WFA course runs 8:30-4 Saturday and Sunday in Foxboro, MA. Optional CPR is available. SOLO has been engaged to provide the instruction. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. Pricing includes lunch and break service both days. Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations. Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify. L Len Ulbricht (education@amcsem.org), R Barry Farnsworth (educationvicechair@amcsem.org)

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically:

Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

Wilderness First Aid Training

The fall SEM offering of WFA (Woofer as some call it) will be held November 9 & 10, 2013 at the Chapel Meeting House in Foxboro, MA. It is taught by a professional instructor from SOLO schools.

The WFA course runs 8-4 that Saturday and Sunday. CPR follows the Saturday session. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. CPR is optional for additional $35. This course covers back woods first aid for those hikers who want to be prepared should a medical situation arise when they are in a remote area far from a quick 911 EMT response. Whether one is hiking up north or out west, camping or backpacking away from populated areas, biking distant routes, paddling the hinterlands or backcountry skiing, accidents do happen and adverse health conditions do arise. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify. WFA prepares you to treat and stabilize victims until professional help arrives, which could take many hours and perhaps overnight. If you venture into remote areas, whether or not you are an AMC trip leader, WFA will give you confidence you can handle that unexpected situation we all hope will never occur.

Jim Casey; I'm an official Red Liner now, I have a PATCH~!!

My RLBH Patch

It was August 25, 2013 at 7:15pm when I walked the last trail to complete my Red Lining of the Blue Hills. It took just under two years, but I managed to hike every trail, just over 120 miles of them, in the Blue Hills Reservation with the help of my AMC friends.

I joined the Thursday night Red Liners back in early 2011. First thing I needed to do was print out the oversized Blue Hills Reservation map so I could track each trail, then I was off; up to Great Blue for a spectacular view from the tower overlooking Boston, then over to Buck Hill (and yes, I saw a buck there, so it's an appropriate name), next we headed through the Great Swamp, then to Rattle Snake Hill, then out to Chickatawbut Tower, around Houghton's Pond, over to Tucker Hill, mile after mile I began to highlight the trails with my red marker (Red Lining~!).

Each Thursday night our AMC group met at different

This little fella was only about 6 inches long, but he was feisty locations around the Blue Hills Reservation and headed off for roughly two hours of hiking the scenic reservation. I was amazed at how big and diverse the Blue Hills is. We ran into deer, hawks, snakes, turtles, frogs, Great Blue Heron and much more.

We also ran into several lost hikers. In fact, one time when I was leading a hike, we ran into some hikers who got separated from their group and couldn't figure out how to get back to their car. It was approaching dusk, and they had no map or headlamp. We headed them in the right direction, pointing them to a main trail so they could safely hike back.

I love to hike and enjoy hiking with others – especially telling stories and just having a lot fun in the process. The RLBH series was right up my alley; rain or shine, we hiked each Thursday night through the reservation on a pre-planned set of trails. On more than one occasion, we arrived back at our vehicles with headlamps lighting the way.

I met a bunch of great people, had a ton of laughs and actually accomplished a goal. (My mom was so proud, I had finally accomplished a goal and it only took me 51 years.)

Special thanks to the RLBH Hike leaders; Maureen Kelley, Joe Keogh, M i c h a e l Swartz, and all the Red Liners for helping me achieve this incredibly fun goal.

Now I'm getting ready to White Line the Blue Hills....yes, I'm going to hike every trail during Winter~!!

My last trail to the Water Tank above the Trailside Museum

Cathy MacCurtain My journey began.....

My journey began in April 2012 when I joined the conditioning hikes lead by Ken Jones. I had been recently laid off and was trying to keep busy while looking for employment. After each hike I would highlight the trails I had hiked. I continued hiking the Blue Hills and surrounding areas with the DCR and the AMC.

In April 2013, I again joined the Tuesday morning conditioning hikes. After speaking with other hikers in the group, I learned about the redline group and was intrigued by the idea of hiking all the trails in the Blue Hills. Having completed some of the trails already, I began redlining in April with the goal of finishing by the end of September.

Upon realizing how challenging my goal was, I continued to hike on Tuesday mornings when the conditioning hikes ended, and also on the weekends. After each Thursday night hike I was more motivated to conquer the Blue Hills and was hiking whenever I had the time. When I was going to hike a remote section, I would ask a co-hiker or friend to accompany me. My husband hiked with me on weekends.

I finished my last section of trails on Saturday September 7. It was a rewarding experience as it allowed me to meet so many great people along the trails. Thanks to everyone that helped me!

Could not have asked for a better day. Arrived at Pamet Harbor and yes there was a $6 fee but we were welcomed by the Assistant Harbor Master who even helped some carry their kayak down the wooden stairs to the launch.

After lunch, and Jean's brownies for all, we paddled east up the Pamet River to "Truro Center" before returning with the outgoing tide to the launch site. However, perhaps a first for an AMC paddle, on the return trip we ran into a Boston Whaler with an outboard that had quit, so they threw a line to Gary Robinson who

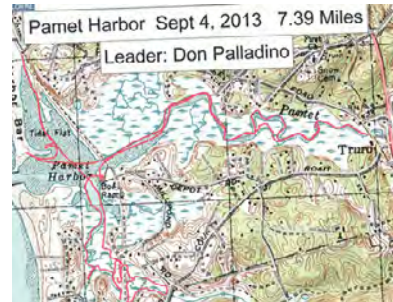

We launched an hour before high tide and unlike previous trips this time paddled south from the harbor into the marsh. Since the tide was coming in there was ample water to paddle all the way to Mill Pond Road and explore the entire tidal marsh before returning to the harbor and proceeding north on the Little Pamet River toward pulling the Whaler with three on board safely back to the harbor. Jean has photos of this noteworthy event - AMC Public Service Award perhaps? Well done Gary. We were welcomed back to the harbor by the Harbor Master who has quite a story of his own about his service in WW II to tell. We stopped at precisely noon on the protected side of the Harbor Bar for lunch.

WW II to tell.

Saw little wildlife, a few herons and gulls, and overall an enjoyable 7.5 mile paddle. Next year we'll have to bone up on the history of the area, or perhaps paddle the upper Pamet.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Hingham Bay/Weir River

September 7, 2013

By George Wey

Paddlers: Vicki Blair-Smith and George Wey

It was another great day for a paddle. We launched at the usual time 10:30 and crossed Hingham Harbor to the Trustee's Reservation. Paddled along the shore then around Worlds End and down the Weir River. At the Straits Pond sluice gate we turned around and headed back up river stopping at Trustee's Reservation for lunch.

Many years ago I was involved in the re-construction of Nantasket pier in Hull, so after lunch we decided to paddle over and check the condition of the pier after those many years. It appeared to be still in good condition.

Heading back we encountered a southwesterly breeze after rounding Worlds End. Paddled by the four Hingham Harbor Islands keeping Langlee, Sarah & button on our left and Ragged on our right. Reached the put-In at approximately 3:00 after a 11 mile paddle.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Mashpee Wakeby Ponds

September 11, 2013

By Ed Foster

Paddlers: Ed Foster - Leader, Vicki blair-Smithm, Bill Fischer, Gary Robinson, Bob Zani

We set off planning to do a counter-clockwise loop around the ponds. We'd be exposed to the wind going north but it would be at our backs and returning south we'd be protected by the western shore. By the time we got to the narrows between Mashpee and Wakeby we figured the wind was mild enough that we could go up the western shore of Wakeby Pond, making a figure 8 and putting on a little more mileage before the lunch stop. Even so we got to the beach at Conaumet Cove a little early. After lunch we continued our journey hugging the shore back to the put in. We arrived just as about half a dozen power boaters were arriving to launch or pull their boats. It took a while for the congestion to ease but the ramp finally cleared enough to let us bring our cars down, load up our boats, and depart. 7.5 very pleasant miles.

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Great day for a paddle which turned out to be 5.8 miles on Walkers, Upper and Lower Mill Ponds. Launched from the Punkhorn because of a very intimidating $30.00 sign at the Slough Road put in. Margot indicated that it was inactive after Labor Day but the sign didn't say so, so the decision was made to relocate.

Herring River

By Jean Orser

Paddlers: Jean Orser, L, Paul Corriveau, CL, Bill Fischer, Bob Zani, Margot Fitsch, Gary Robinson, Ed Foster, Louise Foster

A perfect day for paddling the Herring River with a Boston high tide at 11 am of 10.8 ft and 5 mph southwest wind; so marsh was filled with very calm water. We started up short-cut to Coy Brook and felt there was water was too high to go under the bridge so most of us returned to river and took a new short-cut to Coy Brook that Ed had recommended. Meanwhile Ed, Paul and Gary explored another channel and were not seen until lunch time. We paddled up Coy Brook to the Lothrop Ave bridge and returned to take a short-cut channel Bob found to the East Reservoir which we circumnavigated keeping our distance from the 2 swans. We took channel to the right of our entrance and paddled on the Herring River to the North Road Footbridge where we had lunch and regrouped with the explorers and exchange our adventures. After lunch we continued on the river to the West Reservoir where we viewed the Herring Run. Along the way we passed bright scarlet tupelos and a plant with pink flower clusters which Nancy Wigley says is salt marsh fleabane which has "a faint odor of camphor, a known flea repellent, hence the name fleabane" from page 160 of "Trailside Treasures" by Nancy Wigley. Wildlife seen included osprey, great blue herons, a hawk, swans and several jelly fish. Mileage for the main group was 7.2 and the explorers had another mile or so. Thanks to Bob for all his help with his map and gps.

Paddlers: Nancy Wiggley (L), George Wey, Ray Buchan, Margot Fitsch, Steve and Annmarie Gavin, Joyce Keay, Pat Carden, Pat and Bob Sarantis, Peter Meggison and Ken Burnes

Twelve kayakers enjoyed the last day of summer under excellent conditions while on the AMC Mashpee River trip on Saturday, September 21, 2013. We launched at 10:30 a.m. from the Town landing onto Ockway Bay (free parking after Labor Day) and with a tail wind went past Gooseberry Island and up the beautiful Mashpee River with its wooded conservation lands on both sides. The theme of the trip was to view the wetland wildflowers which grow in abundance and bloom at this time of year along the edges of the river especially in the section near Route 28. Flowers seen were: Cat-tails, red Cardinal flowers, blue Forget-me-nots, the mauve-color blossoms of Joe Pyeweed, Climbing hempweed, the rare Burr-marigolds (yellow blossoms), Salt marsh fleabane with its clusters of pink blossoms and fragrance of camphor, golden Jewelweed reputed for being the natural antidote for poison ivy, etc. as well as ribbons of green aquatic plants undulating in the current of the shallows. The population of wild rice which has been seen in years past has proliferated substantially. Birds seen were: Great Blue Heron, Little Green Heron, flock of Red-wing Blackbirds, Kingfishers, an adolescent Swan, Cormorants, five Mallard ducks, and a large group of Canada Geese. We stopped for lunch just south of Canaway Cove on a high point of land which afforded spectacular views of the river in both directions. After lunch we explored Canaway Cove. "It is here that there is an old wooden aqueduct, a ghost of days when it carried water west from the river to the cranberry bogs. Canaway Cove marks the farthest reach of the sea's salt water where it meets the freshwater flowing south from Mashpee/Wakeby Ponds.

The Mashpee River, famous for its "salters" or sea-run brook trout, once drew statesman-fishermen such as Daniel Webster and President Grover Cleveland." The return trip had us back by 2 p.m. where we noted the rising astronomically high moon tide (11.1 ft.)which now covered much of the launching ramp.

Exploring after lunch

Climbing the hill to have lunch

My sincere appreciation to the following people (listed in order from the sign-in sheet) for joining me to see the wildflowers best viewed as we did from the water. Your company and camaraderie made for a memorable trip. Special thanks to Margot Fitsch who has provided the photos for your enjoyment.

Until a couple years ago Max took her paddling or flying. Last year they spent the day in Provincetown, but this year they explored all around Rock Harbor, and they went out to eat at Seafood Sams. Usually they go out to eat or he cooks for her here, like scallop casserole or baked stuffed lobster. Max used to take her to the Pilot's Breakfast where they all love her.

Barnstable Harbor Western Creeks

By Ed Foster

Paddlers: Ed Foster - leader, Paul Corriveau, Bill Fischer, Louise Foster, Betty Hinkley, Jean Orser

Autumn is particularly lovely in the Great Marshes of Barnstable Harbor with the marsh grasses showing beautiful golden hues. However when trying to navigate through narrow creeks and drainage ditches those grasses can pose problems. More about that later.

We set off north across the harbor toward Wells Creek. The entrance to Wells Creek is very difficult to see until you're practically on top of it but previous paddles had shown us what landmark to aim for so we got to it with no difficulty, especially with the wind at our backs. We paddled up Wells Creek as far as we could go while leaving enough room to turn around and not have to back paddle out. Instead of going all the way back to the entrance we took a previously discovered "short cut" through the marsh. Alas, we found ourselves blocked by tall marsh grass and couldn't see where the route was. Frustrated we backtracked to Wells Creek and took another path through the marsh a little further east. When we emerged into Barnstable Harbor we encountered a 15 MPH wind right in our faces. Deciding that eating lunch under those conditions would not be pleasant we decided to cross the harbor and hope that the south side would provide some protection from the wind.

Once across the harbor we couldn't find any dry land to use as a lunch spot. We were also half a mile east of the Bridge Creek, which was our goal. It was a relatively calm paddle to Bridge Creek but once in the creek we again got periods of gusty winds. Again our goal was to use the man made drainage ditches to get from Bridge Creek to Brickyard Creek and once again the marsh grasses blocked/hid the route. Since by now we were really hungry we found a relative high point (which was still under a couple inches of water), and pulled out to have lunch.

The boats provided a dry place to sit but a few paddlers ate standing up.

After lunch we made one last attempt at finding a route to Brickyard Creek and this time were successful . . . sort of. Now the high tide mostly flooded the marsh and made it difficult to find the channel (it turned out we crossed it twice without seeing it). We finally stumbled onto a channel that led us to Brickyard Creek and from then on the trip back to the put-in was uneventful. We did a total of 11.7 miles on what should have been closer to a 9 mile trip. This is a much easier trip in the spring (see the 27 April trip report) because the grasses aren't high enough to hide the channels but the marsh is SO much prettier in the fall. Maybe by next year I'll have it perfected.

Waquoit Bay

September 25, 2013

By Bill Fischer

Paddlers: Bill Fischer - George Wey - Jean Orser- Paul Corriveau - Louise Foster - Ed Foster

The conditions for a early fall paddle were near perfect today on Waquoit Bay. It is truly a wonderful place to paddle with many options regarding where to go and how long to paddle. We went Down the Childs River and turned left onto the Sea Pit River . We then paddled across Waquoit Bay with a lite breeze coming over our left shoulder. I was worried there would be enough water to make it thru the culvert under Meadow Neck Road but as it turned out there was plenty. We then moved into Hamblin Pond and down Little River back to Waquoit Bay.

We paddled across the Bay with the slight wind now coming over our right shoulder. We made it to Washburn Island just after noon and stopped at lovely beach for a private lunch. Washburn Island is a true gem on Cape Cod. Well worth the paddle for anyone who enjoys beach, water and sun. After lunch 5 Paddlers went South to Tim's Pond and to the Portage over to the Childs River. One Paddler went North up Waquoit Bay and the Sea Pit River back to the put-in. We all made it back to the put-in around 2pm. 7+ miles of wonderful paddling.

Take A Long Hike

By Ray Anderson

Hello fellow hikers. Hiking in the rain happens all the time. You get used to it. Getting wet is one thing; sleeping in dampness is another. Anyone who's slept in a damp sleeping bag will tell you of their misery on a cold night.

You may know of hikers who quit their thru-hike because they got tired of dealing with rain. I saw it happen during the usual rainy spring on the A.T. and on Vermont's Long Trail during a weeks-long stretch of downpours. Hikers complained of damp sleeping bags and wet clothes that couldn't dry. These hikers didn't sleep comfortably.

A simple, fool-proof way to seal a sleeping bag from rain and dampness, is to wrap it in the ubiquitous green trash bag before putting it in your backpack.

This, more than anything, keeps my bag dry. Always. I also store "for sleeping only" a dry t-shirt and underpants in the sleeping bag.

When I wake in the morning, I remove this underwear and place it in a plastic baggie, which I then put back in my sleeping bag. I can handle hiking in wet clothes because I will become warm with movement and after food. But I never sleep wet or damp. In the picture with the unrolled bag, I've placed the trash bag on the left and my sleep underwear on the bottom of the bag. The other picture shows everything rolled up in the trash bag except for the original sleeping bag sack, which stays home.

Give yourself a well-deserved night's sleep after hiking all day in rain. Keep your bag protected; sleep in dry underwear.

Ray's Hiking Blog: www. TakeALongHike.com

HIKING TIP:

Wrap your sleeping bag; keep a separate set of underwear only for sleeping.

~ Congratulations ~

KAREN SINGLETON

48th 4000 Footer

On Sunday September 15th Karen Singleton completed 48 mountains in New Hampshire Over 4,000 feet!

Little River - Big Challenge

By Peggy Qvicklund

The trip was planned for Memorial Day Weekend. Karen would complete her 48th 4000 footer with fellow AMC members/friends and her brother who flew in from Idaho to be part of the celebration.

Now, think back to that weekend.

Rain predictions, cold temperatures, even forecasts of snow. Was this really late May? Yes, this is New England!

The group drove to the trailhead, then headed up North Twin trail, but met raging waters early on. Safety comes first, and they were forced to abandon their plans to reach North Twin Mt. (In fact, the AMC had issued a closure of Galehead Hut, urging all AMC groups to cancel their hikes.)

Coordinating another trip, Lesley and Maureen booked Galehead Hut again, this time Sept 14th. Despite good weather forecasts, the clouds were heavy over the Twins, making for misty hiking conditions. As we followed the unofficial bushwhack trail alongside Little River, we met many hikers who had reached the crossing point, but turned around. "Too much water". "Not worth trying". But Karen was on a mission, and we had to follow her! Some shimmied over the log, some took off boots and waded, but we all got across the cold, rushing water safely.

By 2pm, we had reached North Twin summit, and, in the fog, we celebrated Karen's achievement with hoots and hollers and of course champagne!

On to South Twin and finally Galehead Hut where we continued to celebrate her accomplishment.

The turkey dinner served by the croo was a perfect ending to the big day.

Sunday morning brought cloudless skies and we watched the sun rise slowly over the mountain tops, warming us in the 39 degree temperatures of early morning.

A quick hike up Galehead Mt after breakfast then down a very muddy Gale River Trail to our cars.

Congratulations to Karen - you are an inspiration to us all!

Who Are you?

Paul Carrier ~ cyclist/leader

How long have you been involved in cycling?

60+ years – ever since I was big enough to get on a two-wheeler. I've only been involved in serious cycling since moving to the cape in 1998 and meeting up with some AMC riders who most graciously taught me about riding.

How long have you been an AMC member?

Since 4/17/98 – I was kayaking in Barnstable Harbor alone and met up with a group of AMC paddlers. I joined AMC a week or so later. I've been paddling, cycling, and hiking with our chapter since then.

How long have you been a trip leader?

10 years or so. I lead about 65 rides a year:

- Tuesday afternoon/evening rides all year long
- New Year's Day ride
- Sunset/full moon rides all year long
- First day of spring, Last day of summer, Last day of autumn rides. I'll probably add the first day of summer next year.

What do you enjoy about being a trip leader?

Showing riders what great places for riding we have in our chapter territory. The biggest reward is sharing places I have found with folks who have been here far longer than are and I unaware of these out of the way spots. The current byline for my Tuesday rides is: "Rides include views of & occasional stops at known & lesser known unique & interesting spots".

It is rewarding to receive gratitude and to be thanked for my rides and to know that our chapter chairs and vice-chairs appreciate my efforts.

Brought to you by Gina Hurley ~ Comms Vice Chair ~ commsvicechair@amcsem.org ~ suggest a member

What advice would you give to someone who is thinking of becoming a trip leader?

Stop procrastinating – get out there with our leaders and make your intentions known; co-lead rides at first; then plan and co-lead rides. Visit our website – read our publications about cycling and leadership.

What/where are some of your favorite cycling rides/trips?

Skaket Beach, Orleans to Audubon in Wellfleet • Wellfleet or Truro to Provincetown • Shores and necks of Monument Beach, Pocasset, and Cataumet • Sagamore or Wareham to Plymouth • Falmouth to Woods Hole • South Coast: Rochester/Marion/Mattapoisett/Lakeville/Middleboro/ Westport/Horseneck Beach South Shore: Hull, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate • Craigville/Hyannisport • Martha's Vineyard • The mainland (sunny) side of the canal in mid-morning/early afternoon in the winter.

8. Where would you like to ride that you have not been yet (your dream ride)?

I have no dreams of conquering Mt. Washington on my trusty old Trek! Perhaps the North Shore – Gloucester/Rockport area; coast of Maine; Prince Edward Island.

What advice would you give someone who is just getting into cycling?

Visit the Massbike website www.massbike.org Ride for safety and pleasure. Stay on the right side of the road. Get and use a mirror. Use hand signals. Dress in bright clothing. Ride safely - get used to your bicycle in traffic-free areas. Watch what your fellow, more experienced riders are doing and ask them questions; ignore them if they ride in the middle of the street!

There are many bikes out there. What factors should one consider when selecting/buying a bike?

Visit bike shops – the folks in the shop should assess your skill level and address your cycling needs. They should ask you many questions before recommending a type of bike – road, hybrid, mountain, and the levels of each category. The type of bike and a bike matching your riding intentions is far more important than a specific brand name.

Ask your fellow riders to refer you to a bike shop.

Visit and assess your local shop – it is nice to have a shop close by.

“You like to do what?”

“Are you out of your mind?”

These are the reactions I usually get when I tell my (non-hiking) friends and family members that - as enjoyable as spring and fall hiking may be -- I like winter hiking the best.

Even my own sister, who has hiked extensively throughout New England, California, and more recently on the big mountains of the Pacific Northwest, thinks I have a screw loose for hiking in New Hampshire in the winter. After all, NH in the winter is notorious for its bitterly cold temperatures, deep snow, and high winds above treeline, right?

And while it's very possible that I do have a screw loose, I can still create a more-or-less rational argument for why winter is the best time to hike...even up in NH. And that's an opinion shared by many other SEM winter hikers. As we stress at our annual Winter Hiking Workshop (designed to prepare new winter hikers for the SEM's popular Winter Hiking Series) safe and enjoyable winter hiking requires the appropriate clothing and footwear; the right winter hiking gear; proper hydration, nutrition, and conditioning; adequate knowledge; mindful trip selection; a sharp eye to the weather; and a general surfeit of caution.

That said; here's my personal “top ten list” of the reasons why I think winter hiking is the best:

#10 - Gives me a chance to use my snowshoes, crampons, microspikes, and other cool winter gear

#9 - It's easy to spot animal tracks in the snow

Ten Reasons Why I Love Winter Hiking

Several hearty SEMers on the summit of Mt. Pierce in February 2013; Alan, Paul, Kim, Kat, Leslie. The cold, crisp air made the views even better! Photo by Ken Carson

#8 - The trails are less crowded

#7 - Excellent camaraderie

#6 - Generally better views (no leaves on the trees to get in the way)

#5 - The snow muffles sounds - making it quieter in the woods

#4 - No bugs

#3 - No humidity (usually)

#2 - The trails are generally

smoother and easier to negotiate (with snowshoes) because those darn, ankle-twisting rocks are buried under several feet of snow

#1 - The snow-draped landscapes often resemble an awe-provoking fantasyland

Of course, you're entitled to create your own top-ten list; but not until you've actually given winter hiking a try. If you're interested, a good first step would be to join us for our free annual Winter Hiking Workshop in Sandwich, MA on November 2nd from 1:00 to 4:00 pm (before the SEM Annual Meeting and Dinner in nearby Bourne...). Please note that Winter Hiking Workshop participation is required for new winter hikers who wish to participate in the upcoming SEM Winter Hiking Series.

As usually, this year's winter series will start with an introductory winter hike in the Blue Hills early in December. This usually provides an opportunity to practice hiking with a full winter pack while wearing your snazzy new winter clothing and footwear (last year, we even had some light snow!). We'll follow this with progressively more challenging hikes up in New Hampshire, including a trip to beautiful Mt. Monadnock in January; Mt. Pierce, a 4,000 footer in the Presidential Range in February; and a fun overnight trip to the AMC Lonesome Lake Hut early in March. While the

Connecticut Chapter - "AT Day, 2013"

Saturday, Oct 19

Each year, on "AT Day", we celebrate our good fortune in having over 50 miles of the Appalachian Trail, or "AT", in Connecticut. "AT Day" has become the chapter's biggest annual event and a great opportunity to enjoy fall color. .

We have a long list of activities to choose from.

We have a series of hikes, which together, cover the entire length of the Connecticut section of the AT with additional hikes in Macedonia Brook State Park, near Kent, through which the AT once went. We also have a bike ride, three trail work parties, and even a chance to learn how to rock climb.

Join us at our Grand BBQ from 3:00pm, $6 for BBQ or earlier if people turn up before, until sunset at Macedonia Brook State Park. BBQ is rain or shine. Directions: Take Route 341 for 3 miles west from Kent to Macedonia Brook Road and follow north to the park entrance. Continue on the park road to the pavilion on the right.

Chapter Trips

Sat., Nov. 9-10. Wilderness First Aid (WFA). WFA Training November 09, 2013 - November 10, 2013 (Sat - Sun) The WFA course runs 8:30-4 Saturday and Sunday in Foxboro, MA. Optional CPR is available. SOLO has been engaged to provide the instruction. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. Pricing includes lunch and break service both days. Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations. Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify. L Len

Ulbricht (education@amcsem.org), R Barry Farnsworth (educationvicechair@amcsem.org)

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

Fri., Oct. 4-6. Wilderness paddling/camping in the Maine North Woods at Lobster Lake. Join us for a weekend in the wilderness of the Maine North Woods. We will be paddling, canoe/kayak, out to a remote camp site on Lobster Lake. There should be great Fall color, stargazing and hopefully lots of moose watching. Expect comfortable days and cool to cold nights. This trip is not for beginners. You must be experienced paddling in open lakes and either have previously attended a trip similar to this or have backpacking experience. L Luther Wallis (lew89@comcast.net) CL Ken Jones (lotsoluck@comcast.net), R Luther Wallis (508-923-1935 7-9PM, lew89@comcast.net)

Sat., Oct. 5. Carter Notch via Wildcat River Trail. Join us as we venture into beautiful Carter Notch from the south via the relatively untrammled Bog Brook and Wildcat River Trails. Can be combined with leaders' hike on Sunday, if desired. L Paul Miller (508-369-4151 before 9:00 PM, paulallenmiller@verizon.net) L Maureen Kelly (mokol773@aol.com), R Paul Miller (508-369-4151 before 9:00 PM, paulallenmiller@verizon.net)

Sun., Oct. 6. Mt Chocorua via Brook and Liberty Trails. Join us to hike Mt Chocorua up the Brook Trail and down the Liberty Trail. Chocorua's elevation is 3500' but it gives you the feel of a 4000' mountain with 360° views from the top. The hike will be 7.5 miles, 2600' elevation and will have some strenuous sections. This hike may be combined with leaders' Saturday hike. L Maureen Kelly (508-224-9188 before 8 pm, mokol773@aol.com) CL Paul Miller (paulallenmiller@verizon.net), R Maureen Kelly (508-224-9188 before 8 pm, mokol773@aol.com)

SEM Intro to Winter Fun
2/7-2/9/2014

November is always an exciting month for us here in SEM. At our Annual Meeting on November 2, the chapter membership elects a new Executive Board. Some are returning chairs completing a multi-year term and others are vice chairs moving up into the chair position.

November then becomes a time of transition for the chapter leadership as some leave, some stay, and some move up. Our chapter mentoring program handles this transition well—people serve as vice chair for a year or two and learn the ropes before stepping into the chair position.

I'd like to use this View from the Chair to thank all outgoing members of the SEM Executive Board. You attended monthly Executive Board meetings, managed a full staff of volunteer activity leaders, often worked a full-time job, and attended to your family responsibilities. The chapter sincerely appreciates your volunteer service!

I also welcome all incoming members to the Executive Board. I look forward to working with you. And thank you for stepping up.

And our returning board members? You will be the glue that holds us together as we start our new year. I look to you to help me teach the newbies.

Your chapter will be in good hands in 2014. Competent, caring, and dedicated volunteers have stepped forward to run for office and lead the chapter. Thank you all!

Moose Sighting on Mt. Chocorua and Other Good Times up North

Paul Miller, SEM Hiking Vice Chair

So here's a trick question: What's better than a full day of beautiful fall hiking in the White Mountains with a crew of amiable AMCers?

Answer: Two days of AMC hikes in the White Mountains.

That's what we were lucky enough to do several weekends ago when Maureen Kelly and I led hikes on consecutive days up in the White Mountains early in October (yup, pretty much at peak foliage...).

Day One: Carter Notch via the Wildcat River Trail

First hike on the list was a fun trek into beautiful Carter Notch from the south on the Wildcat River Trail, one of the hidden gems in the White Mountains. SEM hikers have been into Carter Notch a number of times in recent years, but typically we did so by hiking in from the north via the popular Nineteen Mile Brook Trail. So why the change? Last March, following a fun exploratory snowshoe hike on the steep upper part of the Wildcat River Trail from the Carter Notch Hut during yet another excellent 2012-13 Winter Hiking Series overnight trip, Maureen and I made loose plans to lead a hike into the Notch via this relatively wild and less-traveled route.

From the south, the usual route into Carter Notch is to take the Bog Brook Trail from its trailhead near the top of the Carter Notch Rd. in Jackson for a short stretch to get up to the Wildcat River Trail. Based on local knowledge (and the advice in several hiking guides), we decided to avoid the tricky water crossings on the Bog Brook Trail by instead following a gated forest road at the very top of Carter Notch Road to get to the Wildcat River Trail.

Since there was only limited parking at the gate for the forest road, the ten of us first met at a roadside parking area a little way down Carter Notch Road (just after it turns to gravel) and then carpooled up to the gate in three vehicles. The forest road not only avoided those tricky water crossings, it also gave us some nice advance views up to Carter Dome and other peaks. After crossing over the Wildcat River on a bridge on the forest road, we hung a left and started up the inviting Wildcat River Trail.

Initially, this climbs gradually up toward Carter Notch, crossing and re-crossing the river several times and passing through several forest layers. After passing the intersection with the Wild River Trail that leads off to the east to Perkins Notch, we started getting some nice views up toward Carter Dome and Wildcat A, between which Carter Notch is perched. About a half mile before hitting Carter Notch, the trail began to climb steeply up to the AMC Carter Notch Hut. This was the same section of the trail that we had “played” on last

March on our snowshoes, but back then there had been several feet of snow on the trail and it had looked very different!

Soon after passing the spur trail that leads off to The Ramparts, we came upon the first bunkhouse, which appeared to be in excellent shape with its new windows and re-shingled front porch. (Our Club has done an amazing job of keeping the huts in fine shape...). We checked out the empty Carter Notch Hut itself, the oldest and eastern most in the AMC hut system (the caretaker had literally “gone fishing”) and then headed down to the larger of the two Carter Ponds to enjoy our lunch and take in the wonderful views across the peaceful pond and up to majestic (4,832-foot) Carter Dome, ablaze in fall foliage. Following lunch, we visited The Ramparts, where the jumble of huge boulders provides a unique vantage point for enjoying beautiful and remote Carter Notch.

The hike back down hill to the forest road on the Wildcat River Trail was a relative breeze (even for this 62-year old hiker...), and we got back to our cars with plenty of daylight left. After saying our goodbyes, several of us drove up to the AMC Joe Dodge Lodge in nearby Pinkham Notch for the evening, several headed down to the hostel in Conway, and several (less lucky hikers) headed home.

Day Two: Mt. Chocorua via the Brook and Liberty Trails

The next morning, nine of us met at the Brook Trail trailhead off Paugus Road for a hike up to the summit of beautiful, 3,475-foot Mt. Chocorua (a first for me). The plan was to take the Brook Trail up to the summit, then return via the Liberty Trail. This AMC group, which included several hikers from the day before plus several new hikers, made for another interesting and amiable mix.

The lower part of the Brook Trail follows the Claybank Brook, gradually climbing up the side of the mountain. About an hour into the hike, one of our party spotted a moose foraging peacefully in the woods, just 30 or 40 feet away. Unfortunately, about half our group had already passed by without noticing this noble beast minding its own business, but the rest of enjoyed this special opportunity to see a moose at such close range and snap a few (unfortunately pretty blurry) pictures.

At some point, the gradual climb on the pretty Brook Trail turned into a series of challenging but fun scrambles up several steep and exposed ledges before meeting up with the upper portion of the Liberty Trail. This soon brought us up to Chocorua's bare summit, which afforded wonderful views in all directions, even on this relatively cloudy day! After snapping a few obligatory summit photos, we layered up and huddled down for a quick lunch before heading back down to the trailhead on the Liberty Trail. This soon brought us past the historic Jim Liberty Cabin, well situated in a clearing not far down from the summit. One of the more interesting features of this cabin, are the massive chains that loop over its roof to keep it from being blown off the mountain!

Once again, the trip back down to the trailhead was a relative breeze. We got back down to our cars, with plenty of daylight left for the drive back down to Massachusetts. Luckily, we also managed to get back in time to miss the rain, which had threatened on and off all weekend, but didn't actually materialize until after we were well on our way back to our respective homes.

The drive out from the trailhead brought us between the two picturesque Chocorua Lakes, which had attracted numerous roadside foliage watchers and picture takers on this fall afternoon. This wrapped up two wonderful days of fall hiking up in the White Mountains, including a great hike into a peaceful and remote mountain notch via a new route and a hike up to the summit of a classic NH peak, with its expansive views.

Day trip up Mt. Washington

By Doug Karlson

What can I say about climbing Mt. Washington that hasn't been said a thousand times? Probably not much. It's steep. It's rocky. It's also big. Very big.

Some readers may recall that in April we ascended Mt. Jackson and Mt. Avalon and the Sugarloafs, and we got lost on our way to Arethusa Falls. I chronicled that adventure in a story called "Bagging Peaks in the White Mountains." Following that trip we thought it might be fun to climb Mt. Washington. Since it's such a popular, well-described hike, I'll keep my account short, and include lots of photos.

We originally planned to stop for the night in Lake of the Clouds Hut, but after learning that was closed for the season, we were assured that Mt. Washington could be tackled in a day hike. Following the advice of a friend, we decided to go up via Tuckerman's Ravine Trail, and come down by way of Lion's Head. The fellow who sold me a new pair of hiking boots at EMC in Hyannis recommended that we be first in line at breakfast so we could get an early start, and thus be back before dark.

Our party was made up of my teen-aged sons Norman and Dougie, their stepbrother Matt, and Jean, an exchange student from Monte Carlo. We set off from Pinkham Notch's Joe Dodge Lodge at 8 a.m. Sunday following one of those delicious AMC breakfasts. The weather forecast was good, with heavy clouds in the lower elevations.

I saw how in bad weather you could get into trouble fast. But we had beautiful weather, once we broke judging from the heavy traffic on the trail last Columbus Day Weekend. That surprised me, given the difficulty of the hike (tallest peak in the Northeast, 6200 feet, famous for dangerously erratic weather, etc.). The holiday weekend, good weather and fall foliage probably encouraged all those people, us included.

All those hikers were a varied group. We ran into quite a few French Canadians, some Boy Scout troops, and many families. There was a speed hiker who got to the top in an hour and 22 minutes, and we also passed people who were on the verge of giving up and turning back. There were several dogs, and I met one woman who was carrying her fox terrier up Tuckerman's Ravine headwall.

After an hour and a half or so going up the lower valley (accurately described in the guidebook as "moderate but relentless" we arrived above the clouds at Hermit Lake where you get your first very impressive look at the enormous peak we had to climb, with Lion's Head off to the right. Here we also found a pump with good fresh water (the water at Pinkham Notch is slightly sulphurous).

Despite its vastness, the headwall was not as exhausting as I had feared. Maybe that's because the rocks form a ladder of sorts, and through the clouds it was sunny and clear and about 70 degrees. I was comfortable in shorts and a shirt and sun hat.

Mt. Washington must be one of the most popular hikes in the country because I was comparing it to the icy and snowy conditions in April. In fact, my son, Norman, and I remarked that this part of the climb was the most interesting, and there are gorgeous waterfalls.

The cone of the mountain is another story. The top half mile or so of the trail, leading from the top of the headwall to the summit, is like a rocky wasteland. We arrived at the summit at 12:45. The top has great views, but it's a bit of a disappointment, there are hundreds of tourists who have arrived by bus and train and car, and you have to wait in line to have your photo taken at the sign on the summit. (We didn't bother, instead taking a photo by the cairn.)

Getting down we again descended the rocky cone, which would be difficult going in rain, and then turned left down the Lions Head trail, which is scenic, especially as it passes the Alpine Meadow at 5,000 feet, and often very steep, with rocky scrambles.

The legs were feeling a bit tired by the time we finally staggered into Pinkham Notch at just before 6 p.m. in time for roast pork and mashed potatoes in the Trading Port. A highly successful day hike!

Take A Long Hike

Hello fellow hikers.

The Esbite Pocket Stove continues to be a well-kept secret. I have no idea why hikers who try to shave every fraction of an ounce from their pack, ignore the mighty little Esbiter. This dependable tiny stove, which can fit in your pocket, has been used around the world since WW II.

TIP: To reduce pack weight and increase pack space, get a tiny stove.

I've used the larger, quick-firing stoves that require liquid fuel. I admit those stoves probably work better for serving several people, especially if you are in a hurry. Their "simmer" advantage is also convenient. However, the Esbit is always reliable, and it will never clog. Most of all, it's small and light!

I remember on the A.T. having to clean and maintain my high-end stove; having to watch my fuel - hoping it lasted until the next supply stop, then over-supplying and hauling extra, bulky canisters.

Yes, stoves have gotten smaller and better. But the Esbit is one of the simplest, easiest, most reliable stoves out there. What's more, the fuel for the Esbit is portion controlled; it uses little fuel tabs that you unwrap and place on the floor of the stove. One tab will cook your meal. I sometimes light two and re-use them the next time, as shown in the picture.

The Esbit provides a foolproof system for cooking in the wilds. Check it out.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Swan River

October 5, 2013

By Betty Hinkley, photos by Jean Orser

Paddlers: Jean Orser, Bill Fischer, Betty Hinkley (Leader)

Despite a niffy weather forecast, this turned out to be a great day for a paddle.

We launched at Swan Pond and went counter-clockwise around the perimeter and then under the bridge at Upper County. We saw at least 3 great blue herons in the course of the trip, several geese, and the usual cormorants and ducks.

The bridge at 28 was under construction westbound, and they had a few hazards in the water, but we passed through and kept going. We stopped short of the exit to the Sound, as the tide was coming in through the narrow channel pretty swiftly, and also it was lunch-time. After lunch, including all the brownies we could eat, since there were just 3 of us, we headed back up the River and returned to the put-in just before 1:00 PM. Plenty of time to catch the second half of your favorite college football game.

It was a delightful trip, and a remarkably warm day for an October paddle.

Adventure Travel Training Workshop - Nov. 15-17th

Visit some of the most exciting places in the world as the leader of an AMC Adventure Travel Trip! The Adventure Travel Training workshop (held November 15-17th, 2013 at White Memorial Foundation) provides important training to people who have AMC activity leadership experience (no beginners, please) to transition from leading weekend chapter activities to more complex and longer trips, domestically and overseas. Previous outdoor leadership training is highly desirable.

The workshop emphasizes planning, cost estimating, trip management, people skills, and risk management. You'll also learn procedures and guidelines for researching, proposing, and leading Adventure Travel trips and have the chance to exchange ideas, problems, and solutions with some of the AMC's most skilled leaders. The training's small group size assures abundant discussion and access to instructors. For more information visit >>

Enhanced Bay Circuit Alliance Website

We are pleased to share with you an enhanced Bay Circuit Alliance website! Check it out >> We hope to be able to highlight any AMC trips on the Bay Circuit Trail on this website. If you're an AMC leader and you're planning a trip on the trail, please include "Bay Circuit Trail" in your trip listing title so that it can be included!

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Long Pond

September 28, 2013

By Jean Orser

Paddlers: Margot Fitsch, Vickie Blair Smith, Pat Carden, Betty Hinkley, Bill Fischer, Ed Foster, Louise Foster, Ernesto Waingortin, Paul Corriveau, CL, Jean Orser, L

ter pond on the cape with an average depth of 23' and a maximum depth of 66' and has 6.4 miles of shoreline. We paddled to the 2nd Harwich Town Landing and did the short portage to Smalls Pond which was well worth the effort as there were numerous water lilies, colorful tupelos and Margo saw a painted turtle and several frogs. Next we headed to the lunch spot Margo recommended at Sea Camps which was closed and perfect for us and we arrived at noon. Then we continued past girl scout camp, old cranberry bog, Brewster town landing, portage trail to Black Pond which we omitted and arrived at the put-in at 2pm. Ed said we had 7+ miles depending on how much one hugged the shore. A perfect day to paddle with a great group.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Nauset Marsh

October 2, 2013
By George Wey, photos by Jean Orser

It was another nice day for a paddle. After launching our kayaks at 10:30am we headed in a counter clockwise direction to circumnavigate Nauset marsh. At the Orleans end of the marsh we explored Mill Pond then crossed Nauset Harbor and paddled along the inside of the Nauset barrier beach. At 12 o'clock noon we picked a spot along the beach and stopped for lunch. Continuing our trip we crossed the main boat channel and skimmed across tidal flats with less than a foot of water heading for the so called northwest passage. In doing so we passed a cluster of about fifty to eighty huge seals. When they saw us coming they all made a dash for deep water causing quite a splash. After passing through the marsh we paddled over to the foot bridge below the old Coast Guard station. Some of the group went under the bridge and into the creek beyond. In heading back to the put-In we checked out Salt Pond next to Seashore Visitors Center. We arrived back at about 2:30pm. The trip distance was about 8 1/2 to 9 miles.

Nine paddlers left the put-in with some trepidation about the 14 mph northeast wind and higher gusts. We paddled counterclockwise around Middle pond mostly out of the wind and admired the fall colors. We passed by the spot where we used to portage to Hamblin Pond (near the wooden structure in the water) which is very overgrown now and doesn't look inviting. Soon we reached the passage on Carsley Neck into Mystic Lake where we continued to paddle counterclockwise. Since it was early for lunch we paddled around the island passing a live tree hanging in the water and seeing an abandoned house which one paddler explored. Then we headed to lunch passing many dead pine trees along the shore. Lunch at 11:30 was at the town beach on Race Lane and although there was some noisy traffic the beach was in the sun and out of the wind. We lingered for an hour hearing about travel stories. We headed back to the put-in with a nice tail wind stopping to go up the creek to the herring run. Bill and Ed reported the total distance paddled was 5 - 5.6 miles depending on how closely one hugged the shore. Another fine fall day for kayaking.

PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Clay's Creek and Barnstable Harbor

October 19, 2013

By Ed Foster

Paddlers: Ed Foster - leader, Bill Fischer, Louise Foster, Gary Robinson

A beautiful day. We went up Clay's Creek to the connection with Lone Tree Creek which we followed to it's opening into Barnstable Harbor. There was no wind, the Harbor was smooth with only swells for the Whale Watch boat. Lunch was a little early at the Water Street public landing. After lunch we headed for Hallet's Mill Pond but the tide was too high to get under the bridge so we cruised around the marshes north of the bridge before heading back along the edge of the marsh to our put-in. A total paddle of just under 6 miles.

What is a Ski Club?

By Gina Hurley

Winter is coming! I know, fall foliage is just wrapping up, but that means winter will be here soon. If you love to get outdoors in the winter to ski, snowshoe, or just play in the snow, especially in the White Mountains, you might want to consider becoming a member of a ski club. The clubs offer year-round outdoor activities, including skiing and winter outings. I have spent some time with Mr. Bob Gargano, past president of one of the ski clubs, and asked him to answer some questions about ski clubs. If you haven't heard of them, or are not sure what they are, read on!

What is a ski club? A Ski Club is a Not for Profit entity that allows a budget friendly means to accommodate overnight guests over the age of 21 in a friendly, skier oriented communal environment. The ski club acts as a primary vehicle to for people of diverse back rounds who share a common interest to get to know one another and enjoy the outdoors.

How does a Ski Club work? The Ski Clubs for the Mt. Washington Valley area fall under the primary umbrella of EICSL (Eastern Inter Club Ski League) which has a board of directors and various committees that will establish general by laws and protocol. However, the individual Ski Clubs, which there are about 20, establish their own By Laws as well as House Rules. Each Ski Club has their own respective board of directors which would include a treasurer to ensure all operating expenses, taxes, insurance and so forth are paid. Revenue typically comes from annual Membership Dues and perhaps internal fund raising.

What are the benefits of joining a Ski Club? Members enjoy discounts on lift tickets, food, and equipment, as well as inexpensive lodging and a great atmosphere. I would say the main benefit of joining any given Ski Club is that you are surrounded by people whom paths you may never cross but now have a common interest. This passion of common interest has sparked many successful relationships as well as marriages. Friendships that are made tend to be long lasting and are maintained throughout the year.

What is the cost of joining a Ski Club? All Ski Clubs vary but are also all within a reasonable range. Some clubs offer upgraded benefits which increase their annual operating expenses which costs gets passed down to membership. On average, one would expect to pay somewhere in the neighborhood of $400/annually for a Full Membership. Various membership packages are available which can lower the cost to as little as $75/annually.

Are there differences in Ski Clubs? Yes!!!! There are some Ski Clubs that are family oriented, with all ages are permitted, while some require that you must be 21 or older. Some allow dogs, and some Ski Clubs have more desirable locations.

What factors should one consider about a Ski Club before joining? Ski Clubs in general are more conducive to communal living lifestyles which may not suit everyone. Rooms are segregated by gender and will sleep anywhere from 3-5 members. All Ski Clubs encourage coming up a few times as a guest to make sure you are comfortable with your environment. Staying at different Ski Clubs is also encouraged due to the unique character of each Ski Club.

How many Ski Clubs are in the Mt. Washington Valley? There are approximately 20 Ski Clubs in the Mt. Washington Valley. Visit www.EICSL.org to review all Ski Club listings.

What activities, besides Skiing, does the Club offer? The primary activity is Skiing, however most Ski Clubs are a four season club which will host Kayaking, Golfing, Mountain Biking, Hikes, etc., and there are always social activities throughout the year. You will never be bored!

How long have you been a Ski Club member? I have been a member of the Stoneham Skidaddlers, located in Bartlet, NH, approximately 1 mile from Attitash, Bear Peak for 5 years and the President for the last 4. I have made lifelong friends with some tremendous people. More importantly, I have met someone very special through the Ski Club which has been a blessing. I am an Alpine Racer for the USSA Masters as well as a Professional Ski Instructor (PSIA), and I teach at Wildcat....but even if you are just learning to ski, a Ski Club is a great option.

Anything else you would like to tell us about the Ski Club? Please...don't be shy!!!! Come up as a guest. Check out all the websites (www.EICSL.org), and ask questions. There are approximately 1000 members throughout EICSL.....you never know who you might meet!

New book is nature's brochure, includes all 50 states

BETHANY, Conn., Sept. 30, 2013—Autumn has arrived and that leads many to think about enjoying the outdoors. Those seeking ideas about places to go can find plenty in a new book. Go Outside and Come Back Better: Benefits from Nature That Everyone Should Know is nature's brochure, according to author Ron Lizzi.

Go Outside is an inspirational travel essay woven through a landscape photography collection. It features 160 color photos from parks in all 50 U.S. states, including not only national parks but other federal lands plus state, municipal, and Native American tribal parks. The book showcases the tremendous variety of scenery available in America, including coastline, canyons, mountains, deserts, badlands, and waterfalls. Many of the photos highlight places that will be unfamiliar to most readers.

"So many people only know the most famous parks, like the Grand Canyon and Yosemite, but there are wonderful places all across the country," says Lizzi.

Far from a guide, Go Outside is an idea book. Lizzi makes the case for spending time outdoors by showing nature's power to inspire, teach, and improve lives. He does this using down-to-earth insight plus his novel concept of "matterdays," memorable days with a lasting impact. With a message as compelling as its images, the book aims to encourage and inform outdoor lovers and newbies alike.

Midwest Book Review calls the book "the next best thing to an immediate vacation." ForeWord Reviews writes, "This stunning photo journal offers a fresh perspective on the pleasures of nature."

Go Outside is available in hardcover from most bookstores or as an iPad e-book from Apple's iBookstore.

For a book trailer video and more information, visit the book's companion website: www.GoOutsideBook.com.

About the Author

Ron Lizzi (pronounced LIT-see) has hiked 1,700 miles in nearly 500 parks across America, camera in hand. Still, he's no elite outdoorsman, just a regular guy, one that most readers can relate to. And that's important because he intends to make the case for spending time in nature, particularly in America's beautiful parks, and therefore he wants readers to imagine themselves behind his camera.

Amateur photographers who enjoy capturing local rural scenes, farm animals and fresh produce are invited to enter the Massachusetts Agriculture Photo Contest sponsored by the Massachusetts Department of Agricultural Resources and Massachusetts Agriculture in the Classroom, Inc. Winning photos will be featured in the 2015 Massachusetts Agriculture Calendar.

Twelve photos will be selected, one for each month. Photos will be selected that depict the diversity of agriculture, horticulture, and natural resources on the commonwealth's farms throughout the year.

Winning photographers will be credited in the calendar, will be invited to attend a winner's ceremony at the Eastern States Exposition (The Big E) in Springfield in September and tickets to the fair, and will receive copies of the calendar.

The Massachusetts Agriculture Calendar will also feature facts and figures about Bay State agriculture, horticulture and conservation, as well as other educational resources.

Deadline for submissions is June 1, 2014. For details and an entry form, Photo Contest Rules and regulations: or contact Rick LeBlanc at Massachusetts Department of Agricultural Resources, 617-626-1759 or send an e-mail to him.

Sat., Nov. 9-10. Wilderness First Aid (WFA). WFA Training November 09, 2013 - November 10, 2013 (Sat - Sun) The WFA course runs 8:30-4 Saturday and Sunday in Foxboro, MA. Optional CPR is available. SOLO has been engaged to provide the instruction. Pricing is as follows: $145 AMC Member Price, $170 for non-AMC members. Pricing includes lunch and break service both days. Wilderness First Aid is a comprehensive lesson in how to react, respond, and save life in remote, life-threatening situations. Wilderness First Aid is a two-day class designed for trip leaders, co-leaders, and outdoor enthusiasts. This course teaches the skills necessary to identify and treat medical issues common to wilderness settings and to prepare for long-term care scenarios. This emergency response training includes patient assessment, trauma, musculoskeletal and soft tissue injuries, splinting, environmental emergencies, animal and insect bites, and a variety of other topics. The course is a mix of classroom lecture and practical exercises. Both days are required to certify. L Len Ulbricht (education@amcsem.org), R Barry Farnsworth (educationvicechair@amcsem.org)

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net)

Thursdays

Dec. 12. Thursday Morning Hike: Warner Trail, Wrentham (B3C). Meet at 9:45am, end of Randall Road, Wrentham. Wear suitable footwear and bring water, snacks, and lunch. We will follow the Warner Trail from Crocker Pond back to the Library. Six mile hike with rocky climbs over several peaks with nice views. Rain cancels. L Joanne Stanisicia (508-528-6799 7-9 p.m., jstaniscia@comcast.net)

Sat., Jan. 4. Winter Hike #2, Mount Monadnock. For the second winter hike of the season, the SEM Chapter will be climbing Mount Monadnock (elevation 3165 feet). This hike brings us to Monadnock State Park in New Hampshire and up one of the most climbed peaks in North America. Monadnock's bare, and rocky summit provides expansive views from the Boston skyline to Mt Greylock and the Green Mountains in Vt. This will give us a opportunity to test out winter hiking gear and skills before going to the next winter hike in the White Mountains. Also check out our winter hiking workshop on November 2. View from the Chair

By Cheryl Lathrop

As November ends (where did it go so fast?!) and December begins (how did it get here so quickly?!), we get to celebrate several family-oriented holiday seasons here at the end of the year. We are thankful for our many blessings here in the AMC.

Sadly we lost one of our executive board members unexpectedly in November: Barry Farnsworth, our Vice Education Chair. (See obituary later in the Breeze.) This just reminds us of how precarious and precious life is. Our thoughts and prayers are with Barry's family.

I wish everyone a joyous holiday season. Please treasure your family and friends. Please party responsibly. Please be safe on the roads.

Happy Holidays to all. And, don't forget to get outside!!! Our hardworking SEM volunteer leaders have set up some wonderful winter activities for you!

Barry C. Farnsworth

Barry C. Farnsworth, age 58, died unexpectedly Tuesday, November 19, in his home in West Bridgewater, MA. Barry was our Vice Chair of Education and a Red Line the Blue Hills hiker.

Barry was born April 2, 1955, in Brockton, Massachusetts. He was a veteran of the Air Force, an engineer, an inventor, and an avid outdoorsman. Barry was a Commissioner with the Old Colony Council Boy Scouts of America. He was well-known for his booming voice, his intellectual personality, and his love of chess and science-fiction novels. Barry is survived by his wife and five children. We will all miss Barry, and sincerely thank him for his contributions to our chapter. See full obit here.

An Appreciation

Barry Farnsworth, Vice Chair of SEM's Education Committee, passed away suddenly November 19. After many years in leadership roles with the Scouts, Barry volunteered as Education Vice Chair to promote training levels of SEM trip leaders. Most recently he managed registration for our fall WFA offering and supported the weekend's operation. He had hoped to contribute his experience with map & compass training in the Scouts to our chapter, and take over as Chair next year.

Thank you, Barry, for your commitment to SEM.
We will miss you.

THE WAYWARD CANOE

Submitted by Art Hart
SEM AMC member and trip leader

We were a group of 10 paddlers and 2 guides in 6 canoes on a 9 day trip paddling 100 miles down the headwaters of the St John river in north-western Maine. This section of the river is considered to be the longest free flowing wild river east of the Mississippi. On the entire trip we encountered only 2 bridge crossings for logging trucks and a half dozen camps. Plans by the Corps of Engineers to build a major dam in the early 1960's which would have flooded much of this wild and scenic river were later abandoned. Much of this section is now protected by the Nature Conservancy. Because it's not fed by any major lakes it's best run from May or early June before sections become too shallow for paddling.

Our put in and first night campsite was Baker Lake near the Quebec border. We arrived after hours of driving 100 miles on rough logging roads, sometimes having to detour due to spring washouts. Sightings of moose, deer and a black bear provided some interest on the long drive.

I was paddling with Dave a long time SE AMC canoe/kayak leader, we met the previous year on an Allagash River trip where he urged me to join the AMC. For many years Dave and his wife Barb led annual SEMA AMC Columbus weekend Saco River trips.

It was early May and the ice had only been out of the lake a couple of days. We spent the first day dodging rocks in the fast current on the Baker Branch until it joined the southwest Branch. Here the river widened to become the main St John where we passed 8 foot high ice flows stranded on the banks. Campsites on the river were ideal and a couple of cabins were available for use by paddlers. Our group used the cabin at Ledge Rapids on a raw, wet windy night to eat dinner and share a bottle of wine. Overnight the river had risen considerably so in the morning we were faced with large standing waves where the day before had been an easy run. We ran a ledge close to the left bank plunged thru the waves taking on buckets of cold water. We immediately had to eddy out and bail our 18 ft Old Town Trippers.

Big Black rapids were next, normally a class 2 but now a raging class 3. We bushwhacked along the high right bank to scout the best line and were able to run it successfully. The beautiful campsite where the Big Black river joins the St John was occupied by a party of paddlers from Quebec the only other group we encountered on the river the entire trip. It had been a long 26 mile day but we paddled on to the next campsite. Heavy rain and snow in Quebec, the source of the Big Black branch was adding to the flow in the main St John, we watched huge trees that had been ripped from the banks upriver floating by our campsite.

It was here that we encountered the "wayward canoe". We were relaxing after dinner watching a moose on the far bank when we noticed a half submerged canoe floating in the current. Jamie, one of our guides, and Dave grabbed PFD's, jumped in a canoe and paddled the 200 yards across the river to try and retrieve the canoe. The rest of us at the campsite scanned the river for it's occupants. Jamie and Dave chased the "wayward canoe" and were able to nudge it to the opposite bank where our Guide bailed it out and paddled it back to camp while Dave ferried the other canoe across the wide swift moving river. When we inspected the canoe it appeared to be undamaged with all camping gear still securely tied in. Now our concern was for it's occupants. How far upriver did they capsize, had they survived the cold water or where they stranded on the river bank wet and hypothermic in the freezing night?

Our campsite was also occupied by 4 fisherman, it was the first campsite that could be reached with a 4 wheel drive on logging roads. It was getting dark and the nearest phone was over 40 miles away but they agreed to drive out and alert site to see if the Quebecois had seen anything. Overcoming a bit of language barrier they determined that they had seen the canoe in the river and hiked to the base of Big Black rapids searching for the paddlers but found nothing.

The next morning at first light a Maine game warden arrived at the campsite in his vehicle and shortly after a warden pilot flew over heading upriver. Within a few minutes the warden pilot radioed that he had spotted 2 canoes each with 3 occupants some miles upriver, we were pretty sure these were the paddlers of the "wayward canoe.

We were much relieved with this news so we broke camp and continued our trip. Later we learned that the canoe after capsizing had floated many miles and thru one major rapid and several minor ones before we retrieved it, amazing that it had survived in such good condition. The paddlers were in the river for some time before their companions were able to rescue them. When they were reunited with their canoe they immediately arranged transportation back to their cars and left for home in New Hampshire, apparently the mishap having dampened their desire to continue the trip!

the Warden Service. They had driven only a few miles when they met a truck with a radio and the driver alerted authorities. The fishermen also hiked into the Big Black camp-

We continued to find the river unusually high. An afternoon snow storm on a rest day left a blanket of snow at another campsite and we broke ice in the wash basins most mornings. The river was full to the banks and fast when we reached Big Rapids, the last before the town of Dickey, our take out. Many of the rocks were now submerged, even one that a town local described as “big enough to park a pick up truck on”! We hugged the left bank and avoided any rocks still above water in this 3 mile long rapid. One canoe in our group did swamp but it was close to the river bank and the paddlers were able to bail it and continue, wet but OK. We learned later that the river at Big Rapids had measured over 61,000 cubic feet per second, the highest ever recorded for that date.

Our last night we camped at the base of Big Rapids and next morning after the “lumberjack breakfast” at a Fort Kent restaurant across from the New Brunswick border crossing we left for the 450 mile drive home. Perfect ending to the premier Maine canoe trip.

Who ARE you?

Chris and Bill Pellegrini - Family Hiking

This month we interview Chris and Bill Pellegrini, our Family Events Chair and Vice Chair. The Family Events Committee brings AMC families together by offering outdoor adventures suitable for adults and children of all ages. By participating in our events, families can learn about and enjoy regional natural resources, as well as meet other families who have the same interests.

What is your name?

Christine Pellegrini

How long have you been involved in hiking?

7 years

How long have you been an AMC member?

7 years

How long have you been a trip leader?

5 years

What do you enjoy about being a trip leader?

Watching a new hiker summit their first 4000 foot mountain or taking someone hiking for the first time.

What advice would you give to someone who is thinking of becoming a trip leader?

Just have fun planning interesting hikes for yourself and then everyone else will have a great time.

What/where are some of your hikes?

Locally in SE MA, Western MA, White Mountains, NH, Maine.

Where would you like to hike that you have not been yet (your dream trip)?

Probably the Grand Canyon or in some of the National Parks out West.

What advice would you give someone who is just getting into hiking?

Take your time to work yourself up to big mountains and buy the best gear you can afford first so you don't have to keep upgrading your gear.

Now that you are leading family hikes, what other factors must you consider when hiking with children?

Oddly enough the same things you consider with adults: pace, time, distance and terrain. Kids can't do the distances or elevation gain of an adult. I think they can probably scramble as well if not better than some adults. We have children as young as 2 1/2 hiking and they have a hard time keeping up unless we slow the pace down considerably. Having said that children on our hikes have frequently surprise us with their abilities. Five miles is the longest hike we have done so far. Another consideration is we have to keep them interested. You want to make sure there are things to do on the hike besides just walk. If there are things to look at like fire towers or waterfalls and maybe some rocks to scramble they won't be so worried about the time or distance. We have theme hikes during the holiday seasons and choose seasonal hikes like spring when the wildflowers are in bloom or fall when the leaves are turning.

What else would you like us to know about hiking?

Family Hiking: It's a wonderful thing to do for family time and it can be done any time of year. When we started hiking it was with our son Taylor when he was a teenager. When our grandchildren came along we started them hiking at very young ages. It's about having fun and getting the family outside for exercise and fresh air. Developing a child's interest and love for nature is so important for their future and the future of the earth. Best of all once you have made some initial purchases it's basically free. We got into leading hikes with families because we were essentially already doing it on our own and as AMC hike leaders it just made sense. Hiking in general: It is wonderful exercise and there is nothing better than summiting a mountain, taking in the views from the top, and marveling at your accomplishment at the end. That pretty much sums it up for us.

Erika Bloom Awarded - 2013 Distinguished Service Award (DSA)

By Max Sarazin

Erika Bloom awarded our chapter's highest award, the Distinguished Service Award (DSA). The DSA has been given out since 2000 and is given to someone who has "distinguished service" — above and beyond the usual SEM high level of volunteer service. The recipient this year was Erika Bloom — the creator and manager of this Short Notice Email List!

As a Hike Committee Leader, Erika progressed from participant to Co-Leader to Hike Leader to Winter

Hike leader. In addition to other trips, for years she led weekly Conditioning Hikes at the Blue Hills. Erika also served as Hiking Vice Chair, then Hiking Chair for 3 years. In 2002, Erika investigated the options and set up this Short Notice Email List, sometimes abbreviated as SNEL. For the past 11 years, she has continued to run the SNEL system.

Please congratulate Erika when you see her on the trails (or when you see her on the top of Mt. Kilimanjaro)!

Take A Long Hike

Backpacking with children

by Ray Anderson

Young kids need to stay active. They also thrive in new and challenging situations. Why not take them on an overnight camping trip in the mountains?

A few years ago, I took my step-grandson, Anthony, and his friend on a hike in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. I pulled out two old backpacks and drove us up to the Mount Liberty trailhead. They asked me on the ride up if we would see snakes and bears; I told them to stay alert and be watchful.

Late morning, we started the climb up to the Mount Liberty tent site, which is about three-quarters of the way to the summit. At the site, I showed them how to get water and treat it. I handed them their private tent set-up instructions and told them to figure it out. It was a nice afternoon with plenty of time before sunset; they put their heads together and did fine.

Anthony (right) and CJ--White Mountains

I wanted to teach them about the wilds and quickly realized they would put up with some instruction, but not lots. So I took it easy on them. The next morning on the summit, they were wide-eyed as they huddled looking at views. The boys felt like they had accomplished something.

On the way back down, I let each of them navigate and quizzed them about what they would do if they got lost. At trail junctions, I asked them to pull out their maps and show me where they were. I had my watch and showed them how long it took to hike a certain segment--another way to confirm what you are doing, I'd said.

These pictures tell the story. We didn't see any snakes or bears, but I taught them what camping basics I could in the time we had. They've turned into fine young men.

Bill Cannon & Ellen Thompson - finishing Redline Trails

By Bill Cannon

A friend of mine that I met through the Boy Scout Troop we belong to, told me about Red Lining and thought I would like it. He was wrong. I love Red Lining.

I started on May 26th, 2011. It was the CC Camp hike. We came out of the woods in darkness and had trouble finding the trail back to the road. On our way back to the cars, people were stopping and asking where the party was. It was a great hike. Great leaders, and great hikers. I was hooked that night.

I wasn't as interested in Red Lining my map as I was in the actual hikes.

After some time I went back and started filling it in. Over the next 2 years I have made some great friends, heard some great stories, learned a lot about hiking and found a wonderful outdoor resource. I think the best part was filling in the Orphan trails.

Ellen was a huge inspiration to me finishing. We encouraged each other as we completed a lot of common trails together. Then I did my personal orphans. I hiked 5 days a week for the last 2 weeks. I couldn't wait to get to the trails. During that time I felt a bonding, for lack of a better description, with the Blue Hills. I paid attention more being by myself. I saw deer every time out. I watched the trails and markers and followed along my map a lot more.

The fall foliage and temperatures were not to hard to take either. Now it's time to Blue Line. This time rather than dread those orphans and trails I missed, I will be looking forward to doing them. One on one with the Blue Hills.

Bill Cannon & Ellen Thompson awarded RLBH patch for finishing the Red Line the Blue Hills Trails

By Ellen Thompson

What can I say about red lining of the blue hills? This experience was far more rewarding and exciting than I ever could have dreamed. At 6:00 once a week, tired from working all day, I have had the privilege of hiking around the woods with a fabulous group of people. It did not matter if the weather was incredibly hot, freezing cold, pouring rain, (except for Thunderstorms) we hiked, and I always had a ball. Kudos to Bill Cannon for taking the extra hikes with me so I was able to finish this October.

Special thanks to Joe Keogh, Michael Schwarz, Maureen Kelly, Jim Casey for leading these hikes.

Skyline End-to-End Hike Provides Fitting Finale to RLBH Season

By Paul Miller
SEM Hiking Chair

The SEM Redline the Blue Hills (RLHB) Series that SEM hike leader, Bob Vogel, started a number of years ago just seems to keep getting more and more popular every year. Under the current leadership of Joe Keogh, Maureen Kelly, Michael Swartz and others, it's not unusual for 20-30 hikers to show up at 5:45 pm for the regular Thursday afternoon RLBH hikes, held every Thursday in the spring, summer, and fall. Not only has this provided a great vehicle for getting SEM members out on the trails on a regular basis for these often wacky, but always sociable, weekly hikes, it's also turned into a virtual "factory" for producing a slew of new and very capable SEM hike leaders!

While I didn't get a chance to participate in any of this year's Thursday evening RLBH hikes, I was lucky enough to join the group for the now-traditional RLBH season finale; a relatively challenging 8.7-mile long Skyline Trail End-to-End hike in the Blue Hills.

For this year's Skyline "End-to-End" on Saturday, Nov. 16th, 28 hikers showed up at the Shea Rink in Quincy. We laced on our hiking boots, signed in, socialized a bit, and then car-pooled to the end of Royal St. in Canton to begin the actual hike. While the day had begun overcast, the skies now began to clear and with the thermometer rising quickly towards the low 60s; it became obvious to everyone that we had lucked out with some superb hiking weather! After entering the woods, we caught up with the Skyline Trail and intentionally went in the wrong direction for a short stretch to reach the start of the trail at the Rte. 95/128 (or is it now Rte. 93?) cloverleaf. Then, we did an “about face” and headed back eastward on the Skyline toward Little Big Blue Hill. While this is relatively gentle terrain by “Skyline” standards, we had to be careful not to slip on the thick bed of leaves covering the sloping trail.

(I may have been the first of several hikers to go down, but luckily for me, it was a “soft” landing.)

After hustling across busy Rte. 138 near the Trailside Museum and Blue Hills Ski Area, the group started a real climb up to the top of Big Blue on a steep, rugged section of the Skyline Trail. Looking back, we caught our first views of the day. After passing the Blue Hill Observatory, we arrived at the 614-foot summit of Big Blue, where we stopped to regroup and to provide hikers who’d never been to the top of the Eliot Tower to enjoy the expansive views from that vantage point.

From the summit, we took the Skyline North loop back down and then up again over Wolcott, Hemingway, and Hancock Hills, which leads steeply down to the Reservation Headquarters on Hillside St., where we stopped to take advantage of the sole, but oh-so-convenient restroom. Here, I was pleased to bump into fellow-SEMers, Christina and Tom, who were hiking on their own that today, preparing for the upcoming SEM Winter Hiking Series! From the Reservation Headquarters, we crossed Hillside Street and continued on the Skyline up over Tucker and Boyce Hills, carefully negotiating down one of the steeper and trickier spots on the trail and then climbed up to the top of Buck Hill, where we stopped for lunch, to enjoy the views, and munch on the homemade “summit treats” that Maureen and Cathy had graciously prepared for the group (and lugged up in their daypacks!).

After lunch, we continued on over Buck Hill and descended steeply to Rte. 138 taking advantage of the stone steps that the CCC trail crews had built back in the 30s (along with most of the other trails and structures in the Blue Hills). Somehow, we got the heavy traffic on Rte. 138 to stop long enough to get everyone across and then continued hiking through some very pretty wooded sections, eventually reaching the top of Chickatawbut Hill and then on over Nahanton Hill, which skirts the now partially enclosed Blue Hill Reservoir. When we got to Wampatuck Road, we noticed a lot of fire trucks, and a ranger informed us that, due to fire containment activities on Wampatuck Hill, we had to skirt around that short section of the Skyline Trail on the Pipeline Trail. After reconnecting with the Skyline, we climbed and/or scrambled up a steep section toward the top of Rattlesnake Hill, avoiding the section of the trail that leads a short way up to the actual summit, which the DCR recently closed in its efforts to help protect the rattlesnakes that hang out there. From Rattlesnake Hill, it’s “downhill all the way,” with the Skyline Trail taking us past the two St. Moritz ponds and back to the parking area at the Shea Rink, where many of us had left our cars.

After circling up one last time and thanking the leaders for a great hike, we organized rides back to Royal St. for those that had driven the rest of us over there in the morning and then many hikers headed over to the nearby Blue Hills Brewery for some post-hike socializing.

Me? I headed home for a nice hot shower to help sooth my tired muscles following this very enjoyable, 6.5-hour, 8.7-mile long hike that (according to Joe Keogh’s trusty GPS) involved 2,400 feet of elevation gain. Not too shabby for a “local” hike in the Blue Hills!

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY

AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. What is Wilderness First Aid all About?

In simple terms, dealing with medical emergencies when 911 can't help you. That's what trip leaders taking groups into remoter areas may have to deal with. And not just trip leaders can benefit. Those of you taking family on camping trips into more isolated areas, or individuals who may be trekking in the back country either solo or with a few friends. WFA training will help you deal with medical situations should they ever occur, and we all hope they don't.

SEM sponsors WFA training twice a year. The most recent class held in Foxboro Nov. 9 & 10 covered the basics of assessing a situation and deciding what to do. What types of situations? Accidents like sprains and fractures (fairly common), environmentally induced hypothermia, frostbite and dehydration (it happens), and standard soft tissue injuries such a cuts, bruises and lacerations (when a tissue injuries. A group of hikers comes across an accident scene with several injured hikers. The group spreads out and seeks to treat each injury, all different, two or three rescuers per victim. Each rescuer gets to practice training skills which, in the illustrated case, were severe lacerations and a compound fracture. What would you do in such a circumstance? PADDLE TRIP REPORT - Follins/Mill Ponds

By Jean Orser

Paddlers: Margot Fitsch, Katy Hansen, Diane Carlson, Marilyn Leary, Gary Robinson, Paul Corriveau, CL, Jean Orser, Leader

Seven paddlers left an empty put-in on Follins Pond Road in Dennis paddling counter-clockwise around Follins Pond hugging the shore and exerting very little effort as the water was unbelievably calm and clear. A light drizzle started and continued on and off until after lunch. We went into a very colorful cove and then headed to Weir Creek. There was sufficient water to paddle under the North Dennis Bridge and we all flew under it into Mill Pond which was very scenic with swans, mallard ducks and one attractive duck Margot said was a blue Swedish/pekin mix. After circling Mill Pond we headed back to the bridge where the water was still rapidly flowing in and there was plenty of it so no danger of hitting a rock. Four paddlers managed to get under the bridge by using the ceiling to pull themselves thru. Three paddlers opted to portage over the bridge. Since they were out of their boats and it was close to noon we decided to have lunch on the Follins Pond side under some trees which nicely blocked the drizzle. Margot had brought a small pumpkin for our luncheon centerpiece. Afterwards we headed around Swamp Cove, onto Viking Rock; then into Dinah's Pond and Kelleys Bay reaching the put-in at 2:15. We probably paddled 6-7 miles depending on closely one hugged the shore. All agreed it was a good way to spend a drizzly day.

Annual Pizza Social

November 1st brought the first New Hampshire Chapter Annual Pizza Social at Lonesome Lake Hut. New Hampshire leaders led a group of about 24 people to the hut—some first-time visitors to one of the AMC huts, others veteran hikers of the White Mountains. They prepared homemade pizza for the event to enhance the enjoyment of the self-service that is available at the Huts this time of year. Also planned for the evening was a creative scavenger hunt and a hut trivia game to keep things exciting after the pizza dinner.

Next year's Annual Pizza Social will fall on Friday October 31st, providing the perfect opportunity for a Costume Party/Pizza Social combination event. To participate in the 2014 event, perspective participants should contact Denise Spoor at 603-466-8137 or by email at dspoor@outdoors.org. This information will be posted on the AMC website and in the AMC Outdoors magazine as well.

Registration is Open!

The day's activities will include

- 138th Annual Business Meeting 4-5pm
- Clubwide committee meetings and workshops 8am-4pm
- Volunteer Leadership Awards Dinner with Guest Speaker, Kristen Kelliher 6pm

AMC Expo, Doors open at 8am

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

We need an "Event Planner" for the AMC SEM Executive Board. Do you have event planning skills? Our events are typically: Annual Meeting/Dinner, Holiday Party, Summer Picnic. Can you find and reserve a room, choose a menu that fits in our budget, worry about a projector and screen, set an agenda, and generally make an event happen? Contact the chapter chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Volunteer Opportunities

Until Filled. Chapter Youth Program (CYP) Leader. Share your outdoor knowledge and leadership skills with local groups of children. Give your time to these programs to help kids get outside who might not otherwise have the opportunity. A typical Chapter Youth Program (CYP) might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail games. CYP leader training and screening is required. L Sally Delisa (picpocit@verizon.net) doors through partnerships, online and print information, and training leaders to take youth outdoors. To support these efforts we decided to explore and share the benefits physical activity has on children.

activity is important for everyone. What are the benefits of physical activity and why is it important in children's health?

Pam: Physical activity decreases ones risk for many diseases such as hypertension, diabetes, cancer, and others. It helps all body systems function better. It helps prevent osteoporosis, improves cognitive functioning, helps with depression and anxiety, improves heart-lung and muscle fitness, and improves sleep. It is important that adequate physical activity starts early on to improve health not just for the present but for their future.

Rod: Human beings were evolved to move. Evolution over two million years has created the biology, anatomy and physiology of the human body in its present form. Exercise was necessary for survival in our beginnings, and only began to become a "hobby" activity at the Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and December holidays are over! Only New Years to get through. Do you have that standard New Year's Resolution to "get healthy?" If so, in addition to the dreaded "diet and exercise", why not toss a few AMC SEM winter activities into your schedule. They're great fun!

We've got winter local hikes and mountain hikes. Snowshoes and walks. Cross-country skiing and downhill skiing. Day trips and weekend trips. And yes our bike leaders are still leading rides. Something for everyone this winter!

So, have a Happy New Year and ring in 2014. And then, get outside!!! Our hardworking SEM volunteer leaders have set up some wonderful winter activities for you!

GET INVOLVED

Be a volunteer and reap the rewards

If you'd like to give back to your SEM chapter, we'll find something small for you to do to get started. Contact the Chapter Chair at chair@amcsem.org and we'll match up your interests and capabilities with our needs.

Are you a detail person, long-time chapter member & former board member?

We're forming a committee to update our chapter Bylaws and Operating Rules. See our current Bylaws and Operating Rules. Contact your Chapter Chair at chair@amcsem.org.

Like to work with groups of children? Want to share your outdoor knowledge with the next generation?

Our Chapter Youth Program (CYP) is looking for a leader. A typical CYP might include a local walk with some nature lesson or trail game. Contact Sally Delisa cypcoordinator@amcsem.org

Like to ski? Want to see more ski trips?

Our Ski Committee needs a Vice Ski Chair to work with our Ski Chair to help to plan ski events, both downhill and cross-country. Contact xskichair@amcsem.org for more information.

Conservation minded? Want more conservation activities?

Our Conservation Committee needs a Vice Conservation Chair to work with our Conservation Chair to help plan conservation events and education. Contact conservationchair@amcsem.org for more information.

time of the industrial revolution. If we as humans choose not to stimulate our biology (by exercising and eating whole food diets) then we invite obesity. This is especially the case for children because childhood is the foundational beginning to the physical, mental and social habits of a lifetime. Every cell, tissue, organ, joint and muscle in the body requires regular, daily exercise to benefit from the oxygen and nutrients of survival.

3. Is there any research that supports physical activity as a benefit to learning? If so, what does the research say?

Pam: The research shows that physical activity increases mental clarity, efficiency, and is associated with better thinking, learning and judgment.

Rod: Exercise research studies demonstrating the benefits to learning ability are numerous....here are a few examples:

How Exercise Makes your Brain Grow

Physical Fitness in Childhood Linked to Higher Reading and Math Scores

4. Is there any research that supports physical activity as a benefit to emotional health? If so, what does the research say?

Pam: Countless research studies show that exercise has incredible benefits not just for physical health, but for all areas of health, including mental, emotional, intellectual, and yes, even social well-being. Here are a few to consider.

- Regular aerobic exercise increases levels of serotonin and dopamine in the brain, which is linked with improved mood.

- Exercise enhances the mind's ability to withstand daily hassles and stressors and to regulate itself.

- Regular exercise has been shown equal to antidepressant use in treating Major Depressive Disorder.

- Exercise is associated with deeper relaxation and better quality of sleep (which protects the brain and increases energy).

- Regular exercise is associated with higher self-esteem.

Rod: Modern, human life contains more mental and emotional stress, now than ever before. Our lives seem to be traveling at "warp speed" every moment. The stress, unless coped with in a healthy manner, can be crippling. Our "being" is not compartmentalized. Our mental, physical, emotional, and spiritual natures are always connected and overlapping. Physical exercise stimulates a biochemical process in our bodies that assists us in playing-down the sympathetic nervous system's "fight or flight" reaction, and helps to initiate a parasympathetic, calming response.

5. What role does food and nutrition play in children's health?

Pam: Proper nutrition is essential for the healthy growth and development of children. When children develop good eating habits at an early age, research shows that they are more likely to carry these throughout their lifetime. We know that healthy foods fuel bodies so that they can best learn and grow, while poor nutrition increases their risk of multiple diseases and problems.

Rod: The nutrition and lifestyle habits of a lifetime begin in early childhood. A child's or anyone's future health is largely determined by dietary practices. Refer to the media daily, and you will hear about the obesity epidemic. Chronic disease potential is in direct proportion to the lack of proper nutrition. The CDC reports that 80% of all cancer is the result of diet. Diseases, like Type II diabetes, which was once called Adult-onset diabetes because it affected people over 40, is now becoming ever more pronounced in younger years, and even in elementary school children. Education to combat this trend should be a priority in our healthcare system, and in our schools.

9. What suggestions can you give parents to help them increase their children's physical activity?

Pam: Make physical activity a family habit. The National PTA also suggests taking a family walk around the block each night after dinner; scheduling a weekly game of touch football in the park; walking instead of driving when you can; walking or biking with your child to school; parking as far away from entrances as possible; using the stairs.

Rod: One of the best things parents can do is to model the behavior they wish to see in their children. Go on walks as a family. Walking has received a bad "rap" by elite fitness buffs, but walking is one of the best exercises a person can engage in for overall wellness and physical fitness. It stimulates the "being", in a superbly healthy way and on every level, physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually. Also, research your town or city's recreation department offerings. If you find something the child is interested in, then take an obvious interest yourself...go online with the child and research the history of the activity and notable players or participants, show enthusiasm about it, go to the games or meets or matches. Set times and limits for T.V. and video games.

6. What obstacles or challenges do you see families facing to increase children's physical activity?

Pam: TV, Computers, iPhones, and other technology that pulls kids in rather than having them engage in physical activity and games outdoors.

Rod: Families in earlier years were able to allow their children to play outdoors, safely. Today it is not the case.

7. What are some of your favorite outdoor activities?

Pam: Kayaking, golfing, and walking.

Rod: I hike, bike, swim, compete in Masters Track and Field, work-out regularly at school and at a fitness club, and work in the yard at my home.

8. If you could change one thing in order to increase children's physical activity, what would it be?

Pam: Have daily physical activity a requirement in the schools for a minimum of 30 minutes/day.

Rod: Allow school students to have daily Physical Education, taught by a certified professional. Healthy, lifetime habits will be introduced and practiced, at the same time that physical, mental, emotional and social fitness skills are being developed. Then...watch obesity and disease decline, and maximal physical health and academic performance skyrocket!

Take A Long Hike

Hello fellow hikers.

One of the questions I frequently get asked is whether a hiker should buy a self-inflating mattress or a fold out pad, like Z-lite, for camping overnight.

The pictures show a purple mattress (not inflated) and a yellowish foldout pad. Either item goes under your sleeping bag.

If you are looking only for comfort, the self-inflating mattress (this one from Therm-a-rest) is the way to go---hands down. But there are advantages to the pad, and this Z-lite pad (also made by Therm-a-rest) is very popular.

I've settled on the non-inflatable pad, and here's why.

Light weight--Pads weigh less than inflatable mattresses; this pad weighs less than a pound.

Indestructible--No worries about puncturing it, or wrecking the valve.

Convenience--Shake it loose and it's ready to go. When I take a meal, especially in wet or rocky areas, it's the first thing I grab to sit on.

Pack Support--As more hikers go ultralight with frameless rucksacks, this pad provides pack support.

I admit that I miss the cushy comfort of an inflatable mattress when I sleep. For convenience, however, especially on breaks, when you want to smother ants and insects with something other than your pants, when you want to rest and air out your socks and footwear, nothing beats the pad. So why not carry both? Well, one day I may.

Happy new hiking year!

AMC ACTIVITY PARTICIPATION POLICY
 AMC encourages involvement in its mission and activities through its membership, programs, policies, and procedures. Our goal is to be a community that is comfortable, inviting, and accessible for people of any age, gender, race, religion, ethnicity, ability, sexual orientation, or socioeconomic status. Some AMC programs are designed for a certain age range of members or for a special activity or topic. However, any person who meets the minimum qualifications (age, skills, experience, fitness) established by the trip leader(s) for an activity is eligible to attend, if space is available. Individuals under 18 must be accompanied by a responsible adult. All participants in AMC activities are required to sign the AMC waiver form provided by the leader. Preview the waiver at: <http://amcsem.org/documents.html>

The Education Committee organizes and promotes training of trip leaders for our chapter. Two fundamental programs, Leadership Training and Wilderness First Aid, are planned and supported every year. Other programs may be offered at the committee's discretion.

Volunteer Opportunity Education Committee Vice Chair

Upon expiration of the Chair's term in office, the Vice Chair normally moves into the Chair's position.

Small event planning experience helpful. Completion of Leadership Training or Wilderness First Aid desirable but not required.

The Vice Chair and Chair share tasks that typically involve the planning, co-ordination and hosting of training sessions, nominally two or three weekend sessions per year. Presenting training material is not required.

To explore this volunteer position further, contact Len Ulbricht, the Education Committee Chair, at lenu44@gmail.com.

2014 LEADERSHIP TRAINING

Leadership Training will be held on Saturday, May 3, 2014 at Borderland State Park, N. Easton, MA. This course prepares trip leaders for managing groups they will be leading on AMC sanctioned trips. The course covers leadership styles, trip planning considerations, screening criteria to insure similar group member skills, risk mitigation, and qualifications to become a leader. Non-trip leader candidates are also welcome. It is an all day course with a mix of classroom and outdoor exercises. Lunch and refreshment breaks are provided. This course is offered at no cost to chapter members.

Please register by April 19 with Len Ulbricht at lenu44@gmail.com

Leadership Training - Why Take It?

In order to foster safe outdoor recreation enjoyable to all, AMC has for many years offered a variety of training programs - both for personal growth and trip leaders/organizers. The most basic program is Leadership Training. This program covers the essential elements our trip leaders need to understand when organizing, planning and managing groups of hikers, bikers, paddlers, or skiers. It is offered by all AMC chapters to train leaders with a common set of guidelines for situations they will likely face in running an outdoor activity. Anyone wishing to lead trips for our chapter should take this program.

Suppose one is uncertain as to whether or not they want to lead trips. Can they take it? Or how about members new to AMC who are not seeking to lead but want to learn how our organization operates. Can they take it? And there are those members who just wish to participate and not lead. Can they take it?

Yes! Yes! Yes! to all three questions. Leadership Training is for participants, too. You will learn how leaders manage groups, screening considerations leaders undertake and may ask you about to insure group compatibility, how to deal with accidents and AMC liability protections, and ways to personally prepare for your outdoor experience whether it's hiking, biking, paddling or skiing. You'll also meet and interact with SEM trip leaders who present course materials. So give LT some thought.
